IT'S FOR REAL as a good tug on it proves. The magnificent facial foliage of Frank Blackley (centre) won him first place in the Victoria Days beard-growing contest. Gilbert Watt (right) and Ben Domoney were runners-up. For Domoney perhaps it was a question of a late start. He began growing his beard in February. Guards Face Assault Trial

Kingston Riot Aftermath

TORONTO (CP) — Eleven guards at Millhaven Penitentiary were charged today with a total of 22 counts of assault on prisoners transferred to Millhaven after a riot at Kingston Penitentiary last month, Attorney - General Allan Lawrence told the legislature.

The guards will appear in court at Napanee, Ont., next Thursday.

Clayton Powell, a Crown counsel in the attorney-general's office, said in an interview the charges involve incidents against eight prisoners transferred April 19, 20 and 21.

PREJUDICIAL

Mr. Lawrence said he had "a great deal of information" on file in his office but he would not make it public because it might be prejudicial to the trials.

He also denied published accounts that Crown Attorney John Sampson of Kingston said some prisoners had been told they would be charged with offences committed during the riot.

WALK OUT? NEVER! SAYS SCHREYER

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer has described as "absolutely unfounded" a report that he and other prairie premiers plan to walk out of the federal-provincial conference next month in Victoria if they don't get their way.

Commenting on a report from Quebec that the three would walk out if Quebec insisted on dealing with social policies before reaching a decision on amending the constitution, Schreyer said he "never made any statement to that effect."

"The whole episode leads me to think there is some mischief afoot, although I can't imagine what the motive would be. This is absolutely unfounded as far as Manitoba is concerned."

Triangle Fight Looms in NDP

By PETER McNELLY

The political family of socialists and social democrats who form British Columbia's New Democratic Party face a triangular policy battle this weekend when they gather in Vancouver for their 1971 convention.

At stake will be the interests of organized labor, those of the supporters of provincial leader Dave Barrett and the aspirations of the militant Waffle group.

More Than Sibling Rivalries

Perhaps more than any other party in Canada, the NDP prides itself on its tolerance of internal dissent. And while B.C.'s NDP is unlikely to find its internal differences irreconcilable on the convention floor, the disputes among its members are more than sibling rivalries.

After its crushing electoral defeat in August, 1969, the NDP consolidated its strength under a new leader — Barrett. Now entering his second year as official party leader, Barrett can be said to have brought the mark of his own style upon the party's policies.

He has moved the party away from an outright identification with the B.C. Federation of Labor, and he has carefully softened the more doctrinaire socialist image which has clung to the NDP from the days of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

Cause of Conflict Anticipated

But it is precisely these two of Barrett's positions which will generate conflict at the policy level during the convention.

Among the 500 to 600 convention delegates in attendance at the University of British Columbia's Totem Park Convention Centre May 28-30 will be the usual strong labor contingent and about 100 Waffle delegates.

The Waffle is expected to nominate a challenger to Barrett's leadership post, and party analysts say the B.C. Fed will continue to push for a more outspoken pro-labor tone in the NDP.

But these moves should not obscure the fact that the NDP is always a party of policy rather than one of personality.

In an interview with the Times, Barrett said he expects the convention to state "concrete proposals" on the 11 policy departments chosen for discussion.

1972 Election Predicted

There are: labor, agriculture, natural resources, environment and pollution, health, urban affairs, education, taxation, finance and secondary industry, cultural affairs and human rights, and welfare and youth.

Barrett is predicting a provincial election in September, 1972. He said his own view is that unemployment should be the major area of concern during the convention.

He charges the Socreds with complete failure to create more jobs in B.C. and dismisses Premier Bennett's promise of 25,000 new jobs this year as an impossible hope under Social Credit policies.

Barrett noted that the number of employed persons in B.C. dropped by 14,000 in April. This means Bennett will have to create 39,000 jobs to keep his promise.

Aside from unemployment, Barrett said another tour of the province revealed to him a serious problem in the fruit industry of the Okanagan.

LOAN PROPOSED

He is proposing a $250,000 interest-free loan to stimulate the industry. Barrett said he is also interested in the possibility of provincial aid to independent schools.

The secretary of B.C.'s Waffle group, Sharon Yandle of Vancouver, says the decision to challenge Barrett's leadership results from "real dissatisfactions" with his policies.

These disagreements fall into three areas, she said. First, the Waffle does not like Barrett's refusal to oppose Bill 33 enough to ask workers not to obey the law.

She said the Waffle believes Bill 33 is a bad law and does not deserve to be obeyed.

The group also opposes the

Mid-East Strife Blamed on U.S.

CAIRO (Reuter) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat blamed American support of Israel for spoiling Middle East peace efforts and Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny accused the U.S. of having a direct interest in the continuation of Israeli aggression in speeches Wednesday night.

The two leaders were speaking at a dinner given in Podgorny's honor which lasted into the early hours of this morning. They continue their private talks today.

Sadat said the U.S. backing for Israel was pushing the Middle East toward an explosion of inestimable consequences.

He said, however, Egypt had not rejected recent U.S. peace efforts.

"But we want everybody to know," he said, "that we shall not compromise, either as regards our territories or our rights in exchange for an empty mirage."

Replying to Sadat, Podgorny, who arrived here Tuesday on what was described as an unofficial visit, said the Soviet Union always had been at the side of the Egyptian people in their struggle against imperialism and zionism.

BLAMES U.S.

Podgorny said Israeli aggression poisons the atmosphere not only in the Middle East but also far beyond it. Through the fault of Israeli ruling circles and their U.S. patrons the consequences of aggression had not yet been eliminated and the situation remained rather tense, he said.

Sadat started his speech by saying that imperialists and their henchmen watching Podgorny's visit had once more failed to understand the nature of Soviet-Egyptian relations.

107 YEARS OLD, GAINING ON DAD

CHEMAINUS, (CP) — August Jack is 107 years old today, but the celebration is being delayed until Saturday to give all 60 members of his family a chance to attend.

"He is still as active as he was a year ago," his son, Johnnie, 57, said Wednesday night.

"He split some wood, did a little housework and now is out for his evening walk.

"He doesn't have as many grey hairs as I have and I don't think he has ever had a worry in his life. Maybe that's the secret."

Mr. Jack was born on the Lummi reserve near Bellingham, Wash., Dec. 28, 1864, but he was not baptized until May 27, 1865, when his birth was registered.

He says his father lived to be 125 and another member of the family reached 135.

India, Pakistan In Border Clash

NEW DELHI (AP)— The Indian government said today an entire 11-man checkpost on the border with East Pakistan had been wiped out in an attack by the Pakistan Army.

"Our 11 men could not hold against their 100 men," Home Affairs Minister K. C. Pant informed Parliament in the first official disclosure of the incident.

"I regret to inform the house that as a result of this attack, nine border security force personnel were killed and two are missing."

Pant said that 13 civilians also were killed and 11 injured in the attacks this week at Kilapara in eastern Assam state.

WILL USE ARMY

The leader of the right-wing Hindu nationalist Jana Sangh party, A. B. Vajpayee, called the border incident "an undeclared war" and demanded that the Indian army be moved along the 1,349-mile border with East Pakistan, replacing the paramilitary border security force.

During a similar debate in the upper house of Parliament, R.N. Mirdha, minister

Canada-Russia Era Forecast

LENINGRAD (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today Canada is increasingly turning its attention to the Soviet Union and foresaw a new era of co-operation between the two northern neighbors.

"We are becoming aware of our partnership," Trudeau told the Leningrad City Soviet in a luncheon address.

Governmental exchange visits between Canada and Russia might one day lead to "a program of trans-Arctic co-operation of yet unforeseen nature," he said.

"That may be a dream, but surely there is an element of reality in it."

Speaking on the last day of his 11-day Soviet tour, Trudeau said Canada looks as always to her European origins," but she is increasingly turning her attention towards the Soviet Union, now that the obstacle of polar icefields is being overcome and she is discovering her closeness to you."

"Your country is likely experiencing the same changes in outlook as you become aware of the closeness of Canada," he added.

"All barriers are giving way before the progress of science and technology . . ."

LAUDS SIEGE HEROISM

Trudeau paid tribute to the "incredible heroism" of the people of Leningrad during the city's epic 900-day siege in the Second World War.

Earlier, he had placed a wreath of red and pink carnations at the base of a memorial to the estimated one million victims of the siege, at a cemetery where about half those who died lie buried.

A Red Army band movingly played funeral music by Chopin as Trudeau, under leaden skies, slowly walked down a 500-foot pathway leading to the monument, trailed by scores of Canadian and Soviet officials.

Leaving the cemetery, Trudeau went on a fast-moving sightseeing tour of Leningrad.

NEWS BRIEFS

Pearson Honored

LONDON (CP) — The Queen has bestowed one of her highest personal awards on former prime minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada, making him a member of the Order of Merit.

Sanctuary Studied

HALIFAX (CP) — Federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said today the government would "be glad" to attempt establishing a seal sanctuary in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Houses Abandoned

FORNAZZO, Sicily (AP) — A new stream of lava from erupting Mount Etna reached the edge of this mountainside crossroads village today and 20 of the most menaced houses were abandoned.

Skipper Jailed

MONTREAL (CP) — The captain of the Liberian vessel Kos was ordered jailed Wednesday until the ship's Greek owners pay a $3,000 fine for polluting Canadian inland waters. Captain Demitrius Efthimiou had earlier been found guilty of dumping oil into Montreal harbor.

RAW SEWAGE will no longer pollute the beaches of West Bay following action today by deputy minister of health J. A. Taylor. Storm drains like this one at the foot of Barnard, watched by objector Jim Palmer, have been used until now as bypasses during the installation of trunk sewers at Macaulay Point. Dr. Taylor said today the sewage will be diverted into another area where it will be screened and chlorinated.

Violence Ebbs

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — A sharp drop in street violence in black districts resulted Wednesday in the lifting of a dusk-to-dawn curfew in Chattanooga and a slackening of the military grip the National Guard has held on the city.

Reward Set In Air Hoax

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Rewards totalling $56,400 were offered today for capture of the bandits who used a bomb scare bluff to con an Australian airline out of $560,000.

Police kept up a nationwide hunt for the bandits. Serial numbers of the ransom notes were circulated along with an artist's drawing of the man who picked up the cash. Interpol worked with Australian officials on the case.

NEXT QUESTION: WHO'S IN CHARGE?

WINNIPEG (CP) — Why should the husband rather than the wife be defined as the "head of the household" on the 1971 census form, the Manitoba Human Rights Commission wants to know.

The commission says because of the "abhorrent" definition by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, it is the man who must answer certain questions about the family income.

"The form implies that women are not competent to supply this information. Apparently DBS feels that the woman's place is in the home, subservient to her husband, but that she can't be trusted to describe her surroundings accurately — that's the man's work."

SWIFTSURE ARMADA ARRIVING

The forerunners of the largest Swiftsure fleet in history began nosing their way into the Inner Harbor today, part of the 191-strong armada that will be racing in the Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca classics this weekend.

With sails checked, gear readied and crews briefed there remains one big question on skippers' minds.

What is the weather going to be?

Long-range forecasts call for light winds at the start and sunny skies. Helping the boats on their outward passage will be a favorable ebb tide.

There will be 124 entries in the 136.2-mile race to the Swiftsure Bank and back and 67 in the 75.6-mile race to Clallam Bay.

Six boats will be sailing in the Swiftsure under Royal Victoria Yacht Club colors. They are Maui veterans, Don Lawson's Cubara and Wally Meakes' Potlatch II; Louis Lindholm's Moonraker, Frank Bush's Concubine, John Reed's Sabre II and Murray Farmer's Sea-Fax III.

VICTORIA BOATS

A fleet of 16 Royal Victoria boats are entered in the Juan de Fuca. They are Peter Coombs' Doxy II, Guy Screech's Morgan, Don McCowan's Haida III, George Dufour's Galenaia II, Greg Oliver's T'Weather, Jack Woodward's Puff, Archie Campbell's Ligero, John MacDonald's Anwyll, Tom Loney's Hammerhead, Denny Coverdale's Melee, Ned Ashe's Mint, Brian Saunders' Impulse, Stewart Holman's Keela, Bert Buchanan's Lairig Ghru, Bob Carere's Aquila and Steve Merriman's Vandal.

Other local boats in the race are Bent Jespersen's Limfjord of the Turkey Head Sailing Association and Roger Oldham's Te-Pah of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association.

Representing the Maple Bay Yacht Club will be John Roome's Saga, Bob Dickie's Kismet, Don Gladman's Skaga and Clarence White's Chanson.

For the first time in many years, watchers on Dallas Road will be deprived the sight of the navy's 91-foot ketch HMCS Oriole making her way under full sail to the start line. She has been forced to forego this race because of the navy's inability to man her.

But the Canadian armed forces will not be entirely unrepresented in Swiftsure.

SUBSTITUTE

Oriole will have a smaller substitute in the ketch Serendipity III, bought with Canex fund by servicemen at CFB Chilliwack. She will sail under CFSA, Chilliwack colors and be skippered by Major D. M. McLean.

As in past years naval vessels will be used for patrolling the race, with an assist by the American coast guard vessel Point Countess.

The minesweepers HMCS Chinecto and HMCS Fundy will patrol the course, Fundy acting as the turning mark at the Swiftsure Bank. Turning mark in Clallam Bay will be the gate vessel HMCS Porte Quebec.

Chignecto and Fundy will form the start line off Brotchie Ledge Saturday morning, with the starts for the Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca being fired at 9:30 and 9:45 a.m. from Chignecto.

Also adding color th the scene will be the SS Beaver.

Chignecto will be in the Inner Harbor Friday evening to act as base for the boats' roll call and other pre-race festivities.

LABEL FOLLY

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson today described "a lot of nonsense" a federal proposal to make bilingual packaging and labelling of products mandatory in B.C.

"This is complete folly particularly for western producers selling in a western market where we have larger ethnic groups speaking other languages than we have speaking French," Peterson said in an interview.

The bilingual packaging would become mandatory by 1975 under federal plans discussed in Ottawa at a closed meeting of ministers responsible for consumer affairs.

"The market place itself should determine the language of the products," Peterson said on his return to Victoria. He said B.C. was the only province to point out the "nonsense" at the conference.

Such labelling would be an unnecessary expense," Peterson said.

. . . NDP RALLY

way Barrett behaved during the demonstrations in front of the legislative buildings at the opening of Parliament in January.

She said the Waffle thinks the full NDP caucus should have boycotted the throne speech and given full support to the demonstrators.

The group also is completely opposed to Barrett's flirtation with Japanese capital as shown by his attempts to get the Toyota automobile company to create an assembly plant in B.C.

FOREIGN OWNERSHIP

Waffle supporters say workers should immediately move toward full industrial democracy, and this cannot be done when Canadian industries are controlled from outside the country — or even from within the country by large Canadian firms.

"We are nationalists because we are democrats. We don't believe we can take control of our lives when the decisions are made outside the country," Miss Yandle said.

The Waffle group has seen itself as a policy gadfly in the craw of the NDP, and other Waffle sources say the leadership challenge should not be seen as a departure from this role.

Miss Yandle said the fact that the group will not pick its challenger until Friday night — and may decide not to choose one at all — shows it is downplaying the personality angle.

NOT VANGUARD

But sources close to Barrett say the Waffle's behavior is "childishly mischievous." They point out that the decision to challenge Barrett passed by a majority of only four, and they feel the Waffle does not represent the vanguard of the B.C. NDP.

Organized labor will ask the party to re-affirm its policy of full trade union membership for all workers. This, according to a B.C. Fed background paper is "probably one of the most important things we can do to fight poverty and social oppression in our country."

Like this quote, the rest of the B.C. Fed paper indicates that traditional labor interests — fear of automation, the supremacy of collective bargaining, etc. — still occupy the forefront of the organization's concern.

This, and the federation's clumsy attempts to challenge Barrett by calling for a labor candidate push at the constituency level, suggest the group may be atrophying at the level of traditional politics. But in fairness, labor's concern for basic issues continues to dramatize its belief that B.C.'s workers' struggles are still to be won.

'LITTLE PEOPLE'

Barrett can be expected to continue to emphasize the "little people" style he is fond of. His politics rest in a language appeal to the voters. It's a brand of populism upon which he is banking his chances to become B.C.'s next premier.

Waffle supporters will be arguing for resolutions asking the party to get involved in community issues. The group will be calling for party support — financial and technical — to tenants' and poor peoples' groups, community planning organizations, political action within labor unions, womens' liberation and workers' control of industry.

The relative strengths within the labor-Barrett-Waffle triangle may best be judged by how successful each faction is in getting its candidates elected to party offices. All positions will be voted upon. Barrett's supporters are in control now.

FINANCING

Party finances are also an NDP problem, Provincial Secretary Hartley Dent reports the party is about $16,000 in debt. He says the issue here is to erase the debt by 1972 to put the NDP in a good borrowing position for the expected election and keep financial control of the party in the hands of its members.

The party's fund-raising drive, B.C. Progress, is likely to fall far short of its $100,000 goal. This was hoped to generate enough money to pay off the party's debt.

Aside from this problem, Dent is optimistic that the party's pre-authorized cheque plan will nearly triple monthly party revenues by 1972.

The 1971 NDP convention is unlikely to be the last before the next provincial election. The buzz of pre-election excitement will take a back seat to policy debates.

But after the debates have ended and the resolutions passed, the shape of the province's official opposition party should be more clearly defined.

of state for home affairs, gave an assurance that the government would not hesitate to use the army in the border areas.

"The army is in readiness," he said.

Under a 10-year-old agreement, Indian and Pakistani army units are not to be kept within 1,000 yards of the border, but the Pakistanis have moved their soldiers in some areas up to the border following the outbreak of civil strife in the province in March, the Indian government said.

The Press Trust of India reported Wednesday that Indian security forces killed 120 Pakistani troops who crossed the border.

The news agency reporting from the northeastern Indian town of Shillong, said the clashes occurred during the last two days. It said 30 Indian border security men were killed by Pakistani machine-gun and mortar fire.

PTI, which said the intrusions were into northeast Assam and the territory of Meghalaya, also quoted authoritative reports as saying that Pakistani forces were massing in strength at several plaes along the northern border of East Pakistan.

Resources Minister Ray Williston confirmed Wednesday that B.C. will not present a brief to the International Joint Commission hearings June 4 at Vancouver on proposals to flood the Skagit Valley.

Victoria Girl Killed at Alberni

A girl killed in a head-on crash near Port Alberni Wednesday was identified today as Lynn Danielson, 19, of 3255 Weatherby in Victoria.

She was the driver of a light truck, registered to the provincial parks branch, which collided with a car driven by Florence Dann of Port Alberni.

Mrs. Dann and her daughter, Shelley, 3, are reported in satisfactory condition in hospital at Port Alberni.

The accident occurred shortly before 1 p.m. at Redford and Victoria roads, about a mile east of Port Alberni. An inquest is scheduled in Port Alberni tonight.

Miss Danielson was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Danielson of 3255 Weatherby.

All-Candidate Meet in Sidney

An all-candidate meeting, sponsored by the Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce will be held at 8 p.m. today in Hotel Sidney.

Electors vote Saturday for aldermasic candidates Chris Andersen, Bernard Ethier, Dudley Johnson, Alfred Knudsen, John Pedlow or F. A. Robinson. Winner will serve a 19-month term to fill a vacancy on Sidney Council left by the resignation of Herb Perry.

Anderson stands as a young family man and representative of the residential district. He says it is important that council membership should not be confined to business and professional elements, and advocates progress "but not at the expense of the amenities which make Sidney an attractive place to raise a family."

Bernard Etheir is new to politics and comments that he has no axe to grind. He maintains that, as a representative of the people, council members should keep this fact uppermost. "I will try to make intelligent decisions and to maintain an unbiased attitude," says Ethier, a long-time Sidney resident.

Dudley Johnson, a local merchant, has a long record of community service. "What is needed in Sidney is good judgment and common sense." Known as "Uncle Dudley," Johnson is an executive member of Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce, Rotary and the Elks Lodge in Victoria.

Alfred Knudsen has lived in Sidney for seven years and advocates municipal involvement in much-needed recreation facilities. He has been a member of the recreation commission, Sanscha and Kinsmen. Knudsen believes Sidney should operate its own fire department and have as little as possible to do with North Saanich.

John Pedlow is a community figure active in Sanscha and recreation organizations. He is on the side of local merchants who wish to retain angle parking on Beacon Avenue and those who feel that part of their business licence tax should help operate the tourist bureau. Pedlow also feels that independent operation of the fire department is best for Sidney.

F. A. Robinson was an Oak Bay council member for years and, since living in Sidney, is critical of current municipal policy. Robinson advocates a survey of present commitments before council embarks on schemes entailing further municipal expenditures.

Gagnon Trial Hears Times Reporter

MONTREAL (CP) — Journalist Douglas MacRae testified Wednesday at the seditious conspiracy trial of Charles Gagnon and Jacques Larue-Langlois that Gagnon told him last September that the only way to achieve viable Quebec independence was by revolution.

The Victoria Times reporter said he asked Gagnon in an interview following an address by the accused at the University of Victoria whether there would be more violence in Quebec in promoting the aims of the separatist Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Mr. MacRae recalled Gagnon as telling him: "Don't forget that the biggest theft of dynamite in Quebec took place only recently and it has not yet been recovered."

During the interview, the reporter said, Gagnon told him he was convinced that the "viable separatism" advocated by Parti Quebecois Leader Rene Levesque was not going to work.

"The only way to do it was by revolution," MacRae quoted Gagnon as saying.

Gagnon, a socialist, and Larue-Langlois, a former CBC television producer, are charged with conspiring to effect a change of government through violence or threat of violence between Jan. 1, 1968 and Nov. 30, 1970.

Also charged is Pierre Vallieres, author of White Niggers of America, who is to appear for trial during the September assizes.

Mr. MacRae said Gagnon laughed at his question as to the size of the separatist-terrorist FLQ by explaining that such things were not revealed.

Mr. Justice Laurent Belanger rejected all defence objections to Mr. MacRae's testimony.

City Protesters Alaska-Bound

Facing what they admit is a "formidable chore," two delegates from Victoria left this morning for Anchorage, Alaska, to present briefs opposing a proposed atomic test blast on Amchitka Island in October.

Kurt Horn, president of the Cowichan-Malahat branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control, and Seiichi Tanaka, a graduate student in physics at the University of Victoria, will address a hearing Friday held by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

The planned Amchitka explosion — which follows one in October, 1970, of 1.2 megatons — will be a 3.5 megaton test detonated underground.

There was a significant protest movement across North America before the first test was conducted. About 3,000 persons participated in a demonstration in downtown Victoria and 4,000 students blocked traffic at the U.S.-Canada border at Douglas, Wash., for an hour.

424 LETTERS

Horn and Tanaka are taking with them 424 letters from individuals protesting the planned blast as well as 814 signatures on petitions.

They represent the efforts of a Victoria-based group organized to fight the atomic project. The group, Amchitka 2, is planning action over the next few months to inform interested parties of the dangers of an atomic explosion — particularly one of 3.5 megatons — on the island in the Aleutian chain.

Horn will present the official brief from Amchitka 2 and Tanaka will present his own brief as well as one in Japanese from two Japanese organizations which oppose the blast.

"We fervently hope and pray that we will have an impact on the decision," Horn said today before leaving from Victoria International Airport. "We are pleased they had a hearing. They didn't have to."

ONLY TWO

The one-day hearing in Anchorage follows a hearing in Juneau Wednesday, the only two hearings on the west coast of the continent.

"When we have hundreds of thousands of people doing something, then we will get somewhere," Horn said. "The majority of people will shake their heads in disapproval but they never get off their butts to do anything.

"We need more people to become vocal. If they would just ponder the consequences of a disaster occurring, then they would become vocal quickly enough."

A spokesman for Amchitka 2 said the individual letters and signatures on petitions took just three days to collect. About $400 was also donated to the cause. The trip for the two delegates is expected to cost around $600.

OTHER BACKING

The Amchitka 2 brief to be presented has the backing of various other environmental organizations in the area. The Delta branch of SPEC, Amchitka Action Group and groups from points up-Island have given their support.

The New Democratic Party of Vancouver Island has submitted a written brief to the hearing, protesting the possibility of earthquakes and tidal waves in the surrounding area.

Audience Part of Act In Deadwood Dick

By AUDREY JOHNSON

If Deadwood Dick had nothing else going for it, it had 100 per cent audience participation.

Of course it does have other virtues. Like some pleasantly talented people whose ability shines out amid the amorphously happy doings on stage.

The "mellerdrama," presented presumably as a spoof of the Victoria era, opened to the sound of cheers, laughter and boos at McPherson Playhouse, Wednesday night.

It goes on again tonight and Friday with curtains at 8, and Saturday at 6 and 9 p.m.

It's a rootin' tootin' hips and holster play with a sloppy story line (who cares?) and music well-selected, arranged and played on a honky tonk piano by that gifted gal, Christine Chester.

THOUSAND PITIES

Incidentally, in passing, it was a thousand pities Miss Chester was not allowed to blend into the proceedings with a little between-stint action.

That scrupulously turned back was twice as obtrusive as a bit of keyed-in action would have been.

As for the good-sized audience, many of whom, male and female, were in costume, it often rivaled the on-stage show.

It entered into the spirit with gusto and there were times when the audience ad libs far outstripped the play's gags for humor and imagination.

There is no denying that LOVE bridged the footlights on this occasion, with everybody in the mood for a romp and devil take artistic credibility.

But getting down to the nitty-gritty of criticism, the whole thing would have been wilder and funnier if the general pace had been of a more sizzling nature.

There were episodes when the tempo mounted an encouraging fever, but there were too many sagging spots for a lasting effect.

WRONG LOCALE

As a production it lacked tightness and clear style and in that respect quite failed to show the usually adept hand of director John Krich.

And it still appears to this writer that the very least, the locale might have been switched from the Dakotas to British Columbia and that the American folk names might easily have been changed without in the least inhibiting the script.

The cast included Tony Nicholson, Rich Mole, Bernice McGowan, Judy Dagg, Barry Bowman, Archie Bain, Pat Stewart, Corinne Bush, Rick Way, Doug Cameron, Ron Way, Terry Barber and Monika Forberger.

Entre-act performers were Erika Kurth, Mary Grant, Bev Green, Mrs. E. Chase and D. Cameron and the Bell Buoys — Hall Jordan, Jeremy Hine, Graeme Scott, and Don Matheson.

OKLAHOMA CITY — Television star Art Linkletter says television is to blame for destroying family ties. He said drugs may not be as much to blame for the generation gap as television. "Parents too often use the television as a baby sitter. They too often use this as a substitute to reading and active participation, worst of all," Linkletter said. "I will indict television for this 100 per cent because it is a very seductive play toy and television in the average American home has practically killed conversation.

"Parents and families go through years of being in the same room every night and they never say anything to each other except turn the channel, you dope!" he said.

HAMBURG, West Germany — Six bare-breasted girls wearing only hot pants carried a litter bearing sex publisher Joachim Driessen to his day in court through the streets of Hamburg Wednesday. Driessen, 37-year-old head of the controversial St. Pauli Zeitung, a weekly paper devoted exclusively to sex, is charged with publishing and circulating indecent writings. At the entrance to the law courts, officials forced Driessen to get down from the feather-decorated litter and to walk into court on his own feet.

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Mrs. Lillian Tracht Schaaf, 76, who had not owned a pet in 20 years, left $900,000 in her will for the construction and operation of a home "for friendless animals." Employees of the shelter, she added, must be "lovers of animals."

BRISBANE, Australia — The richer you are the longer you live, according to statistics released today by a Queensland University economist. Ron Bunton said that rich people could afford better diets, better medical attention and less hazardous occupations. A comparison of the average ages of deaths in 1964-65 and 1968-69, he said, showed males that left estates of more than $100,000 lived about three years longer than all other males. Those leaving estates of more than $200,000 lived about four years longer.

LONDON — Ringo Starr has signed to play in Blindman, a film offering him his first straight dramatic role, a spokesman for the former Beatle said today. The Saul Swimmer-Tony Anthony production will go before the cameras June 7 in Italy and Spain. The former rock drummer previously had roles in Candy, The Magic Christian and two Beatles films, Help and A Hard Day's Night.

Democracy Query To Be Raised

OSLO (UPI) — Norway will raise the question of reintroduction of democracy in Portugal and Greece during the ministerial session of the NATO council at Lisbon next week, well informed sources said Wednesday night.

The Country Doctor

LIKE ANY NEW ORGANIZATION seeking publicity and a place in the political sun, Mr. Paul Hellyer's Action Canada movement does not spare the adjectives in describing the ills of the country which it proposes to cure, nor does it shrink from exaggeration in proposing the improvements which it hopes to bring about. These aspects are understandable — as is the somewhat mixed bag of supporters with whom Mr. Hellyer has launched his campaign.

Most of the defects in our national life against which Mr. Hellyer complains are deplored by many other Canadians — they are recognized as problems which demand solutions as soon as possible. But most Canadians hold the belief that the country's affairs may best be administered within the framework of existing political parties and that new maverick groups are not the best mechanism through which to effect reforms.

Having said all that, it must still be added that Mr. Hellyer's group and others like it can render a valuable service to the Canadian community by focusing attention on conditions and trends that should be rectified. Any government in power, even for a short time, can become complacent about conditions, or bogged down in difficulties, or temporarily stalled by obstacles, and an outside voice of criticism may serve to direct public attention and spark renewed efforts by the administration.

Mr. Hellyer describes his group as a non-politically-partisan, centre-of-the-road movement, and claims that "a lot of people are ready for an alternative (to the three major parties), which we hope to offer with a movement built up from the grass roots."

Some of the movement's aims cut right into today's major national problems: immediate and fair tax cuts to aid full employment, immediate and mandatory wage and price guidelines to halt inflation, a housing program (Mr. Hellyer's specialty), federally financed urban transportation systems, decentralization of authority, streamlining of the bureaucracy, and so on.

There will be wide approval, for instance, of the protest against bureaucracy, which in a complicated, technological age people increasingly feel is impinging on their lives; of the policy of regaining control and ownership of Canadian industrial enterprises, which Mr. Hellyer favors; of the demand to cut taxes, hold prices stable and increase employment. In these areas Mr. Hellyer can touch some sympathetic nerves. The government's total answer to Mr. Hellyer, of course, would be to cure the ills that he points out — which is largely what it has been trying to do all along.

How Mr. Hellyer's identified goals are to be achieved is not clear, nor can we know whether his panaceas would be more effective than Mr. Trudeau's or anyone else's. The real test would have to be implementation by Mr. Hellyer, of course, and that is something we may not have a chance to see.

Meanwhile, on the Fish Farm

A REPORT FROM THE Oceanic Institute in Hawaii describes successes in controlled spawning, fertilization and rearing of a species of edible fish. This is but one of numerous experimental projects in various parts of the world, from the University of Victoria to Taiwan and elsewhere, revealing progress in scientific production of protein-rich food sources from the sea or fresh water. Each indicates the possibilities open to man to feed the hungry people of the world — provided population explosions do not outpace increased food production.

Progressive research has achieved encouraging breakthroughs in overcoming hazards which arise in man's interference with the life and death pattern of fish. Fish farming, it is becoming increasingly apparent, is feasible. And if fish farming is conducted in enclosed water — as it is in some parts of the world — it is possible both to stimulate spawning at desired times, speed the growth of fry to maturity and eliminate a number of natural causes which reduce the normal size of schools of fish through the inroads of predators.

But while science is priding itself, justifiably, on its accomplishments, reports come in regularly from saltwater commercial fisheries of practices which jeopardize entire species because competitive fishermen of different nations have yet to abide by an adequate international conservation convention.

We are learning, some countries more slowly than others, that the wealth of the sea is no more inexhaustible than that of the land. Unhappily, this realization is leading some fishermen to get all they can while the getting is good. As long as that inclination survives there is danger of extinction for numerous species.

It is possible that fish farming, with the "farmers" keeping the stock for their own commercial use, may exclude those guilty of uneconomical exploitation. At present the seas outside territorial and fisheries jurisdiction are "open range." Surely the course of prudence, for everyone's benefit, is to use that range sensibly. The end of unbridled exploitation is foreseeable. Without international regulation the farm may be the only answer — unless, or until, overpopulation among humans makes even that a futile effort to maintain subsistence.

Beclouding the Objective Still More

THE CORRUPTION IN SOUTH Vietnam is regarded by critics of the war as ample reason to terminate American participation in the conflict as soon as possible. When South Vietnamese officials openly admit the existence of corruption the argument of the critics becomes overwhelming.

Nguyen Cao Ky, the vice-president of South Vietnam, recently spoke to the School of Social Welfare in Saigon and testified, in effect, on the side of the critics: "South Vietnam," he said, "is like a sinking boat, with a deceptively good coat of paint outside, and a helmsman who is unfaithful, disloyal and dishonest. A whirl of wind and the boat will sink to the bottom . . . Corruption is rampaging. It is so widespread that corrupt officials have a price list for every transaction, big or small, requiring their services. Jungle law rules in all government echelons. Corruption has become public, open, and as it were, an incurable disease."

What more could the many critics of the war ask for? The demand for an early withdrawal date that would ensure the safety of U.S. troops has been given even greater weight by Mr. Ky's remarks.

". . . I gained a lot of admiration for Communism . . . unfortunately I just can't stand it . . ."

FROM CALGARY — By JAMES H. GRAY

A Sluggish Quest for Alberta Oil

NEVER has the Canadian oil industry had it so good! It is not only selling all the oil it can produce, it is selling it at the best well head price in 15 years. Purchase contracts await every new gas discovery, at prices rising steadily each year. Yet the industry is in the doldrums and millions of acres of highly prospective wildcat country go undrilled.

Gray

The trouble, as Premier Harry Strom sees it, is the absence of a big new discovery that would bring interest back to Alberta. A big discovery like Swan Hills in 1957 or Rainbow in 1965 is always good for a five-year boom. Alberta has not had such a find since Rainbow.

Premier Strom, however, has chosen an explanation that lets his government off the hook. A strong case can be made that the recession is the direct result of wrong-headed government policies. These policies developed from the advice from the international companies which the Alberta Government eventually translated into government policy.

Everybody In

When the federal government owned the mineral rights to the lands of Western Canada, anybody could, and just about everybody did, get into the oil business. It was done by filing on a few sections of government leases at 25 cents per acre. The system had one drawback about which oilmen frequently griped long after the rights went to the provinces, along with the system. Legitimate wildcatters could never put large enough spreads together to utilize modern exploration techniques. They were always surrounded by small bore speculators getting a free ride on their exploration expenditures.

After several false starts following the Leduc discovery in 1947, the Manning Government eventually devised a system that was everything the oil barons could have asked for. It put the boots to the small fry in favor of the system granting exclusive rights to huge blocks of acreage.

In Abeyance

The most popular size was a reservation 12 miles square — 92,000 acres. These reservations were granted on renewable 10 year terms. By spending comparatively small sums on seismographic mapping and drilling the odd exploratory test, the major companies could hold the reservations in abeyance indefinitely.

When the existence of the Alberta system got noised abroad, there was a rush of the international companies with gobs of U.S. tax money to buy up all the reservations available. Today uncounted millions of acres of Alberta oil and gas rights are filed but by no means forgotten in the vaults of the big companies. One company reports owning 27,000,000 acres; another has 44,000,000; another has 22,000,000; another has 10,000,000.

One company which reported holding 64,000,000 gross acres last year reported that it had drilled a grand total of 54 exploratory wells. That is less than one well per million acres. At such a tardy rate of testing the Alberta basin, it could be generations before Premier Strom gets his spectacular discovery.

Clipping Fringe

A second factor contributing to the slow-down was the rule-change forced through some years ago by the government which put a lot of fringe well drillers out of business.

For many years Alberta's oil production was pro-rated to market demand. In establishing what each well could produce, the first factor considered was the recovery of the cost of drilling the well. Each well had an "economic allowance" which would repay the cost of the well over a five-year period. This allowance provided the smaller companies with a tremendous incentive to drill around the edges of new fields or in marginal areas. If they struck oil at all, even a small flow, they would get their money back.

Many hundreds of such wells were drilled. In the days of severe curtailment of markets, the oil produced under the economic allowance formula bulked so large in the total picture that there was no room left for the oil from the big field with better wells. Thus wells capable of making 25,000 barrels a day were often shut back to 250 barrels a day to make room for the oil from 1,000 wells which could only produce 25 barrels a day.

As the big companies owned the high-producing fields they fought the economic allowance bitterly for a decade. The Manning Government yielded in the end and adopted a formula favoring the rich fields and penalizing the poor wells.

Without the economic allowance there is no incentive to drill marginal wells. This not only has meant hundreds of fewer wells drilled every year. It has meant fewer discoveries and field extensions and a lot less money for the provincial treasury. And it all results from policy decisions taken years ago in the heyday of Manning Socred euphoria in Alberta.

FROM WASHINGTON — By JAMES RESTON

Old Barriers Are Being Broken Down

IN THE last few days, the French have finally accepted the idea of Britain joining Europe; the Chinese have turned a more genial face to the outside world; the United States and the Soviet Union have agreed on a new formula for discussing the $200-billion-a-year arms race; the moderates in Israel and the Arab states have been making some progress toward peace, and even President Nixon and Lyndon Johnson have been meeting together in Texas and agreeing that, maybe after all, the course of history is more important than anything else.

Reston

Well, there is a lot of cynicism here about all this, but something interesting and significant seems to be happening in the world. The course of history in the largest sense is much more hopeful than the newspaper headlines. Despite all the arguments between the political parties, the races and the nations, the elemental facts of life seem to be challenging and influencing the actions of all nations, at least in the advanced capitals of the world.

They all defend the ideological prejudices of the past, but modern technology, modern transportation and communication are clearly changing their policies at home and abroad. Wherever you look now, the big nations and the big shots are now doing precisely what they insisted they would not do just a few short years ago.

President Nixon, one of the original ideological anti-Communist warriors, is now concentrating on an accommodation with Moscow and Peking and following Keynesian economic policies he used to denounce. President Pompidou in Paris is bringing Britain into the European Common Market on terms President de Gaulle denounced. Chancellor Willy Brandt in West Germany is seeking an accommodation with Moscow and the Communist nations of Eastern Europe. President Sadat in Cairo is risking his political life for an accommodation with Israel. And the elders of the Democratic party in the United States are rallying to support President Nixon against the nationalistic military policies of their own majority leader in the Senate.

Beneficent Groundswell

So underneath all the contentions of local and national politics, which divide men, it would seem there are elemental forces working in the world today that are affecting all peoples and compelling compromise and revision. China is coming out of isolation for practical reasons. She does not wish to stand aside while the post-Vietnam world is settled by the other major powers. Similarly, Europe is uniting for practical purposes. It cannot compete with the new industrial, military and political worlds of Russia and the United States unless it unites and integrates its policies, politics and economies. The American South, similarly, cannot keep pace with the North if it has a separate educational, legal and commercial base. Israel and the Arab states cannot share common lands and waterways without compromise and revision. China is coming out of isolation for practical reasons. She does not wish to stand aside while the post-Vietnam world is settled by the other major powers. Similarly, Europe is uniting for practical purposes. It cannot compete with the new industrial, military and political worlds of Russia and the United States unless it unites and integrates its policies, politics and economies. The American South, similarly, cannot keep pace with the North if it has a separate educational, legal and commercial base. Israel and the Arab states cannot share common lands and waterways without compromise — so whatever politicians have said in the past, they are forced to talk and compromise and adjust to the irresistible tides that are forcing nations to fight or co-operate.

All this clearly is very tentative. The rhetoric of the past still dominates politics everywhere, but very definitely, if very slowly, the fear of war and of monetary and economic anarchy is breaking down the old local, regional and even national barriers, and bringing the concept of interdependence into the politics of the world.

The reconciliation of Britain and France is only the latest illustration of the point. In the first days after the last World War, even General de Gaulle understood the unifying forces operating in the world.

Different Course

Later on, of course, he changed, and his doctrines of nationalism and prestige led him to veto Britain in the Common Market. But the forces of life are more enduring than the lives and prestige of even great men, and here is Pompidou taking a wholly different course.

It will be a long time before the principle of interdependence is dominant in world or even in American politics. It has not even conquered localism in the United States today, but, increasingly, and particularly with the thoughtful young men and women of the rising generation in this country, it is a powerful and growing influence.

We are now beginning to see, not only a new pragmatism among politicians at home and abroad, a willingness to deal with the objective facts of war, industry, money and pollution, and to see the interdependence of communities and nations in these fields — but also a new and wider patriotism among the young, an interest and concern for the common yearnings and sufferings of the human family.

The news of recent days is therefore not merely political but philosophical and historical, the compromises on arms, the emergence of China, the diplomatic talks in the Middle East and the movement of Britain toward Europe — these are only glimpses and symbols of the coming transition to a more orderly and unified world.

"MR. WILSON SAYS THIS SHOULD READ JAIL 1986!"

Looking Back

From the Times of May 27, 1911:

Vancouver — The Vancouver Trades and Labor Council, which is composed of delegates from 52 labor unions, last night decided to tie up the town. Their slogan, according to the statement of one union leader, is to "beat the bosses or bust." The plan is to follow the system tried in France and other European countries to declare a general holiday, which has been selected to be June 3, and from that time to have a cessation of work throughout the city.

Letters

Canadian Patriot

During the Commons debate of April 28th, Mr. G. H. Aitken, member for Parry Sound-Muskoka questioned Prime Minister Trudeau about the official recognition of one-time medical missionary to China, Norman Bethune.

Prime Minister Trudeau replied that the matter was under study by the Historic Sites and Monuments Board, adding: "As an old China hand myself I must say it is somewhat surprising to see this great Canadian recognised more in China than in Canada."

The answer is simple. China Reconstructs of June 1967 contains an article by Chairman Mao Tse-tung (In Memory of Norman Bethune) — a reprint dated December 21, 1939. Mao starts: "Comrade Norman Bethune, a member of the Canadian Communist Party, was fifty when he was sent (to China) by the Communist Party of Canada and the U.S.A." He concludes: "Every Communist must learn the true communist spirit from Comrade Bethune."

With all respect for Norman Bethune's medical skills, I charge that he hardly qualifies for a monument as a "great" patriot! Or will we soon be directing a monument to Lenin and Stalin on Parliament Hill? — Patricia Young, Vancouver, B.C.

Socialism and Religion

In a recent Papal declaration (May 14/71) Pope Paul VI called on Christians to involve themselves actively in meeting the needs of the day and cautioned that the fact that some persons embrace ideological positions incompatible with Christianity, notably Marxists, should not necessarily discourage Christians from co-operating. But Christians should at the same time be on their guard not to go beyond this co-operation into becoming beguiled by philosophies that may be not only dangerous but also inadequate to deal with complexities of life.

Well the Pope can rest easy. The Socialist Party of Canada looks upon the Christian religion and most other religions as well, as a dogma that indicts man as a sinner etc., condemns him and beseeches him to be something different than his so-called sinning nature will permit. Socialists on the other hand use their Marxian materialist conception of history to endeavor to understand the nature of man and his needs. Rather than condemn man for anti-social behavior we investigate the circumstances of his environment that give rise to this anti-social behaviour. We consider it rather axiomatic that if socially harmonious human behaviour is desirable, and we think it is, then the present anti-social for sale-motivated society of world capitalism must be replaced with a democratically-owned and motivated society aimed at satisfying the material needs of man. Then and only then will the aesthetic and, if you like, spiritual nature of man get a real chance to flourish. In the meantime we regard religion as outright cruel as it riddles man with feelings of guilt and inadequacy by beseeching him to live like an angel in a hell environment. — Larry Tickner, 589 Nora.

The More Change in Vietnam The More Things Stay the Same

By FRANCIS HOPE
New Statesman

The war in Vietnam has run so long that nobody is less than word-perfect. The countryside itself is as familiar as a childhood scene revisited in a dream: the faded greys and greens of the dry-season delta, peasants in black pyjamas and flat conical hats bicycling into the middle of nowhere or scurrying across the fields under a yoke loaded with bundles, helicopters zipping like mosquitoes overhead.

Saigon is exactly as advertised: too many scooters, too many stolen U.S. army goods, too many huge Americans lumpily stuffed into pouchy uniforms, too many flower-like Vietnamese girls with stone-hard eyes. (A few are actually boys.)

In the field, GIs tell it like Time says they do. "You see those barrels over there, like gasoline drums? That's aviation fuel. What they do is they sling a dozen of those drums under a bird and then they drop them right out on the jungle where the enemy's hiding, and then a gunship shoots tracer bullets into the fuel and wow! up it goes. Barbecued Charlie!"

Black soldiers wear Black Power berets and carry Black Panther sticks, and spend rather a lot of time exchanging soul-brother handshakes, a complicated game of pat-a-cake which (for once) not everybody has really mastered. Posters warn against drugs; peasants hope the war will be over soon; politicians endlessly discuss each other's veiled intentions. It is exactly what you might expect; deja vu, and on television. It could go on for years.

Officially, however, this is a time of stirring change. "I don't say the whole thing's over." I heard this time and again, "but it's certainly much different than what it was a year ago."

The alleged points of difference are: (1) the proportion of country now controlled by the government; (2) the state of the economy; (3) the morale and performance of the South Vietnamese army; (4) the enemy's resources, which really are — seriously this time — showing the pinch of the Cambodian operation last year.

As a corollary of all these, there is the dwindling number of American troops: 280,000 now and 180,000 by December. Americans and their allies will say, blushing at the phrases's banality like a man owning up to domestic bliss: "Vietnamisation is working."

They would say that, wouldn't they? The Americans have a war which must end by 1972. So the symptoms of victory are on display.

A much favored one is the "Chiu Hoi" or "Open Arms" program, under which people from enemy-held areas may give themselves up. If they turn in a weapon,

Beggars in Saigon

the government will even pay for it. It will also keep them for 90 days in a "re-indoctrination centre," and then give them six months' liberty before taking them into the army. The Chiu Hoi figures are often presented as proof that things are now running Saigon's way.

In one province alone, there may be 100 or even 200 a month. But this does not mean that a number of Vietnamese are suddenly realizing that John Stuart Mill was right and Karl Marx wrong.

Rather it means that peasants in a Viet Cong area are suffering from malaria, tired of being recruited as porters, short of food, and not afraid of being shot by the government. Still, that is more than could be said in the days of Diem, when the army was recruited by press gang and defections were a brisk two-way traffic.

The showpiece of pacification is the Mekong delta, south and west of Saigon. "Go down into the delta," somebody said, "and see the prosperity there. They've got tractors, miracle rice, land reform, self-defence forces, no American troops. We don't know that it's completely pacified, of course, but if you'd been there a year ago you wouldn't recognize the place."

I duly went, and found the place very recognizable. Chance led me to an area without either rice or tractors; but I doubt if there was anything untypical in the self-defence force, who confessed that the only thing which really frightened the communists was the American bombing, not themselves.

"Please write in your paper that the land reform is very bad," said one soldier. "I was a farmer, but now I am serving my country. My father rented my farm to another man who will not serve his country, and now the government has given the farm to him." I hereby keep my promise, though I doubt if it proves much either way.

The tractors, however, do exist. I met a man in Saigon who had sold $4 million worth last year, and he had only 20 per cent of the market. His customers told him that they were growing plenty of rice, but were not so foolish as to declare it all to the government.

He was immensely bullish, spoke flawless Yankee, and was preparing a seminar on "the readjustment of values in a post-war Vietnam." (Real estate values, I presume, said one suspicious European.)

Conversations at a humbler level revealed a familiar pattern. There were more complaints of rising prices than applause at the country's new prosperity. The rate of increase has been slower in the last six months, and the money is finding its way somewhere, but Vietnam remains an economy distorted by war, a moderately poor agricultural country which is still reeling from an influx of dollars, trucks and soldiers.

Readers of Catch 22 would recognize it at once as Milo Minderbinder territory. One American major told me that he had been watching the garbage disposal unit in action at Danang. "Hell, just the garbage they'll miss when we leave . . ."

Garbage is one of the sinews of modern war, and the Vietnamisation of garbage may be a problem. At the moment it works as well as all systems where the servants get the cast-offs. I watched a battery of artillerymen being moved from one firebase to another in huge ponderous helicopters, Chinooks and Sky Cranes. The perimeter of the landing pad was a barbed-wire entanglement thick with litter, and as the troops moved out the villagers were creeping up to forage. "Here mama-san, mama-san," one soldier shouted, "take this." He threw a large empty cardboard carton over the wire, and a woman began dragging it downhill like an ant with a twig four times its size.

"Modernize your kitchen," shouted one of the soldiers after her, and they all laughed. It gets boring waiting for transport.

The Americans are discovering the lessons of 18th-century British diplomacy: money spent on getting other people to fight your wars is a sound if unproductive investment.

But there is a problem of personnel. The South Vietnamese are training pilots, but a complex like

Land where garbage is prized Is Milo Minderbinder territory

Danang runs on a whole orchestra of skilled people: flight controllers, maintenance men, radar operators, systems analysts and, indeed, garbage disposers. Military no less than civil aid runs up against the problem of how much the recipient can absorb.

In a few years' time, South Vietnam is supposed to have the world's seventh largest air force. Opinions differ on the performance of South Vietnamese combat troops — roughly speaking, the more senior your American informant, the warmer his verdict — but hardly anybody speaks highly of the Vietnamese administrative machine.

Of course, there is nothing the Americans would like better than to transfer their efforts to the technical or civilian field. A lieutenant working as a civilian affairs adviser told me proudly about his efforts to install sanitation in villages.

"I have these 50-gallon drums, two to each house, and we bury one real deep with stones at the bottom for a soakaway, and set the other up by the house with a pipe and water, and try to persuade them to — you know — go to the bathroom there instead of anywhere."

My wife asked if he demonstrated the equipment himself. "No ma'am, I'd be too nervous."

But he obviously found job-satisfaction. "Although sometimes it's frustrating, just knowing what they ought to do in a certain situation, and when I tell them they won't do it. Still, I guess it's their country. I can never get over the fact that these people developed their own civilization hundreds and thousands of years before us, and now we've gone so far and they just haven't developed at all. I guess it's just their psychology and their way of looking at things."

Unfortunately goodwill is not what is needed. The medics could bind up wounds for a boy who had lost half his foot from a mine some months ago, but he wasn't saying whether he stepped on it or had been helping to lay it at the time.

'It's just their psychology and way of looking at things'

"We Americans are only doing two things in this country," one civilian said to me, "giving, or killing. Killing's worse, but neither is what they need."

It seems a cruel thing to say. Who would deny any comfort to this war-scarred landscape—a cliche which takes on new force when you fly over it, and see the acne-rash of bomb craters, neat round pits with a little green slime at the bottom and another ring of green round the edge, running like infection across the fields?

Even the British are supplying civilian aid, perhaps with a certain relief that now we can help the Americans without second thoughts. Let the Vietnamese get on with killing each other, while the Anglo-Saxons fly hospital planes for the government—a right-wing mirror image of the pacifists who drove republican ambulances in Spain. That would be the Vietnamization policy working all right.

A Hoover in Every Garage

By RUSSELL BAKER

The progress of paranoia: In 1936, America knew who had caused practically all the trouble. It was Herbert Hoover.

When babies awoke screaming in the night, it was because they dreamed that Herbert Hoover was coming to get them. Everybody knew that Herbert Hoover took away little babies and put them in breadlines. Herbert Hoover had a gentle face, but America could not be deceived by appearances.

★ ★ ★

In 1937, complications were on the wind. Communism was competing with Herbert Hoover. Sitting around the potbellied stove that year, we would say: "All the trouble has been caused by either Herbert Hoover or communism," and then move on to talk about baseball.

Carl Hubbell was pitching for the New York Giants, and some fan of the Brooklyn Dodgers who hated the Giants would say: "Carl Hubbell is Herbert Hoover's fault," and another Dodgers fan would shake his head in a "no" and say, "Use the old bean, pa; think a minute. Carl Hubbell — Karl Marx. Oh, they're clever, those Reds."

Actually, most of us were not really that far gone as yet, and the Second World War cleared the nation's mind. The enemy was Germany and Japan, not communism.

Personified in lovable, grandfatherly Josef Stalin, communism stripped off its wolf skin and stood revealed as our great Russian ally. We applauded in 1945 and settled back to live happily ever after.

Suddenly, 1946. Communism was the enemy after all. Communism and Franklin Roosevelt. Together they had cooked up the whole war.

★ ★ ★

It was very complicated. That was what made it so bad. Nobody could understand it. Then 1947 came, and 1952. The country was being eaten from within by communism. Now we dreaded to hear baby cry. We knew that it was no longer because baby had dreamed of Herbert Hoover.

It was bad, all right, but it had the virtue of simplicity. When a revolution's outcome displeased us, it was because communism had outwitted us. Nowadays everybody and everything is the cause of all the trouble.

Here are some blacks who know that all the trouble flows from a plot among white liberals to make genocide official. Here is a warlike old man with a Bible. He knows who is making all the trouble: hippies, Doctor Spock, unwashed bums. The hippies know better. When a hippie baby cries in the night, it is because he has been dreaming of the Establishment.

★ ★ ★

This brings a smile of scorn from men high in Government, for they know the trouble comes from the media.

Congressmen are not so sure. Some know that the White House is right; others know that all the trouble is caused by J. Edgar Hoover, the new left, the Black Panthers and the memory of Martin Luther King.

They are all wrong. Here, surely is a piece of dirty work without modern parallel. Who else could possibly have brought it about but — ? Of course, Herbert Hoover.

Environmental monument for future generations

Nature Reserves Priceless Heritage

By ADAM F. SZCZAWINSKI

(Dr. Szczawinski is curator of Botany at the Provincial Museum. This is the fourth in a series by the museum staff.)

For some time the general consensus among biologists in British Columbia was that certain limited areas within this biologically most diversified province should be preserved in as natural a state as possible, in order to provide suitable areas for future biological and environmental studies. To do so it was necessary to choose them and set them aside as ecological reserves.

Dr. V. Krajina, Professor of Ecology at the University of British Columbia and a member of the Terrestrial Committee under the International Biological Program which Canada joined in 1964 with 60 other countries, gives these reasons for establishing ecological reserves:

- Outdoor laboratories for biologists, foresters, wild-life specialists, agriculturalists, soil scientists and many others, whose research will serve dual purposes of pure science and resource management.
- Conservation of all kinds of natural environmental conditions imperative for survival and maintenance of large, heterogeneous natural gene pools of different organisms.
- Outdoor classrooms for the intellectual education and aesthetic appreciation of the increasing numbers of people who consider primeval landscapes a cultural heritage which should not be completely alienated from them.

During the past legislature session Lands Minister Williston introduced a bill entitled "Ecological Reserves Act" of which the preamble reads: "Whereas the Province and British Columbia is favoured with a wide variation of climate and topography resulting in a multiplicity of biogeoclimatic zones." "And whereas it is considered highly desirable in the public interest to set aside and reserve areas of Crown Land representative of distinctive ecosystems for present and future scientific study." "And whereas it is the intention of this Legislature that one hundred such areas be selected and reserved for this purpose by the end of the year 1975."

This is no doubt a very significant Act which should produce 100 reserves so necessary for the province, Canada and the world.

On May 6, the government approved 27 ecological reserves to protect its flora and fauna for scientific study and conservation. These are not intended to be used as recreational areas. This action was taken by the cabinet under the new legislation which became law recently. Among these are six within provincial parks. These have been classed as Nature Conservancy areas and are extremely valuable biologically.

Of reserves outside parks, probably the most significant is the east half of East Redonda Island. This reserve covers an area of 15,350 acres and is one of the largest. The smallest reserve is 1.5-acre Canoe Island near Valdes Island.

The ecological reserves should be considered an essential part of the preservation of the natural environment, supplementing the provincial and national parks and wilderness areas. The idea is far-sighted and highly desirable in the public interest and should be considered an environmental monument for all generations to come.

SONY HIGH PERFORMANCE AT POPULAR PRICES

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

Houston

A part in 25 test wells in western Canada, Montana and North Dakota will be taken this summer by Houston Oils Ltd., of Calgary. The first is under way in southeastern Saskatchewan.

Other interests include 5 per cent in a test well to be drilled in the Abu Dhabi sector of the Arabian Gulf, operator being Amerada Hess. A 10 per cent interest is held in a 10 million acre concession in Indonesia where seismic work is set for August.

The company also participates in development of a second uranium-vanadium mine in San Miguel County, Colo., where production is expected in September.

Western

Work has started on Canada's first split-level shopping centre to contain three national department stores, the $22 million Londonderry mall in Edmonton of Western Realty Projects Ltd., Vancouver.

Retail areas will cover 700,000 square feet and major tenants will be Eaton's, Woolco, Hudson's Bay Co., Safeway and Famous Players, which will have two theatres. There will be 85 shops in addition.

Opening is set for August of next year.

Transocean

Record profit, revenues and oil production marked the year ended March 31, Reports Transocean Oil Inc., of Houston.

Daily average oil and gas production rose from 4,786 barrels a day in 1970 to 6,284 barrels a day, said the company, which is 51 per cent owned by Swift and Co., of Chicago.

Profit amounted to $6.1 million (50 cents a share) vs. $2.44 million (39 cents), based on oil and gas revenues 28 per cent higher at $11.35 million, up from $8.88 million.

In the last quarter profit was $1.87 million (15 cents) vs. $842,000 (13 cents).

420 Exhibitors Show For B.C. Trade Fair

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's fifth international trade fair opens next week with some 420 individual exhibitors from 18 counries combining in a unique information linkup.

Interested businessmen or purchasing agents have only to mention the product or industry or particular country they're interested in and a hostess will punch out a question on a computer terminal.

In a few seconds the inquirer will receive a printout listing the exhibitor's address, his local representative, five products or groups of products his firm makes, the pavilion he's in and his booth number.

The computer can also provide a list of similar products exhibited by the different companies and countries at the fair. It will give out on request a list of companies and exhibitors from each country as well.

Univac, a division of Sperry Rand Canada Ltd., provided computer access and the hardware involved. Terminals have been installed in the five trade fair pavilions, located on the Pacific National Exhibition grounds here.

The trade fair is the largest regularly-scheduled trade exposition on the continent. Almost 200 different products will be displayed, ranging from automobiles to woollen goods.

STARTED IN 1958

The first fair was held in 1958, when B.C. celebrated the founding of the Vancouver Island colony. Successive fairs followed in 1961, 1964 and 1967, Canada's centennial, and now 1971, with B.C. 100 years a member of Confederation. The three-year interval was stretched to four to make this year's fair a centennial event.

B.C.'s eye to the Pacific is represented with government displays from Japan, the Philippines, South Korea and Taiwan. Britain, France, West Germany, Denmark, The Netherlands, Ireland and Austria are also entered.

One exhibit comes from Alaska and another from Bulgaria, the only Communist country represented. India and Pakistan have also sent official exhibits.

Canada is well-represented by the departmens of labor, defence and regional economic expansion, while the B.C. government is participating through its department of industrial development, official sponsor of the fair. The Alberta government also has an exhibit.

The major Canadian corporate exhibits include CP Air, which has its headquarters here, Air Canada, B.C. Hydro, Alcan, Electrohome and the Bank of Montreal.

The fair, officially labelled ImpoExpo 71, opens June 2 when thousands of helium-filled centennial balloons will be released following an opening address by Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

Before it ends June 12, 10 cars from six countries will have been given away, visitors will have seen a "salute to B.C. and the world" — a 75-minute musical-comedy presentation with a cast of 50 — and a 100-mile B.C. centennial Indian relay race will have ended at the site.

Alta. Gas Trunk

Decision of the Alberta public utilities board this week will reduce Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd.'s previously reported earnings by ¼ of 1 per cent, to $2.35 a share for 1970.

The company said the board, in a retroactive decision, reduced the permitted level of return from 8¾ per cent to 8¼ per cent for the period July 1, 1970 - June 30, 1971.

This dropped transportation charges by $845,000 or 25 cents a share, with the resulting adjustment in earnings to $7.8 million to Dec. 31. For the three months ended March 31, the adjustment in rates is $450,000 (13 cents) leaving earnings at 60 cents a share.

Manhattan

Manhattan Continental Development Corp. shareholders have approved the sale of substantially all of the company's Canadian oil properties for $2.85 million cash. The sale will result in an extraordinary profit of approximately eight cents a share.

Robert C. Katz Manhattan president, said, "The monies received from this sale will place the company in a favorable position for acquisitions with demonstrated earnings."

Los Angeles-based Manhattan is traded on the Vancouver Stock Exchange and over-the-counter in the U.S.

Can. West. Gas

Canadian Western Natural Gas Co. Ltd., of Calgary, had net income of $1.9 million or $1.01 a share for the three months ended March 31, compared with $1.7 million or 90 cents a share in the corresponding period last year.

New rates authorized on an interim basis for two of the three months and an increase of 6,000 in Southern Alberta customers due to cold weather accounted for first-quarter revenue of $10.44 million up $1.44 million.

The increase in customers boosted sales to 27.5 million cubic feet.

IOS Chairman Directed To Testify

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A federal judge has ordered the man who ousted Bernard Cornfeld from IOS Ltd., the mutual fund company, to reply to questions and provide documents called for in a Securities and Exchange Commission subpoena.

The ruling Wednesday by District Court Judge Reynier J. Wortendyke could cut through a curtain of secrecy surrounding Swiss financial transactions.

IOS has its headquarters in Geneva, and its chairman, Robert L. Vesco, had sought to disssolve SEC subpoenas on grounds he would be subject to criminal prosecution in Switzerland if he replied to questions.

Vesco also is chief executive officer of International Controls Corp., a Fairfield, N.J., concern with diversified manufacturing interests.

Vesco was a major figure in providing financing for IOS after the mutual fund firm founded by Cornfeld suffered financial setbacks.

IOS was barred in 1967 from doing business in the United States under an SEC consent decree. One purpose of the current SEC investigation of IOS and ICC deals with questions about ICC's relationship with IOS in light of the 1967 ruling.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, MAY 27, 1971 —PAGE 11

Housing Plan Bared

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Ocean Cement Co. general manager L. J. Glassford said today the company is not in a position to go into details of its proposed 810-acre housing development in Colwood "until we clear a number of details with the Capital Regional District."

He made the comment today after declining to give the press copies of a presentation handed to directors of the regional board Wednesday.

Until Ocean Cement settles these details, "we are not going into any further details in our own planning."

AGREEMENT

The regional board agreed Wednesday to appoint a special committee to study the proposal and the company's request for designation of the site as a development area under the Municipal Act so it can apply to the district to enter into a land use contract.

The company's presentation, in a report entitled Ocean View, said the objective is to start work during 1972 and complete development in about 10 years.

The existing sand and gravel pit will eventually be phased out and developed residentially.

The pit represents about 100 of the 810 acres the company owns. The entire property lies roughly between Albert Head Lagoon and Painter Road and from Wishart Road to the sea.

The report suggests that the development area extend inland from its own property so that proposals for urban development "can be placed in a particular context."

NEW ROADS

Plans show Metchosin Road realigned inland and a waterfront road built to meet Metchosin Road in the south.

About 2,000 units of accommodation are planned — 400 single houses, 1,000 terrace, patio and other forms of cluster dwellings for low to medium income people and 600 apartment suites "principally in horizontal structures" for low and medium incomes.

Two hundred acres would be set aside for recreational purposes, including a 125-acre golf course. There would be 25 acres for shops and schools.

The report envisages three stages of development, the first including 200 dwelling units, realignment of Metchosin Road, preparation of land and the golf course, the second providing 1,000 dwelling units and the third 800 units.

The report said the total capital investment in land and improvements "may well amount to $45 million" and could represent a tax return of close to $750,000 a year.

LOSING THEIR MARBLES Wednesday night in front of the Empress Hotel were Greater Victoria politicians. Here Mayor Art Young of Esquimalt grimaces with determination, watched by an audience of real pros, as he goes down in sorry defeat with five other men against winner Mayor Frances Elford of Oak Bay. Besides being a woman, Mrs. Elford had never fingered a marble before in her life. Other contestants were Ald. Ove Witt of Victoria, Ald. Leslie Passmore of Saanich, Mayor Archie Galbraith of Central Saanich and Mayor Stanley Dear of Sidney.

ACUTE CARE BALLOT MAY GET FALL DATE

A referendum on acute care hospital construction in the Capital region may be ready to put to ratepayers this fall.

A preliminary step was taken by the Capital Region's hospital board Wednesday when it approved a recommendation that all hospitals in the district begin preparing a summary of their construction needs.

Asked today when there might be a vote, North Saanich Mayor Jim Cumming, who chairs the regional hospital board meetings, said "the fall or the earliest possible time."

Depending on what programs have been prepared in time, the referendum could present expansion plans for Royal Jubilee Hospital, the addition of a 75-bed acute care wing for the hospital not yet under construction in Central Saanich, expansion of the rehabilitation facilities at Gorge Road hospital and renovations at least but possibly new construction as well at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Not until the various hospitals' plans are in can a total be determined but it will likely be over $20 million.

Communities dying in front of TV sets—Campbell

Get Off Your 'Fat Bottoms!'

A re-examination of the "moral way in which people look at their community" was called for by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Wednesday.

"The very large number of fat-bottomed housewives and broad-bellied husbands who find it impossible to find time to spend in community activities is growing.

"There are hundreds of jobs going vacant at the community level because people won't pull themselves away from their commitments.

"Unless people are willing to contribute a few hours of their time a week their communities will die in front of their TV sets," he told a meeting of the Men's Canadian Club of Victoria at the Empress.

Speaking on Urban Life in The 70s, Campbell charged cities lack funds for programs vital to peoples' needs because of "colossal mismanagement of capital at the federal level."

As an example of mismanagement of funds he pointed to a recent federal scheme to spend $2,200,000 under the regional disparity program to install 650 underground parking facilities in Quebec City.

Another example, he said, is the use of capital for "social welfare to industries." He read a list of Canadian industries that have received federal subsidies of up to $5 million.

"My first prediction is that with that kind of priorities our cities will starve for capital in terms of those things we require as people."

Campbell criticized the "negatively oriented" attitude to development of municipal councils.

Municipal governments should be passing bylaws that encourage "positive development" in their communities.

By-laws that stifle positive development lead to "canyon-like highrise developments" like those in James Bay, he said.

Campbell said people who live in high density areas should pay part of the cost of maintaining "green belt" areas such as Central Saanich.

Strike by City Police 'Can't Be Ruled Out'

Contract negotiations between the Victoria police commission and the city force's union have apparently broken down before getting properly started.

Following a closed session Wednesday, union spokesman Kenneth Horsman said there are no more meetings planned and the possibility of a strike "can't be ruled out."

Commission chairman Mayor Courtney Haddock, who told the union Wednesday the city cannot grant more than a 7½ per cent, increase, said today the meeting was "completely informal" and not a negotiation session.

But Horsman said the police have been filing material with the commission to back up their case since last October.

"If they haven't begun in eight months, when should they begin?" Horsman said today.

Meanwhile, labor minister James Chabot said today the government has not changed its attitude towards threatened strikes by policemen and the government would "look very closely" at the possibility of preventing one here if the situation reached that point.

MEDIATION AVAILABLE

Chabot also said in an interview that the government is prepared to make available the services of a mediator to help settle the conflict.

Under the Mediation Commission Act, the government can ban any strike which it rules is against the public interest. Earlier police salary disputes in the Victoria area have been handled under a no-strike provincial policy.

The police union's main aim is to gain pay parity with forces on the Lower Mainland where first class constables are now earning $887 a month.

If Victoria police were to achieve this pay, they would be getting an increase of about 20 per cent over their 1970 contract, which pays first-class constables $728 a month.

At a membership meeting June 1, Horsman said, the union will discuss all possible methods of making their demands felt.

BEGGING

These will include strike, "begging" on the streets, and work slowdowns, Horsman said, all of which have been used recently in Canada in cities with forces who had a "very similar problem" to Victoria's.

Horsman said he can't say what the membership will decide, and any action will be taken "by their direction," but "strike can't be ruled out."

Haddock refused to say talks had broken off, adding the commission "enjoys good rapport with our officers."

"Negotiations haven't even started," Haddock said, but "I would certainly recommend 7½ per cent" when they do.

Referring to the police demands for parity with Vancouver, Haddock said "our city is in no position to compete with a large industrial city."

"People should not be underpaid, we can't afford to overpay, so it should be fair pay." The city's budget, already established, has allowed for a 7½ per cent increase in the police and firemen's pay in 1971.

Haddock added that "I would not personally agree to a one-year contract," which police are seeking.

Asked what his reaction was to the possibility of strikes, begging and slowdowns, Haddock said "I don't think we have the type of personnel" who would carry them out. "I am sure they realize we will go as far as we can go. I would be very unhappy to see any injection of bitterness" in the negotiations.

Negotiations between police unions in the other three core municipalities have not reached the stage where pay increases have been offered.

$41,000 Taken In Break-In; Largest Ever

Victoria police now estimate more than $41,000 of merchandise was taken from Woodward's Mayfair department store over the weekend, making the break-in the largest in Greater Victoria history.

The loss is listed at $41,180 and includes $25,640 worth of new watches, rings, lighters and other items taken from the watch department.

Two hundred and fifty used watches in for repair were stolen and are valued at $8,000.

Cameras, binoculars and film taken are valued at $5,080, with another $2,460 added for perfume.

In 1955, Rose's Jewellers, 1317 Douglas, was broken into and an estimated $30,000 worth of property stolen in the largest previous local break-in.

Uvic Inquiry Panel Named

A three-man review panel to look into the non-renewal of contracts of three University of Victoria faculty members has been appointed.

The panel is under chairman Colin McLaurin, former chief justice of the trial division of the Supreme Court of Alberta and former chancellor of the University of Alberta at Calgary.

Other members are University of British Columbia dean of science Dr. Vladimir Okulitch and Vancouver lawyer A. B. Carrothers.

DELAY EXPECTED

However, a delay in proceedings of the panel is expected because of the appeal of the three professors to the visitor of the university, Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson.

Nicholson has had no comment on the appeal to date and any communication with the three appellants is stalled by the absence of the professors' lawyer, J. J. Gow, who is on holidays until next week.

The panel was nominated by Chief Justice J. O. Wilson of the B.C. Supreme Court after the full professors of Uvic, in meetings earlier this month, suggested the move.

The appeal to the visitor was made on May 19 and seeks a fair hearing for the three professors. One of the appeal's stipulations is that any proceedings involving the dispute "be inhibited and stayed."

AWAIT ACTION

This means that before the panel can start its deliberations, and before the professors can present their side of the case, the visitor must take some kind of action.

According to the Universities Act of 1963 the visitor has "authority to do all those acts which pertain to visitors," and a dictionary definition calls the visitor "a person of high rank who serves as the highest authority and last court of appeal at a university."

Faculty Association president Dr. Charles Doyle said he though the appeal to the visitor should supercede any proceedings by the review panel. "I'm not an expert on it, but I should think that would be the case," he said.

'MUST SET TERMS'

McLaurin, the panel chairman, said Wednesday the panel has yet to determine the terms of reference for the investigation. "I have a big bundle of stuff to read through but there's not much point until we set the terms of reference," he said.

Uvic information officer Floyd Fairclough said the panel will probably be meeting shortly to set out the terms.

Another aim of the panel is to investigate the manner in which the Canadian Association of University Teachers handled its part of the contract dispute.

The CAUT censured Uvic president Bruce J. Partridge earlier this month for "delaying and obstructing" a resolution of the three cases. The three professors whose contracts have not been renewed are English professor Dr. William Goede, chemistry professor Dr. Tikam Jain and philosophy instructor Toby Graff.

TO CHURCH THEY CLOP

Horses will go to church Sunday morning at St. Stephen's Anglican Church on Mount Newton Cross Road.

Rev. Ivan Futter says he decided to include horses in his congregation after several members of the church said they were unable to attend services because they had to exercise their animals.

Futter decided on a compromise

Sunday at 11:15 a.m. he will conduct a service in the church's parking lot for both horses and riders.

Futter estimates that about 40 local horsemen will attend.

THE GREAT DO-IT-YOURself census is under way, as witness a visit from a young mother employed for the occasion by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Her two little girls had come along for company. While they made an unofficial head count of our livestock — one pampered dog, one tough black cat — the census lady dealt us a red and white envelope from her supply.

She then loaded her frisky young statistics into her car and whisked off to make the next of 200 calls on her list.

Our form, it turns out, is the bobtailed sort that goes to two out of three homes. I didn't find any of its questions unduly nosey, although the flat statement that the head of the household is the husband rather than the wife may not go down too well with Women's Lib.

The long form, a population-sampler in depth that is being left with one household in three, requires a good deal more in the way of answers.

Areas that its queries touch on include religion, income for 1970, hours of work if employed, education, vocational training, and in the case of men over 35, military service.

Calls received from a couple of irked Victorians suggest to me that not every Canadian welcomes the chance to impart personal information.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics counters by pointing out that all census data remains strictly confidential. No other government department may tap those questionnaires, and census employees are sworn to secrecy.

When the all-Canada roundup is over and the impersonal computers have digested the results, much more will be known about Canadians as this touchy year of 1971 finds us.

How we live, for instance. Also, what we lack. And, with reasonable exactitude, just how many of us there now are.

We take two Victoria newspapers at our place — the Times, naturally, and the other daily just so we can keep track of what those little morning-side rascals are up to.

As a by-product, we end each week with a considerable pile of used newsprint.

That once raised a problem with which I expect you too may be familiar. What to do with the accumulation?

There was a time when we could count on turning the tottering basement stacks over to paper drives for worthy causes at fairly regular intervals. But such collections appear to have fallen victim to a dwindled market.

We had begun to consider dropping one newspaper — guess which — when local importer Jack Cox came up with a solution called a paper-log maker.

It consists of a flat metal dingus that looks somewhat like an old-fashioned hairpin on a giant scale. You spread a batch of old papers on rug or linoleum so that each set of edges retreats an inch or so from the previous one. Then, inserting the hairpin, you twirl the papers into a neat, tight roll.

Finish off by securing this roll with a length of wire-cored garden tape around its middle, and you have a paper-log which will burn for a long time with a cheerful but well-behaved flame.

Those logs make a highly-acceptable substitute for fireplace wood. We keep a bunch of them pre-rolled for cool evenings.

Incidentally, Cox reminds me, an old magazine makes a good core for a simulated log, thereby solving another disposal problem.

Ask the Times

Q. Could you please give me the addresses of newspapers in Dover and Stornaway?—C.L.

A. Dover Express and East Kent News, 185-6 Snargate, Dover, Kent, England; and Stornaway Gazette and West Coast Advertiser, 10 Francis St., Stornaway, Scotland.

Q. Could you please publish the personal addresses of Carol Burnett, Art Linkletter and Elizabeth Taylor?—A Friend.

A. Liz's is c-o John Springer Association, 667 Madison Ave., New York 10021, N.Y.; Art's 8321 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles 90048, Calif.; and Carol's c-o Goodman, 667 Madison Ave., New York 10021, N.Y.

The Times has been "caught" by a 13-year-old reader.

In their hurry to meet deadlines, reporters sometimes make mistakes. Rick Prokopyshen spotted an error in an "Ask the Times" column, stating that the calendar repeats itself every 15 years.

The Times' answer didn't look right to Rick, so he did a little research. His suspicions were justified; the correct answer is every 28 years.

DUNCAN — California rugby players may not be perfectionists in the classic sense of the term, but they are big, they are fast, and they are tough. Which is probably reason enough why They manhandled the Cowichan Invitational XV so easily here Wednesday night.

This was the second of a three-game series in B.C. by the representative California State side, and their most impressive performance. They were full value for their 17-3 victory, which but for some stout defending by Cowichan could have been by a greater margin. California lost to Vancouver, 19-6, in the tour opener last Saturday. But this weekend they will need to use every bit of their new-found reputation if they are to get by the full B.C. team at Vancouver. The next test will be a repeat.

Rugby football has come a long way in California in recent years, many university football players using the game as a conditioner. Statistically there are several club teams and a full schedule, embracing 37 teams in the south and 30 in the northern part of the state.

Besides, the state has become a regular stopping-off point for other international teams. New Zealand All-Blacks have been there and the famed Australian Wallabies will play there this November. A combined California Universities team toured New Zealand and Australia last year and compiled the commendable record of eight wins and one draw in 10 matches against comparable opposition.

●

Wednesday's game at Macadam Park actually wasn't one of rugby's finest hours, and it was more by good fortune than good management that Cowichan was able to stay as close as it did. The Californians were clearly superior in the line-outs, ball handling, and speed of foot. They recovered well when trouble threatened, and in fullback Tim Desmond they had an excellent performer. He not only cleared well, but often made the California attack tick by moving up into the attacking line.

The Californians, who enjoyed a big weight advantage, pressured Cowichan continually, and the lighter Islanders, if not exactly getting the bejabbers beaten out of them, were on the defensive right from the very beginning. And it was rare indeed when they were in a scoring position.

Still, there were some fine chances, especially on penalty occasions, and except for some atrocious kicking by the usually proficient Al Foster, a more respectable result could have been recorded. It wasn't one of Foster's finest 80 minutes, either. He missed three seemingly easy penalty goals and wasn't as sure-handed with the ball as is his normal custom.

Young Barry Ronnigen at fullback and wing Barry Greenhalgh were the soundest of the Cowichan backs, Ronnigen often getting his club out of embarrassing situations until an injury forced his retirment in the second half.

Up front, Cowichan, strangely enough, had the best of the set scrums against the California giants, but were at a disadvantage in the loose.

However, if the Cowichan loss was a disappointment to the 700 Island rugger enthusiasts who attended the match, there was an otherwise saving grace that should be explored to the fullest in future international exhibitions.

●

Someone had the foresight to ask former Scottish international Dave Mackenzie to act as commentator. And it can be said that here is a built-in rugger-type rival for Howard Cosell and ABC Monday night football. Mackenzie was an instant hit.

He explained most of the calls by the referee, Harry Turner, for the benefit of the uninitiated, and if he didn't actually see the infraction he admitted that too.

Such as:

"I see the referee is pointing at someone. That is no good and usually a sign that something untoward is going on." It had, and a penalty ensued.

On another occasion he commented: "There is a penalty kick being awarded for something I didn't see, but I'm sure that Cowichan is pleased."

Besides these asides, Mackenzie explained the strength of the California attack simply and to the point. Of wing Jack Schultz, he commented: "This chap, I believe, is bound for the Minnesota Vikings; by the nature of his try, it is easy to see why."

Of injuries he had the following observation: "Ah, Mike Penn is taking an extra breath or two, but he looks as if he may be all right." (Penn, at the time, was on bended knee, and not about to change that position either.)

Still, there was one dominating force in the contest, and this came in the person of lock forward Gary Chioti. From Palo Alto, at 220 pounds of all man, with handlebar mustache et al, Chioti was in full command of most situations in the line.

And soon it was evident why he had been putting the arm on Cowichan with such devastating effect.

Only recently he had finished third in the United States in the arm wrestling championships.

Turn Tables on Burrards; Adanacs Surprise 'Bellies

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Victoria Shamrocks are cutting back on their giveaways, and that's the stingy attitude that might transform their run with the Western Lacrosse Association front-runners into a nice-and-easy lope.

The Shamrocks jammed into a three-way tie for the lead by defeating Vancouver Burrards 12-8 Wednesday at Memorial Arena.

And that might have been a nice-and-easy lope but for the fact the Rocks "gave" the Burrards at least four goals.

Even co-coach Bert Bertoia agreed with the count.

"But four," he quickly added, "is an improvement. We've been giving away about six a game. Missed blocks, forgetting to switch, or just easing up.

STRONG GAME

"But I can't be critical tonight because, generally, they played a strong game.

"Without those four easy goals, Vancouver wouldn't have been in the game as long as they were."

And that's a fact.

Goalie Dave Wirtanen "lost" two long shots he figured he had. This permitted Gord Frederickson and Brent O'Janen to count unexpected goals. A messup of defensive assignments permitted Dave Litzenberger to score unmolested, and then plain laxity allowed Frederickson to come back for another easy goal.

EARLY LEAD

Otherwise, the Rocks were in complete command, jumping off to a 3\10, first-period lead and then taking a 7-4 edge into the final session.

The Rocks scurried strongly for loose balls, refused to be intimidated by some second-period rough-housing, and generally kept on top of the Burrards all the way to join New Westminster Salmonbellies and Coquitlam Adanacs in first place.

SIX-POINT NIGHT

Offensively, the Rocks received strong efforts from the Brothers Dillon (Ranjit and Nirmal), Frank Alexander, Charn Dhillon and Ivan Thompson.

Ranjit enjoyed a six-point night with three goals and three assists while brother Nirmal pumped in one goal and set up four. Alexander also went 1-and-4 while Thompson scored three times.

Charn added to his quick-draw reputation with a strong faceoff performance. He won 14 of Victoria's 22 faceoff draws.

But while the Shamrocks appeared to have no trouble in keeping ahead of Burrards, their offence was not as strong as it might have been, especially in the second period.

PLAN LACKING

Until Ranjit Dillon scored Victoria's 10th goal, there seemed to be very little purpose or planning to Shamrocks' moves in front of Vancouver netminder Don Hamilton. For most of the part, they moved and passed but didn't threaten as they should have.

Ranjit's picture goal at 8:31 of the third period changed that. Victoria's attack then gained a quickness and thought that had been lacking.

Thompson's three goals in the third period figured prominently in sealing up the victory.

Burrards, behind 4-0 at one stage, scored two quick goals early in the third period. Coming out of nowhere, it suddenly became a 7-6 game.

Then Thompson, twice, and Ranjit pulled Rocks ahead to a 10-6 lead and the issue was never in doubt.

Thompson, scoring beautifully with well-placed shots, showed he knows what to do with the ball. Until the third period however, he was given the ball only sporadically.

At New Westminster, Jim Aitchison was a deadly sniper for Coquitlam, scoring five times on five shots and adding an assist to help Adanacs to their 13-10 triumph over the Salmonbellies. Bill Robinson also accounted for six points, getting three goals for the Adanacs and earning three assists.

BALL ZIPS behind Victoria goalie Dave Wirtanen on close-in shot by Vancouver's Gord Frederickson during Western Lacrosse Association battle Wednesday night at Memorial Arena. Frederickson finished with two goals, but his efforts were not enough to get Burrards past Shamrocks, who grabbed 12-8 decision to move into tie for first place.

Nothing Works for Padres, Not Even a Japanese Bat!

By The Associated Press

They should have had an inkling that things were going to be slightly out of whack in San Diego Wednesday night when a Cuban manager sent a Panamanian outfielder to the plate with a Japanese bat.

Houston Astros won the zany opener of a twi-night doubleheader from the Padres 2-1 and Larry Dierker then hurled a one-hitter—Ollie Brown's two-out single in the seventh inning—to win the nightcap 8-0 for a Houston sweep.

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia Phillies nipped New York Mets 3-2 in 12 innings, St. Louis Cardinals trounced Chicago Cubs 9-4 and took over first place in the National League East, Pittsburgh Pirates shaded Cincinnati Reds 2-0, San Francisco Giants downed Los Angeles Dodgers 6-4 and Montreal Expos battered Atlanta Braves 11-1.

San Diego manager Preston Gomez of the Padres let starter Al Santorini pitch to one batter in the opener and then brought on southpaw Dave Roberts to face Houston's predominantly lefthanded line-up.

"I knew Harry Walker wanted to pitch Dierker against Roberts," Gomez said. ". . . When they saw Santorini warming up they had all those lefthand hitters ready to hit against him."

Walker, however, has seen that ploy before.

"Leo Durocher used to do that when he was managing the Dodgers," said the Houston skipper.

JAPANESE BAT

In the second inning, Ivan Murrell came to the plate with a bat given to the Padres by a Japanese team which visited the United States during spring training. Plate umpire Stan Landes ordered Murrell to change bats. He returned to the dugout but marched right back to the plate carrying his samurai weapon.

Gomez said Lou Brock of St. Louis used it against the Pirates, and Al Barlick, the league's senior umpire, said it was legal.

Walker, however, played the game under protest.

MAYS EQUALS RECORD

Chris Speier's bloop single drove home the tie-breaking run in the ninth inning and Willie Mays sent in another with a sacrifice fly as the high-flying Giants edged the Dodgers.

Mays also scored his 1,949th run, tying Stan Musial at the top of the all-time National League list.

Bob Bailey drove in four runs and Bill Stoneman hurled a two-hitter as Montreal exploded for six runs in the third inning and crushed the Braves.

In the American League Chicago White Sox whipped Kansas City Royals, 7-2; Minnesota Twins tripped Milwaukee Brewers, 4-1; California Angels edged Oakland Athletics, 7-5, in 12 innings; New York Yankees squeezed by Detroit Tigers, 2-1; Baltimore Orioles edged Cleveland Indians, 3-2, and Boston Red Sox got by the Washington Senators by the same 3-2 margin.

British Squander Early Cup Margin

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — The favored United States, stunned by loss of all four of the morning foursome matches, stormed back in the afternoon Wednesday to take a 6½-to-5½-point lead over the British in the Walker Cup golf competition.

WEATHER BAD

The U.S. team defied driving rain and cold wind over St. Andrews' fabled Old Course in recording victories in six of the eight singles matches, losing one and drawing one. The sharp reversal of fortunes made the U.S. team a strong choice to retain the cup when the four foursomes and eight singles are played today.

Americans have won 21 times since the international amateur series was started in 1921. They lost only once, in 1938, and tied once, in 1965 in Baltimore.

It remained for a pair of Richmond, Va., players, Lanny Wadkins and Marvin Giles III, to strike the blows that turned an impending U.S. disaster into a likely repeat triumph.

Wadkins led the American surge by beating Scotland's Charles Green, 1-up, in the first of the afternoon individual tests. Then Giles, followed immediately with a 1-up triumph over Michael Bonnallack, the British captain and team star.

America's other singles victories were scored by big Steve Melnyk of Jacksonville, Fla., who beat Scott MacDonald, 3 and 2; Tom Kite of Austin, Tex., 3 and 2 winner over Rodney Foster; Allen Miller of Pensacola, Fla., who defeated Geoff Marks, 1-up, and Jim Gabrielsen of Atlanta, Ga., 1-up winner over Warren Humphreys, youngest player in the competition.

The U.S. sweep of the singles was spoiled by Hugh Stuart and Rod Carr, the 20-year-old son of Ireland's once great Joe Carr.

Stuart defeated John Farquhar of Amarillo, Tex., 3 and 2, and Carr played to a tie with 55-year-old Bill Hyndman III of Philadelphia.

Hockey Brass Admits 'Farm' Policy Futile

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — Sensing the futility of keeping amateur hockey down on the farm, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association voted Wednesday to re-enter international competition in all divisions except those involving world or Olympic play.

"We now feel our policy was a negative one, and it was time to review the stand and begin bargaining," CAHA president Earl Dawson said after the association had given unanimous approval to the motion at its annual meeting.

Canada pulled out of international hockey competition in January, 1970, when the International Ice Hockey Federation reversed its decision to allow Canada use of professional players in world championship play. The CAHA decided then there would be no exchange of teams between Europe and Canada until the Canadian team was allowed to use professionals.

BECAME NEGATIVE

Dawson said the association's stand was not a negative policy at first, but had become that way "because we had made our point."

"Now we have to be sure we're not hurting our friends overseas and we have to start bargaining with some of the European countries for their support when it comes time next year to again discuss Canada's proposals to use any Canadian players in world competition."

Gordon Jukes, CAHA executive director, said:

"We had a principle that we stood by," but it wasn't a good idea to "permit ourselves to stay in this position of isolation."

Chilliwack Coach Gets Extra Post

CHILLIWACK — Chilliwack Bruins of the B.C. Junior Hockey League have announced the appointment of Orv Litchfield as manager-coach for the 1971-72 season.

Litchfield took over the coaching job in mid-season and his club, last in the Coast Division, surprised by eliminating the division-leading Victoria Cougars in the first round of playoffs.

Patterson Wins

CLEVELAND (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson won a unanimous decision over Terry Daniels of Dallas Wednesday night in a 10-round boxing match at the Cleveland arena.

Davies Ousts Nichol In Singles Semi-Final

Ted Davies, an eighteen-year-old from Oak Bay Tennis Club, continued his fine play in the annual Victoria zone tennis tournament Wednesday and defeated second-seeded club-mate John Nichol in men's singles semi-final action.

Davies, who won the junior singles crown Monday, meets top seed Ernie Cockayne in Saturday's final. He beat Nichol 6-3 and 6-2 Wednesday.

Ruth Trelawney and Nancy Hull took the women's doubles semi-final, defeating Mabel Henning and Helen Dunbar, 6-2, 6-2.

In a men's double semi-final tonight at 5:30, Davies and Glen Bradshaw take on top seeds Tim Cummings and Ivor Goodmanson at Oak Bay club. At 6 p.m. at the same club, Sheila Levey and Kay Woodland meet the Trelawnea-Hill pair in a women's doubles semi-final.

Cowichan Easy Prey For Cal State Team

DUNCAN — The California State rugby team, currently on a three-game tour of British Columbia, defeated the Cowichan Invitational side, 17-3, at Macadam Park here Wednesday night.

It was the first win for the California visitors who lost their opener to Vancouver, 19-6, last Saturday.

Wednesday, however, they were in full command from the start and took an 11-0 lead by halftime.

Greg Schneeweis scored two tries for California, both scores coming after fine backfield movements. Left wing Jack Schultz who is expected to sign a pro football contract with the Minnesota Vikings this year, scored another on a run down the line.

Mickey Ording; California captain, converted once.

In the second half, California struck swiftly when hooker Walt Dathe scored at about six minutes. Charlie Williams scored on a drop goal later in the match.

Actually, the California team had two apparent tries called back, and it was only through strong defending by the Cowichan team that the score did not reach higher figures.

Wing Barry Greenhalgh scored the only try for Cowichan.

TALE OF UNWANTED YEARLING . . . . . . LATEST RAGS-TO-RICHES SAGA

Carry Back Most Spectacular Bargain

NEW YORK (AP) — The story of Canonero II, unwanted as a yearling and sloughed off for a mere $1,200 to a dealer, is just the latest rags-to-riches saga that makes thoroughbred horse racing so glamorous.

Back in 1942, for instance, there was Alsab, a $750 purchase who won the Preakness and ended his racing career with $350,015 in earnings.

Then there was Stymie, claimed for $1,500 and the winner of $918,485.

Perhaps the most spectacular bargain was Carry Back, who fired the imagination of racing fans as the "people's horse" a decade ago as Canonero II has done this year.

Carry Back, who cost Jack Price an estimated $700, ended his racing career with earnings of $1,241,165—fifth place on the all-time money-winning list.

Carry Back, just as Canonero II did this year, scored spectacular victories in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness. Canonero II, the Venezuelan invader, has his chance of sweeping the 1971 Triple Crown by winning the Belmont June 5.

Carry Back, however, missed the 1961 Triple Crown when he injured a hoof and finished out of the money in the Belmont to Sherluck, the surprise $132 winner.

Carry Back usually came from far back to win with breathtaking stretch runs, but like Canonero II, he showed he could go right to the front and beat speed horses at their own game.

Carry Back, considered as coming from the wrong side of the tracks because of unfashionable breeding, was sired by Saggy out of an obscure mare, Joppy. Price, who ran a farm near Cleveland at the time, acquired Joppy for $150.

On the way to Florida, Price stopped in Maryland in 1957 and had Joppy and two other mares bred to Saggy for $1,200 or $400 apiece.

Saggy's one claim to fame was his surprise victory over Citation on a rainy Monday at the Havre de Grace track in the Chesapeake Trial. It was the only setback for Citation as a three-year-old in 1948, when he won the Triple Crown, a feat no colt has done since.

OUTDOOR SCENE

By Barry M. Thornton

The violet green, yet seemingly sterile waters of the lake merged imperseptibly with the emerald green drop of the shore line. Old stumps with their weird snags reached out in grotesque fashion under the boat as it drifted parallel to the shore with the late afternoon breeze.

The black ant fly twitched ever so slightly on the surface creating a small ring of ripples which spread in ever widening circles. Holding the rod and fly line in my right hand and forfinger I grasped the line with my left hand and proceeded to retrieve the fly with an under and over hand motion, teasing the fly along the surface.

The fly moved no more than a few inches when a torpedo shadow detached itself from the green depths and shot upwards. An open mouth—a roll—then the flash of silver as the leader tension checked the trout's dive. In a panic it broke water, gyrating on the surface as it tried to throw the small number ten hook. Then down it dove streaming the loose line through my fingers as it sought safety among the snags.

This was just one of many strikes during a recent black ant hatch on one of the multitude of small lakes in the vast Sayward forest north and west of Campbell River.

The black ant hatch is a natural phenomenum of the west coast, occuring during May and early June. At this time, high temperatures hatch the eggs of the carpenter ants. These flying ants migrate with the wind currents and many light on or near water in the various Island lakes and streams. During this hatch trout appear to loose all caution and will strike at any fly which resembles the flying ant. Anglers also are known to loose all reason at this time for they know this is their main opportunity to limit on lunker trout with a dry fly.

The Sayward forest watershed shows a vast number of lakes foremost of which are Buttle Lake, Upper Campbell and Campbell Lakes. These large lakes, easily accessible from the Campbell Lakes — Gold River highway, contain some of the largest cutthroat trout on the Island, many of which will weigh up to nine pounds.

Logging in this immense area has provided controlled access to many smaller lakes for the car-top trout angler. These smaller lakes do not provide the giant cutthroat of the big lakes but they do have many big trout and often prolific numbers of smaller fish.

This past weekend, on McIvor Lake, I talked with George Taylor, one of two conservation officers for the whole north Island. George had just spent seven hours travelling the periphery of Campbell Lake which is accessable through McIvor Lake, checking anglers. Of the one hundred plus fishermen he met a few had limits and most had fish. The largest cutthroat he saw weighed four and one-half pounds. Most success was had on a gang troll and worm while a few good catches were taken spinning with lures. Surprisingly, only two fly fishermen were seen on the whole lake. It is interesting to note that of the 50 boats checked, not one single violation was recorded.

Indispensible for the angler who wishes to explore the lakes in this area is the map of Campbell River and Buttle Lake drawn by Doris Stastny and John Bohy and available at most sporting goods stores and almost any location in Campbell River. The map, retailing at $1.50, shows all lakes, streams, access roads, campsites and beaches in the area.

Following is a list of many lakes in the area accessable for car-top boat launching. Size of the lakes is included (small, medium, large or very large) along with elevation above sea level and approximate distance in miles from Campbell River. Elevation is included because the lower lakes are fishable at an earlier date than those in higher areas. Most of the lakes contain both rainbow and cutthroat trout. Upper Quinsam contains only rainbows. Those which hold only cutthroat are denoted by C:

Glen Meadows Forges Into Golf League Lead

Clutch golfing by Marty Richards Wednesday night at Glen Meadows was a key factor as his home club defeated Gorge Vale and jumped into top spot in the Inter-Club Golf League.

Glen Meadows now has 12½ points after two matches, one-half point more the total of the Uplands teams which was defeated Wednesday at Cedar Hill.

After whitewashing defending-champion Royal Colwood 9-0 last week, Uplands lost by a 6-3 margin.

Colwood went down to its second straight loss Wednesday as Victoria beat the champs 6½-2½. The result left Victoria in third place in league standings in the chase for the Willie Park Driver.

RICHARDS UNDER PAR

Richards managed to par the back nine at Glen Meadows after going three under par on the front nine, in leading his team to the victory.

He beat Mike Kolb by the same 4 and 3 mark that partner Bill Penny registered in defeating Vince Clarkson, and the meadows pair combined for a 4-and-3 fourball win over the Gorge Vale duo.

While Dave Mick and Al MacLeod tightened the match with a sweep over Rick Kent and Murray Brown, Glen Meadows took the game when Hall-Jacobsen and Brian Sluggett took a 3 and 2 fourball win over Bob Beachemin and Jim Taylor.

LAST-HOLE VICTORY

Jacobsen finished 1 up on Taylor by winning the last hole, while Beauchemin topped Sluggett, 2 and 1.

Colwood's first points this season came as Sid Murdoch and Jim McMurran downed Gordon Verley and Bill Thompson of Victoria in the fourball, 2 and 1. Thompson managed to half his match with McMurran, but Murdoch bested Verley, 4 and 3.

Glen Meadows	12½
Uplands	12
Victoria	10
Gorge Vale	9½
Cedar Hill	7½
Colwood	2½

Uplands 3 at Cedar Hill 6.

Frank Scopps lost to Jim Girard, 3 and 1; Ken Nott defeated Bruce Rands, 6 and 4; Cedar Hill took four-ball, 1 up.

Robin Burrell lost to Doug Hunt, 6 and 4; Bob Hunt defeated Greg Candlish, 4 and 3; Uplands took four-ball, 3 and 2.

Don Bilisborough lost to Brian Gandy, 2 and 1; Dave McColl lost to Greg Barnes, 5 and 4; Cedar Hill took four-ball, 2 and 1.

Gorge Vale 4 at Glen Meadows 5

Vince Clarkson lost to Bill Penny, 4 and 3; Mike Kolb lost to Marty Richards, 4 and 3; Glen Meadows took four-ball, 4 and 3.

Dave Mick defeated Rick Kent, 4 and 3; Al MacLeod defeated Murray Brown, 2 and 1; Gorge Vale took four-ball, 3 and 2.

Jim Taylor lost to Hal Jacobsen, 1 up; Bob Beauchemin defeated Brian Sluggett, 2 and 1; Glen Meadows took four-ball, 3 and 2.

Victoria 6½ at Colwood 2½

Vaughn Trapp defeated Laurie Kerr, 5 and 4; George Bigelow defeated Ken Floyd, 2 and 1; Victoria took four-ball, 4 and 2.

Carl Schwantje defeated Ron Howard, 6 and 5; Mike Parker defeated Bruce Pelmore, 4 and 3; Victoria took four-ball, 7 and 6.

Gordon Verley lost to Sid Murdoch, 4 and 3; Bill Thompson halved with Jim McMurran; Colwood took four-ball, 2 and 1.

Reid Sets Pace In Pro Tourney

VANCOUVER (CP) — Defending champion Doug Reid of Burnaby fired a two-under-par 69 Wednesday to take a one-stroke lead in the 36-hole British Columbia Professional Golfers Association championship at Point Grey.

Reid, an unattached pro, toured the back nine in three-under 32 for his advantage over three players — host pro Dick Munn, and Bob Cox and Al Kennedy, both of Richmond's Quilchena course.

ONE MORE ROUND

The field of 55 professionals from throughout the province will play the final round of the $3,000 tournament today.

Gordie Fairbairn of Pitt Meadows and Ron Willey of Marine Drive were two shots off the pace with par 71 rounds.

Tom Moryson, also of Pitt Meadows, Dave Ewart of Alberni, and Tom Whittle of North Vancouver were another stroke back at 72.

Six players were bunched at 73, including Victoria pro John Morgan, and veterans Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Harold Pretty of Prince George. Leonard and Pretty share the lead in the senior division, for pros aged 50 and over.

Other Island pros competing were Bob Hammer of Victoria, who fired a 76, Mike Rivers of Nanaimo (79), Earl Davies of Victoria (80), Dick Silverberg of Sidney (80) and Greg Palmer of Nanaimo, (82).

John Carlow, Hewitt Lead

Eric Hewitt of Glen Meadows was the handicap winner and John Carlow of Gorge Vale won low-gross laurels at Wednesday's Vancouver Island Seniors' Golf Association 18-hole medal competition at Glen Meadows.

Winners of low-gross prizes in other divisions were Dick Spruce, George Kulai, Ted Martin and Ken Kennedy.

Handicap winners included Bill Sanford, Merv Coulter, Norm Taylor and Ted Parsons.

Junior Golf Test Slated Saturday

Young swingers who have made up a whopping entry list of 88 contestants are primed to chase the Victoria City junior title Saturday at Victoria Golf Club.

The 36-hole tournament is a "must" for golfers hoping to earn berths on the four-man B.C. interprovincial junior team.

The defending champion, and hoping to make it two straight, is Gorge Vale's Robbie Ferguson.

Saturday's draw:

Baseball Clubs Battle to Tie

A 4-4 tie between Al's Home Service and Greaves Movers was called on account of darkness at the end of seven innings in Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League play at Royal Athletic Park Wednesday.

Extra innings will be played prior to the start of the next scheduled meeting between the two teams.

Four Teams Sharing Lead

Four teams are tied for the lead in the Victoria Senior Women's Softball League today, following a 5-1 Westendale Constructionettes victory over Moose Lodge Loyals at Beacon Hill Park Wednesday night.

Tillicum, Esquimalt Jr. Combos and Cablevision have now been joined by the Constructionettes, each with two victories and no losses. Five-hit pitching by Myrna Harris paced the Westendale win.

EAGLES TRADE GOALIE

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Salt Lake Golden Eagles of the Western Hockey League have traded goaltender Rick Charron for centre Bob Jones, who played for Seattle last season.

Rhodesia Launches Mixed Competition

SALISBURY (UPI) — Black and white South African athletes will compete against each other at an international meeting here June 19, the Rhodesia Amateur Athletics Union said Wednesday.

RAAU president Eric Shore said: "It will be a historical occasion."

Shore said formal invitations had gone out to 10 white and 10 non-white South Africans and informal acceptance had already been received.

Athletic sources here said it would be the first time in the history of apartheid that black and white South Africans have been allowed to compete against each other.

The sources said this was because Malawi was also sending a team to Salisbury, which made it an "international" meeting which the South African government has said it approves as qualification for mixed competition.

The South Africans have not been invited as a national team, because of the country's expulsion from the International Amateur Athletic Federation. Instead, Rhodesia — which is still an IAAF IAUF member — has invited the athletes as individuals.

Frampton's Blast Wins for Century

A last-inning, two-out home run Wednesday by Don Frampton at Heywood Avenue Park produced a 2-1 victory for Century Inn over Labatts in the Stuffy McGinnis Softball League.

With a single and a double to go along with his homer, Frampton was the only player to have a big night at the plate.

Century Inn shortstop Bob Custance saved the game in the sixth inning with a bases-loaded catch of a line drive off the bat of Harris. He then doubled Barry Granger off third base to end the inning.

COX, TALLON AMONG ENTRANTS IN CEDAR HILL OPEN

Golf Field Rich in Talent

Dale Tallon, rookie hockey star with NHL Vancouver Canucks, will be one of many talented professional and amateur golfers taking part in the annual John Merriman Memorial Open tournament this weekend at Cedar Hill Gulf Club.

In all, 200 amateurs and 30 professionals will compete in the 36-hole medal-play which gets underway Saturday.

There won't be any charge for spectators, but the pro golfers — perhaps the best field assembled here since the B.C. Open at Uplands in 1969 — should get some charge bidding for the $1,700 in prize money, which has been put up by Carlings.

Of the amateurs, over 110 have handicaps of five or less, and there are a number of quartets listed in the draw that could provide excellent shot-making.

Foremost will be the four-some composed of 1969 B.C. Open winner Bill Wakeham, CPGA champion Bob Cox Jr., Tallon (who was 1969 Canadian junior champion) and Cedar Hill champion Jim Girard.

WHL Expansion Left to Future

DENVER (AP) — The Western Hockey League considered expansion possibilities and elected officials as it concluded its two-day annual meeting late Tuesday.

League officials firmed up the schedule and also reviewed applications from Alburquerque, Tucson, and Edmonton and Calgary.

"Expansion is always a distinct possibility," said Bill MacFarland, who will take over as league president June 1, succeeding Eugene Kinasewich "we also feel we have m a jor-league potential in every city in our league."

MacFarland, from Seattle, is a 14-year veteran of the WHL as a player and executive.

Other officers for the new year include Bob Breitbard, San Diego, first vice-president; Dan Meyer, Salt Lake City, second vice-president; Murray Costello, Seattle, secretary, and Al Leader, a past president from Seattle, treasurer.

1,875 Grade 12 Students To Join in Ceremonies

About 1,875 Grade 12 students will take part in traditional recognition ceremonies at six Greater Victoria secondary schools Friday.

The number of Grade 12 students in the district is actually around 2,100, but for different reasons many will not take part in the ceremonies.

At Mount Douglas Secondary some 320 students are scheduled to graduate, but only 251 will be on the platform of the University of Victoria gymnasium for the ceremony Friday. Guest speaker will be retired Mount Doug teacher Vito Cianci.

FIRST GRADUATION

Reynolds Secondary this year will have its first graduating class of 123 students. The school, which is the only combined junior-senior secondary in the district, opened in 1967. The current Grade 12 students have spent four years at the schools beginning in Grade 9.

Guest speaker at the ceremony Friday will be former Reynolds vice-principal Colin Glover who is now director of curriculum services for the Greater Victoria school board.

NO SPEAKER

Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson will be the speaker at Victoria Senior Secondary. The 425 graduates have been practising for several weeks to sing three musical selections.

There will be no speaker at the Oak Bay Senior ceremony in which some 500 students will be recognized. But greetings will be delivered by Oak Bay Mayor Francis Elford and school board chairman Carron Jameson. There will also be male and female valedictorians.

Brentwood Boys' School headmaster David McKenzie will address parents and 275 students at Esquimalt Senior. The ceremony will be followed by an informal gathering of students, teachers and platform guests.

About 300 Mount View Senior graduates will hear former teacher Gordon Hill address them. Students, teachers and parents will get together informally following the ceremony.

'DEVIL' WIND RIPS UP PARKS

PRINEVILLE, Ore. (AP) — A 12-mile wide stand of huge Ponderosa pine lies in ruin after a devastating wind smashed through the Ochoco and Malheur National forests in central Oregon.

Estimates of the damage range from $4 million to $6 million—representing some 140 million board feet of timber.

The forests are adjacent, about 150 miles southeast of Portland.

Forest Service officials said high winds whipped through both forests, apparently reaching tornado force in the centre of the storm. The earth was saturated with winter rain and the trees toppled.

The storm struck last Friday, but the magnitude of the damage was not reported until Tuesday.

Much of the timber can be salvaged, officials said.

Duncan Set for Centennial With 18 Groups Helping

DUNCAN — With the combined efforts of 18 organizations Cowichan Valley residents will celebrate B.C.'s centennial from July 1 to 4.

Although the crowning of the Cowichan Queen followed by a closed ball for her will be held on June 30, celebration will not open to the public until 10 a.m. July 1 when the parade starts.

The rest of the day's celebrations will include "biffy" races on Quamichan Lake along with rides and concessions on the Moose Lodge property.

As well as the official opening of the Cowichan Valley Forest Museum, horseshow, softball, and Babe Ruth championship baseball tournaments will be held.

The program for the next three days includes a continuation of the tournaments highlighted by a centennial dance July 2; a Chinook fishing derby at Cowichan Bay, and an outhouse dance at Cobble Hill on July 3; and Cowichan Bay outhouse races and a "king-sized" salmon barbecue on July 4.

Saigon Accepts Red Terms

SAIGON (Reuter) — South Vietnam said Wednesday it is ready to accept North Vietnamese conditions for a June 4 transfer at sea of 570 disabled prisoners-of-war from government prison camps.

A foreign ministry statement said the government "declares itself ready to accept the proposals set forth by North Vietnam concerning the date and place of the release as well as the conditions governing the operation."

First offered by South Vietnam April 29, the proposed release would be by far the largest yet of the war. The Saigon government also offered to transfer to a neutral country for temporary internment 1,200 prisoners held for four years or more.

North Vietnam, in a May 13 radio broadcast, gave the conditions for the transfer of the 570 prisoners, but made no reference to the 1,200. Also, it did not concede the captives were North Vietnamese, instead calling them "Vietnamese patriots."

A U.S. embassy spokesman said today "we are happy that things are moving along and we are ready to co-operate in any way possible."

The North Vietnamese conditions call for a meeting of North and South Vietnamese civilian ships at sea off Cua Tung near the demilitarized zone June 4. It also sought a 24-hour ceasefire within an 18-mile radius of the transfer site.

U.S. Accused

HONG KONG (Reuter) — North Vietnam has accused the United States of bombing and strafing Angkor Wat, the world-famous 12th century temple in the northwest of Cambodia, the North Vietnam news agency reported.

Canada's mildest cigarette

Viscount has consistently set a new standard of mildness in a king size filter cigarette. Viscount's improved Polyvent* filtration system is designed to give you the kind of flavour you want, with the mildness you deserve.

Now available everywhere—ask for it.

HERE'S HOW POLYVENT* WORKS:

Fine Virginia tobacco specially blended for mild smoking.

Activated carbon particles refine the smoke.

White cellulose acetate filter provides additional filtration for milder smoking.

Tiny vents provide fresh air for easy draw and a smooth cool smoke.

Hey, small car fans!
We've got just what you want in your next small car!

Firenza

GM's newest and lowest-priced little car.

Firenza offers British Columbia drivers the kind of performance, comfort and value they expect. And then some!

B.C.'s dream car?
Firenza is specially equipped for your kind of driving. Little things like an automatic choke. Big things like a full-size trunk. And power that lets you climb a mountain or cruise hour after hour without tiring yourself or your engine. With extra snap on call whenever you want it.

All about power.
Firenza comes with one of the best power-to-weight ratios in the business—94 gross hp and just over 2000 pounds curb weight. What's more, the 1975 c.c. overhead-cam engine operates efficiently, and with lower exhaust emissions, on no-lead, low-lead or regular fuels.

To shift or not.
Standard transmission is a four-speed manual with a short-throw shift lever on the floor. All forward speeds are synchronized for smooth, very easy shifting. If you'd rather go footloose and shift-free, you can order a console-mounted three-speed automatic specially developed by GM for the new Firenza. Either way, manual or automatic, Firenza is a lot of fun to drive.

Power brakes!
With a power team to put most others in the shade, Firenza also comes with power brakes. At no extra cost! Not only that, you get power disc brakes in front for the kind of stopping power you'd probably planned to order next time. Now you don't have to order them. They're standard.

Safety first.
Also standard is a General Motors package of safety and anti-theft equipment. Seat belts, of course, and you know how important they are! Energy-absorbing steering column and padded instrument panel. Passenger-guard door locks at the rear on four-door models (of special interest to parents). The list is long—and reassuring.

Four models.
Our lowest-priced Firenza, a two-door sedan, has four headlamps, power disc brakes, full-coil suspension, bags of room and 94 horsepower. The SL sedans (a 2-door and a 4-door) offer a little more luxury and glamour. Cloth-and-vinyl interiors, deep-pile carpeting, whitewall tires, wheel trim rings, dual body paint stripes. The Firenza wagon has all the SL features plus extra courtesy lights, a "swing-up" tailgate and an impressive 62.3 cubic feet of cargo space.

Priced to go.
Add to all this the quick and easy service of over 500 Firenza-Pontiac dealers coast to coast and only one question is left. How much? And that may be Firenza's most attractive feature.

$2167*

*Manufacturer's suggested retail price for Firenza Two-Door Sedan including federal sales tax. Provincial tax, municipal tax, licence and destination charges not included.

Seat belts work only when they're fastened.

Firenza. New at your Pontiac dealer's.

There's a great deal more to the Firenza story. So keep your eyes on this space. To be continued.

Watchdog On Drugs Set Up

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Science Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro announced Wednesday an expanded program to analyse drugs and test their effectiveness, to inspect manufacturers' plants and to inform doctors of the results.

The intention is to bring down the cost of prescriptions by giving doctors and druggists assurance of the quality of generic and other lower cost products.

The new efforts will cost $2.36 million when fully in operation and will require 130 more employees, especially doctors, chemists, technicians and support staff for the federal food and drug directorate.

"I am confident that the program will have a significant effect in reducing the cost of drugs sold in Canada," he said in a Commons statement.

The program will concentrate to begin with on the top-selling 80 drugs which account for 55 per cent of all prescription sales. Retail sales of prescriptions last year amounted to more than $271 million.

In the area of drug analysis the 25 chemicals used in an estimated 1,025 products will be analysed this year and the remaining 55 next year.

WILL ANALYSE CHEMICALS

In 1973, the top 200 chemicals involved in many thousands of drug products will be analysed. After that, all brands of 80-to-100 chemicals will be analysed each year with additional ones in the top 200 being examined as required.

The 90,000 separate analyses undertaken when this part of the program is in full operation would show up the manufacturers' ability to produce uniform products.

Selection of drugs for analysis will be based on sales volume, medical use, the precision of dosage required in prescribing them and the known risk of contaminants showing up in the product.

This analysis program is expected to cost $800,000 a year.

In inspection, the food and drug directorate will step up visits to each of the 104 manufacturing plants from once every three years to once a year by 1973.

In addition, an intensive review will be made of the manufacturers' capability and a guide prepared for prospective drug buyers.

Mr. Munro said provincial governments buy large amounts of drugs for mental hospitals, homes for the aged and public health units. Some provinces want to extend bulk buying to general hospitals.

CLAIMS REVIEWED

The federal government also makes large purchases for national defence and national health and welfare programs.

The inspection expansion is expected to cost $330,000 more a year.

In assessing effectiveness, claims for drugs would be reviewed and "acceptable" claims will be established by 1975 for 80 selected drugs used in an estimated 1,600 products.

Tests to determine the availability to the body of active ingredients will be stepped up to cover in each year 225 drug products using 12 chemicals. This clinical-equivalency testing is expected to cost $350,000 a year and the claims-assessments testing $425,000 annually.

Publication of the results, already begun earlier this year in the directorate's Rx Bulletin, will continue at an estimated cost of $350,000 a year. In addition, the consumer affairs department will collect and store drug price data at a cost of $100,000.

Long Hitch-Hike Over Tankers Not in Vain

OTTAWA (CP) — Two British Columbia women who hitch-hiked from Vancouver to Washington and Ottawa to protest proposed tanker transport of Alaskan oil down the B.C. coast received some assurance Wednesday that their journey may not have been in vain.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis told the women, Gwen Mallard, co-founder of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control, or SPEC, and Alice Coppard, that in his opinion it is necessary to prevent oil coming into the Strait of Georgia, the site of a proposed national underwater park.

He said the region is priceless and must be inviolable. Not only tankers but local barge traffic should be prohibited.

The women spoke with Mr. Davis for about 15 minutes in front of the Centre Block on Parliament Hill, then presented him with a petition carrying 62,000 signatures of persons declaring themselves to be "unalterably opposed" to the tanker movement of Alaskan crude oil to northwestern United States refineries.

The tanker route, in conjunction with a trans-Alaska pipeline, is under study by the U.S. as one method to transport oil from wells at Prudhoe Bay.

ANNOYED WITH CANADA

Mrs. Mallard told Mr. Davis that she and her friend learned last week in Washington that U.S. politicians and officials are irritated with Canada's failure to outline its official position on the pipeline-tanker proposal.

If Canada stated its position, it was felt the subject might move to the floor of Congress for debate.

Mrs. Mallard said SPEC is going to send a barrage of letters protesting the proposed tanker route. "But we must have the support of the government."

Mr. Davis, to become minister of the environment when the government reorganization bill is passed by Parliament, said there is no question that the government is opposed to U.S. tankers transporting crude oil so close to Canada.

The problem, which he was to discuss during the day with External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, was how to broach the subject to the U.S.

After talking with Mr. Davis, Mrs. Mallard said politicians would have to realize that something is wrong with man's treatment of his environment when two women "of our ages" find it necessary to hitch-hike from Vancouver to Ottawa to make a point.

Mrs. Mallard is 53, Mrs. Coppard 64.

SEAFRONT SITTING SECURED

WESTGAGE-ON-SEA, England (UPI) — Edith Glendinning loved to sit on the public benches on the seafront — but often she found them filled by young vacationers.

She was determined to do something about it. When she died last March at age 91 she left about $19,200 dollars to the town to provide more public benches along the seafront.

INDIGESTION NAILED DOWN?

HUCKNALL, England (UPI) — Army experts will run a metal detector over an ostrich at the Sherwood Zoo to help zoo officials find out what is giving the bird indigestion. They suspect nails and washers fed by schoolboys.

Drug Pop Banned

LONDON (AP) — Conservative legislator Ronald Bell asked the government to prosecute the makers of a pop record that includes a song about drugs. The song, Have a Whiff on Me, was banned earlier from radio by the British Broadcasting Corp. It is on a record by the Mungo Jerry, a leading British pop group.

THE WEATHER

A few thunderstorms occurred overnight in the Columbia district in association with a weak system moving through the area.

Otherwise cloud was quite patchy in keeping with rising pressures and a building high-pressure area along the B.C. coast. Interior regions will again have daytime development of cloud to give some showers and a few thunderstorms.

Coast regions will remain sunny today and Friday while less development can be expected Friday in the Interior.

Temperatures will be a little warmer.

Nurses Seek Test Project

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Registered Nurses Association of British Columbia asked the provincial government Wednesday to set up a pilot project integrating health services in a selected area.

Delegates to the association's annual meeting unanimously passed the motion asking that a "demonstration project in regionalization of preventive, acute and rehabilitative health services on an integrated basis be established."

The resolution also urged the provincial government to provide greater financial assistance for research and demonstration projects in health care delivery.

The nurses said new ways of getting health care to the public must be developed because while some people are getting good health care, others are not.

Reorganization Bill Passes Commons, Environment Portfolio Approved

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons passed the government's reorganization bill Wednesday, approving establishment of an environment department and empowering the prime minister to create new ministries of state.

Approval was given on an informal voice vote after two opposition amendments were defeated. The vote followed 23 days of debate.

James A. McGrath (PC—St. John's East) wanted the deputy minister of the environment to carry the added title of deputy minister of fisheries.

Under the bill, the present fisheries department would be eliminated.

Liberals defeated the amendment 108 to 73, standing against the three opposition parties.

SEEKS PENSION CHANGE

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) wanted public service pension provisions in the bill altered to give full pensions to public servants laid off after age 50.

Liberals stood alone again to defeat that one 105 to 67.

Standing in the 264-seat House: Liberal 149, Conservative 71, New Democrat 23, Social Credit 13, Independent 2, Ind-L 1, vacant 5.

The bill now goes to the Senate.

SETS UP DEPARTMENT

Major clauses of the reorganization bill would:

—Set up a department to take over environmental tasks now spread among several departments;

—Permit the prime minister to create new ministries to handle specific jobs such as urban affairs;

—Permit appointment of ministers of state for temporary assignments and to assist existing ministers;

—Permit appointment of as many parliamentary secretaries as there are ministers;

—Provide early retirement benefits to top public servants.

After passing the bill, MPs attacked the government's proposal to put rye, flaxseed and rapeseed under Canadian wheat board jurisdiction.

Jack Bigg (PC—Pembina) said the move would cause farmers a long wait for payments from the board just as they now do for wheat.

Robert Simpson (PC—Churchill) said the change would put the northern Manitoba port of Churchill at a disadvantage compared with other ports because it has no facilities for grains such as rapeseed.

Debate on the reorganization bill echoed the dispute begun by Atlantic-region MPs when the bill was introduced last December. The elimination of the fisheries department.

The government finally bowed to opposition pressure Tuesday by giving the environment minister the extra title of fisheries minister.

The government also agreed to an amendment permitting Commons debate on each new ministry of state the government wants to create.

In return, the opposition agreed to lift the limit of five ministries that could be set up at any one time, and to pass he bill Wednesday.

Despite the revised title for the environment minister, Mr. McGrath said he found it hard to understand why the deputy minister could not also hold the fisheries title.

"We're too low on the totem pole," added Lloyd R. Crouse (PC—South Shore). Fisheries protection required more government action, not less.

CHARGES ARROGANCE

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) said the issue of the deputy minister was especially important because of the arrogance of Mr. Davis.

The minister paid little heed to the impact of his policies on fishermen. He displayed a "slide-rule attitude that an engineer will have toward a human problem."

Mr. Davis is an engineer and economist.

Mr. Howard accused Mr. Davis of a "bald-faced falsehood" in telling the House the fisheries committee would have a chance to study his licensing restrictions for West Coast salmon fishermen.

Colin Gibson (L—Hamilton-Wentworth) demanded the Commons Speaker have Mr. Howard withdraw the charge.

The accusation—House rules forbid a charge of lying—was acceptable because there was no suggestion the alleged falsehood was deliberate, said the Speaker.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) conceded the added fisheries title for the deputy minister "may be only a bit of tokenism, but sometimes tokenism can be significant."

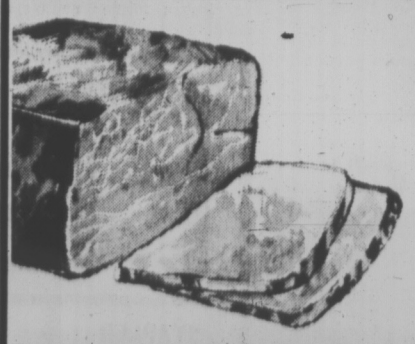

Fisheries were too important for tokenism, responded Treasury Board President C. M. Drury. The government recognized the importance of fisheries and had already instituted programs to improve them.

THE CONFESSION

Brilliant Resurrection of Cold War

After I watched Costa Gavras' new movie The Confession, the phrase "political archeology" kept bouncing through my mind.

For this film is a brilliant resurrection of the spirit of the Cold War, a cold sensibility which has been all but forgotten under the weight of contemporary frustrations.

Those were cheap, dead days, filled with paranoia and international rumor. The 1950s witnessed right-wing psychic cataclysms like United States Senator Joseph McCarthy's army hearings and saw a similar movement in Czechoslovakia with the Prague trials.

A fictional history of these trials provides the background for The Confession.

Director Gavras is famous for his highly-successful film Z, but I think The Confession is twice as good. Z was very slick, like a good detective story, but it was sentimental.

Its heroes were routine liberals whose attractiveness seemed to draw more from the memories of Jack and Robert Kennedy than from their own strengths.

The hero of The Confession is a more credible protagonist. He is a deputy minister of foreign affairs in the Czechoslovak government, a long-standing party member dedicated to building a socialist society with bureaucratic tools.

In short, he isn't much to get excited about. Yet he and half a dozen other officials get arrested on trumped-charges of espionage. Unlike the others, the hero, Yves Montand, lasts a long time under the severe interrogation techniques before he confesses. In the process, he shows what a strong personality can endure.

Montand is continually playing the role of a Communist Christ tortured either by his conscience or by the system, and I admit the role is becoming repetitious. But this time Montand surpasses these limitations with a remarkable performance.

Most of the movie is a dissection of the psychological and physical stresses Montand is subjected to. And were it not for his endless devices for keeping his head clear, The Confession would look like a piece of anti-Red propaganda.

Gavras exhumes the corpse of Stalinism, but he does not do so merely to condemn it again. That would be too easy.

The film assumes we have a conditioned fear of totalitarianism and plays on this fear to show how the bureaucratic mind excludes the human spirit. This is why The Confession is much more than an anti-Communist polimic or a fictional documentary of Stalinism.

The Confession is a chilling study of the systematic reduction of men who have sacrificed their consciences to serve a system.

The characters in this movie seem unbelievably callous. But the facts are that men do not find it hard to get this way after the first concessions have been made.

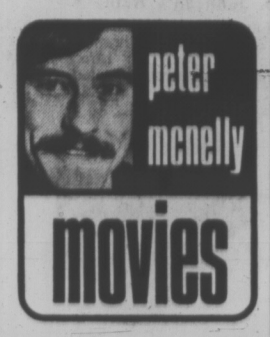

The Confession is a serious drama, but it is not dull. Photographer Raoul Coutard's work pumps tension into every scene as a magnifying glass reveals dramatic contours on routine surfaces.

Any movie photographed by Coutard is worth seeing. He is a master at bringing space alive.

If you are bored with politics and could not care less about what happened in Prague in 1952, you still would find The Confession an exciting visual experience.

By choosing material from the 1950s, Garvas is able to surmount the problems of being too close to his subject as he was with Z.

Here, in the labyrinth of Czechoslovakian prisons, his art congeals into a near-perfect blend of politics, humanism and suspense.

VICTORIA FAIR DRAMA APPLAUDED IN OTTAWA

An audience of 700 persons stood applauding as the lights dimmed on the final scene of the Victoria Fair production, Justice Not Revenge, in Ottawa, last Friday.

The 1,200 seat National Art Centre auditorium was the principal setting for the Dominion Drama Festival's Theatre Canada 71 week of drama production.

Conceived as a cost-to-coast representative collection of many kinds of theatrical activity, it revealed British Columbia to the rest of Canada through Uvic's Justice and a Simon Fraser mime production.

The standing ovation given the Victoria group was seconded back stage, according to two student members of the company now back in Victoria — Roger Leeming and Mary Anne McNeill.

Professional stage hands who had been plagued with amateurs all week were delighted with the professional attitude of the Victoria Fair group.

"In fact they found it hard to believe we were not a fully professional company," says Roger. "They compared our standard favorably with Stratford Festival standard."

Destination Anywhere In World

A petty officer serving in the destroyer-escort HMCS Yukon has won a flight to almost anywhere in the world.

Winning the free air trip is PO Robert Waters, 528 Selkirk. He was named Man of the Cycle by his commanding officer, Cmdr. C. H. Shaw for his "outstanding contribution to all phases of shipboard life and especially his work towards the morale of the crew."

The assessment was made on a 20 months' cycle basis containing four parts: refit, trials, workups and operational.

The flight was donated by an air line and the Yukon was the ship selected.

Waters has not yet decided where he will travel but says he intends to take his wife along — at his own expense.

Hurt Men Flown Out

VANCOUVER — A Canadian Forces helicopter conducted two mercy flights Wednesday, bringing an injured logger and an RCMP constable to hospital here.

Leonard Peters, 50, was picked up at Holberg on the northern end of Vancouver Island with a broken pelvis and ruptured bladder from a logging accident.

Constable Vernon Mawhinney of the Agassiz RCMP detachment was airlifted from Hope where he broke a leg while directing traffic on a motorcycle Monday night. He required special treatment.

THOMSON — On May 25, 1971, in Victoria, Mrs. Marguerite Thomson, aged 79 years, widow of the Rev. Albert G. Thomson. She leaves one sister, Mrs. T. Thomson of Maple Ridge; 3 brothers, Hubert and Oscar G. Hogg of Victoria and Reuben of Kelowna; nieces and nephews. Funeral service in McCall Bros. FLORAL CHAPEL, Johnson and Vancouver Sts., on Friday, May 28, at 10:00 a.m. Interment at Colwood Burial Park.

TOMLINSON — In Victoria, B.C., on May 25, 1971, Mrs. Dorothy Hamilton Tomlinson, aged 87 years, widow of Frank Francis Tomlinson; born in Ireland, and a resident of Victoria for the past 16 years, late residence, 150 Douglas St. She leaves her niece, Mrs. Ena Morrison, Northern Ireland. Service will be held in the Sands Mortuary Limited, "Memorial Chapel of Chimes," on Friday, May 28, 1971, at 10:30 a.m., Rev. Cyril Venables officiating. Cremation.

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.
PSALM 23.

9 IN MEMORIAM

FAIRLESS — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Frank Fairless, who passed away May 27, 1969.
His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away.
—Ever remembered by his loving wife, Frances, and sons, Frankie, Raymond and Edward, and families.

INGRAM — In loving memory of our dear dad, Frank Ingram, who passed away May 27, 1948, and our dear mother, Charlotte Ingram, who passed away April 4, 1966.
Close to our hearts they will always stay,
Loved and remembered day by day.
—Their family.

THE BISHOP CRIDGE CENTRE
FOR THE FAMILY

The Society is pleased to announce expansion of its program to assist disadvantaged families from Victoria and surrounding areas. Twenty nine town houses with 2, 3 and 4 bedrooms are expected to become available for tenancy during July and August 1971, which together with supportive care of pre-school and schoolage children are intended (predominantly) to serve families dependent on mother's income. The program is of particular interest to mothers who would prefer to seek or continue employment. Income qualifications are imposed, under low-rental housing requirements. Without any obligation, the initial form of application will be provided in response to telephoned or written requests to:
The Bishop Cridge Centre
2691 Cook St.
Victoria, B.C.
Telephone: 384-8058

★ ★ ★

ODD COUPLE. 7:30 p.m., Channel 2. Felix is responsible for the creation of an uncontrollable monster — Oscar. He talks Oscar into posing for a cologne advertisement, and he gets carried away with the glamor of it all . . . bringing on one of Felix' most serious asthma attacks.

★ ★ ★

FLIP WILSON SHOW. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun.) Emmy-winning talk-show host David Frost, leading soul singer Aretha Franklin and wild comic Charlie Callas visit Flip tonight. Miss Franklin sings "You and Me" and "mixed-Up Girl" Frost and Callas play customers in a diner operated by Flip in one sketch, and in another Frost is the speaker in Reverend Leroy's church.

★ ★ ★

ALIAS SMITH AND JONES. 7:30 p.m., Channel 4. (Rerun.) Juliet Mills guest stars as part of an archaeological group on a mysterious expedition that turns into a dangerous scene. Patrick MacNee is leader of the expeditionary force. Heyes becomes guide for the group, thinking he's outfoxed Curry, whom he's sent off to deliver a wagonload of dynamite.

★ ★ ★

DES O'CONNER. 7:30 p.m., Channel 8. (Repeated Friday at 7 p.m. on Channel 6.) This is the summer season premiere for Des. The shows are videotaped in London and tonight's guests include Jack Benny and the singing New Faces. Jack teaches Des how to strike that well-known "Well!" pose and the two debate the merits of Britain's new currency system. Songs include Puppet Man, by regular Connie Stevens.

★ ★ ★

LANCER. 8 p.m., Channel 7 (Season premiere.) (Rerun.) This series had a brief fling as a regular season offering, but starting tonight returns as a summer fare. It stars James Stacy, Wayne Maunder and Andrew Duggan. Brooke Bundy guests as a pretty young missionary whose constant fight for the rights of her mission residents gets in the way of Johnny Lancer's (Wayne Maunder's) romantic intentions.

★ ★ ★

IRONSIDE. 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun.) Part II. Ironside helps solve the murder of a criminologist while attending an international criminologist's convention in Montreal. Turns out the crime, believed the work of French-Canadian terrorists, is linked to an international theft.

★ ★ ★

DEAN MARTIN SHOW. 8:30 p.m., Channel 8, 10, Channel 5. (Rerun.) Dean's old buddy, and Chairman of the Board Frank Sinatra, since retired, joins the cast. Frankie sings "Something," and Dean sings "Young at Heart." and they get together for "But Beautiful," "Goody Goody," "Love" and "My Kind of Girl" Ruth Buzzi and Barbara Heller join Dean and Frank in a number of sketches.

★ ★ ★

BEWITCHED. 9 p.m., Channel 6. (Rerun.) We're still in Salem, Mass., where last week Darrin was cleared of stealing an antique from the House of Seven Gables. But tonight, he faces further embarrassment. All Samantha wanted was a Paul Revere teapot. Instead she got Paul and his horse in her hotel room, and just before Darrin is scheduled to meet important clients.

TONIGHT'S MOVIES

5:30: Channel 12: The Iron Man (1951 Drama) Jeff Chandler, Evelyn Keyes. Jeff Chandler is excellent as the peace loving coal miner turned boxing champ.

7:30: Channel 12: Five Graves to Cairo (1943 Drama) Franchot Tone, Anne Baxter. A soldier loses his outfit and promptly outwits the Nazis in North Africa.

Channel 13: Tomorrow We Live (1942 drama) Ricardo Cortez, Jean Parker. The story is about a girl who nearly gives in to a slimy racketeer in order to save his father from imprisonment.

9:00: Channel 2: Warning Shot (1967 Crime-Drama) David Janssen, Lillian Gish. Sgt. Tom Valens attempts to clear himself of a manslaughter charge, but a missing gun and an assassin are impeding his efforts.

11:00: channel 13: Federal Fugitives (1941 Mystery) Neil Hamilton, Doris Day. A young man investigates a series of plane crashes.

11:30: Channel 7: Kangaroo (1952 Drama) Maureen O'Hara, Peter Lawford. The beautiful on location photography (Australia) is the best feature of this adventure drama.

11:50: Channel 2: Wings and the Women (British; 1942 Drama) Anna Neagle, Robert Newton. Story of a woman pilot and her unhappy marriage.

TOO MANY BOATS TO LIST IN DETAIL New —

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

In a release from the American Medical Association, I read that if a child with leukemia (cancer of the blood) is treated with four or five strong drugs at a time, he or she has a chance now of living at least five years. This is very good news because a while ago the best thing that parents could hope for was that the child could live perhaps one extra year.

The new method of treatment which is a program called "total therapy," was used on 37 children, and Dr. Donald Pinkel reported that eight children out of the group were able to survive five years after treatment. Very encouraging is that seven of the eight survivors are in what is called complete remission — they look as if they were cured, and they haven't been receiving any treatment for the last one-and-a-half years to three-and-a-half years.

They had an acute lymphocytic leukemia, a disease which until recently was invariably fatal. It appears now that half of the children treated in the new way will survive for a few years. The fact that they seem to be perfectly well at five years makes us hopeful that perhaps some of them will stay well for a long time.

'Power Elite' Rules Grits

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rebel Liberal Paul Hellyer said Wednesday three or four federal cabinet ministers and perhaps a dozen high-ranking civil servants exercise "phenomenal power" and are using the governmental system to put their ideas to work.

Hellyer, explaining the goals of his new Action Canada movement to a Canadian Club luncheon, said some important government decisions are made by a minority within the cabinet.

And he told a news conference later he would not name the "power elite" which dominates the cabinet, adding that it should not be difficult for anyone to figure out.

(Hellyer was in Victoria briefly Wednesday for what he described as a personal visit and was not available for an interview.)

Strike Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO United Telegraph Workers union has ordered a nationwide strike of some 17,000 Western Union workers in the United States at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday, and a union leader said the walkout appears unavoidable.

Cowichan Band Returns To the Land

No race can prosper till it learns that there is as much dignity in tilling a field as in writing a poem. — Booter T. Washington, Up from Slavery, 1901.

By AB KENT

The future of Cowichan Valley Indians hangs for the next two years on slender sprigs of grape and berry vines, and the optimism of a few men.

Once-able farmers from Koksilah have floundered for two generations about the fringes of white man's ways. Now they are returning to their fertile valley floor to reassert a rich farming heritage and, hopefully, to earn their way through their own efforts as men and women of the soil.

For if a three-way gamble by the Cowichan Band, government and industry pays off, the Indians will have for the first time in years the luxury of hard cash crops of grapes and berries for the B.C. wine industry.

It won't be a handout and it won't be the result of a program forced on the band. The concept grew through the determination of co-operation of band leaders, Growers' Wine Co. Ltd., the federal departments of northern affairs and agriculture, and provincial agriculturalists.

All were represented on an inspection of the plots Wednesday, followed by a luncheon to mark the second successful year of growth.

Now could remember exactly how the project got launched; who could be given the credit specifically.

"It is gratifying that we have to dig into our memories to see how it all started," remarked Growers' director Brian Roberts.

"If it hadn't been for industry the project would never have got off the ground," said Harry Andison, research director at the Saanich experimental farm.

When tillage begins, other arts follow. The farmers are the founders of human civilization.—Daniel Webster, 1840.

Growers', he said, guaranteed the market up to four years ahead of actual crop harvests.

Project manager Hamish Mutter — the only white man with a direct part in the undertaking — said what has taken place so far is an example of an Indian co-operative and private enterprise working together.

Cowichan chief and band manager Dennis Alphonse — at 38 with nearly 20 years' experience in leading his people — gave the project his support, knowing it could be a powerful added inducement to putting Indian lands back into Indian-owned crops.

"It was a struggle to organize a co-operative at first. We had to sell the idea to our own band members," Alphonse said. Critics here became co-op members.

"I think it can be a success and hope for the Cowichan band is assured with the co-operation of the (agricultural) experts and Growers'," the chief added.

An interested observer, though out of his constituency, was David Anderson, MP Esquimalt-Saanich, who commented: "It is essential that reserve lands are used to their potential throughout the province."

He also saw the project as an opportunity for further federal programs.

"Perhaps we're breaking through in little ways here and there and getting away from the old paternalistic approach. Basically, the government is trying to put the Indian affairs department out of business with viable, Indian-operated farming, business, marinas, or whatever."

And they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them.—Isiah: 65, 21.

It will be about two or three years before the Indian co-op breaks even, Chief Alphonse estimated. Meanwhile, the federal government pays the farm workers.

Sixty years ago the Cowichans were excellent farmers, tilling their alluvial land between the Cowichan and Koksilah rivers with renowned skill.

But until two years ago, most had allowed their family acres to decline and were leasing the land to white farmers at $25 or $30 an acre and the soil became poorer.

More than 1,000 acres are arable, of which about 540 have been cultivated in the past. This year, including all crops, more than 300 acres are in use, including the grapes and berries, potatoes, vegetables and hay.

Only one Indian still rents his land out.

"They don't have to go to Idaho to pick potatoes any more," Roberts remarked. The co-operative approach has stabilized the community, eliminating the custom of migrating to where root and berry crops were being harvested.

Absenteeism Monday morning is unheard of.

From the Indians' point of view, success of the grape crops means selling only to a winery. But the berries, if suitable, can be sold for table consumption at more attractive prices, with winery sales as an alternative.

The Cowichan blackberry crop is well-established, with eight out of 15 planted acres in production. Last year they yielded $340 a ton from Growers' and expectations this year are for a crop of three tons an acre.

Growers' chose grape hybrids they thought would do well in the valley, varieties which mature early and cannot be grown in the Okanagan. The federal agriculturalists, who picked 25 possible types, narrowed the field to 15 which they proved would grow in Saanich, a delicate group with fine wine potential.

About two more years are needed to evaluate the program, said Growers' president and chairman Derek Haxell. "There is still a risk involved. That's why it is so magnificent the two governments have come in," he said.

Vote Approves Parking Bylaw

NANAIMO (CP) — A referendum authorizing expenditure of $700,000 for two multi-level parking garages in the downtown area was approved by a solid majority Tuesday.

Property owners in a special assessment area voted 95 to 51 in favor of the project, returning 146 ballots out of a possible 216. Had the total vote been under 126 ballots a two-thirds majority would have been required.

City council will meet in committee Friday to adopt the parking bylaw.

What Makes Husbands Tick Three-Part Series Discusses

Man Does Not Marry for Love Alone

What is it — good looks, good cooking, good loving? What really makes a man get married these days and, more particularly, what made him marry you? Following is the first of three articles on marriage, husbands, and what men want in women.

By GILLIAN FRANKS

NEW YORK (WNS) — Have you ever wondered why, with an estimated 1,500 million women to choose from, your husband happened to pick you? Indeed, have you ever wondered why he ever decided to get married at all.

Well, there's one unpalatable fact you must face right away: the average man doesn't marry just for love. It's also rather unnerving to realize that 22 per cent of men, once they are married soon begin to wish, in some ways, that they weren't.

It's only recently that the phenomenon of men and marriage has been closely examined by psychologists and motivational researchers in a dozen countries, but the results have already convinced the experts of one thing:

Love, devotion and physical attraction, important though they certainly are, will not usually be enough to lure a man into your life and keep him there for good.

In the gay old unenlightened days, we used to think that a chap met a pretty girl, liked the look of her, fell in love, married and lived happily ever after.

Now, studies and opinion polls reveal it was probably nothing of the kind: he married to fulfill a variety of unconscious psychological needs and to gratify a dozen sinister-sounding emotions like hostility, dominance and status-aspiration.

★ ★ ★

But one point man never seems in doubt: there's one sort of woman he doesn't want to be burdened with — and that's a replica of the one who married dear old dad!

We all know that husbands, to a man, love their mothers dearly, but when Toronto psychologist Dr. Derwent Kent recently queried men students about their image of a prospective mate, he found that in only ten per cent of cases did this image embody all the qualities possessed by the man's mother.

BEST AGE TO WED

What is the best age for a man to marry?

When interviewed during a two-year survey conducted by psychologist Dr. Otto Weininger of Vienna, over 60 per cent of men considered they had married too young, subjecting the marriage to a financial strain which would have been less severe had they been further advanced in their careers.

Thirty was generally considered the ideal age for a man to marry. He would still be comparatively young when the children were in their twenties, and would have had experience with several women before settling down with the right one.

All men like looking at beautiful girls, but very few, it seems actually want to marry one. What they really want is a girl who is a good companion first, a good mother second, and a good lover third. What they don't want is a wife who reminds them too much of their own mother!

"It's surely no coincidence," says Dr. Weininger, "that a man who marries at 20 has 30 per cent more chance of being divorced at 50 than a man who marries at 30."

Which qualities do men look for in a wife?

When 1,000 married men were asked this question as part of a recent British sociological poll, 49 per cent put "being a good companion" at the top of the list.

Next came "a good mother" with 16 per cent, followed by "a good lover" with 15 per cent.

★ ★ ★

Only eight per cent thought good housekeeping was important, and only five per cent chose good cooking. At the bottom of the list came good hostess, good conversationalist and good businesswoman.

Noteworthy is the way parental qualities become more in demand as the importance of love-making declines — usually after about six years of marriage. But the desire for a good companion is overwhelming at all ages.

"What I really wanted," an oil company executive told the pollsters, "was somebody I could talk to, who wouldn't just sit there. I didn't really care if she was a raving beauty or not."

A man married 35 years remarked: "She's given more to me than I'll ever be able to and I'm going to try to make it up them — but I don't know if I'll ever be able to repay the love and companionship she's given me."

Another study, organized by Dr. Allan Fromme of New York's Bellevue Hospital, showed that the virtues that make a women unforgettable to men are: charm, beauty, sex, intelligence, and wit, in that order.

But Dr. Fromme doesn't completely accept the accuracy of his findings. "It's not at all uncommon," he says, "fore men to describe any number of characteristics they would find desirable in their ideal partner — but which in fact would not fit into their own lives."

★ ★ ★

For example, tests undergone by several of the men showed that they really wanted a partner with considerably less intelligence than they have.

Indeed, some of the volunteers revealed a deep-seated fear of marrying a wife who turned out to be brighter than they were.

How important are children?

Supremely. All surveys found that the vast majority of men — 90 per cent in some polls — put being a good father before a successful career. They unanimously regret not being able to spend more time with their children, particularly in the first five years.

Yet sadly, over 60 per cent of children under ten, according to a painstaking French study involving 2,000 children, feel closer to their mothers than to their fathers.

★ ★ ★

How important is sex?

As one sociologist points out: "What man has to marry to ensure himself a satisfactory sex-life these days?" Far more likely he married for what Sigmund Freud called: "The deep peace of the marriage bed."

Only four per cent of men questioned in a British survey regarded themselves as good lovers, although the vast majority thought they were more-than-adequate fathers, companions and wage earners.

In Italy 16 per cent thought they were good lovers, and in France 31 per cent.

As the marriage progresses the importance of sex apparently declines. Dr. Weininger's study revealed that 46 out of 100 men engaged to be married considered sex life was the most important aspect of marriage.

★ ★ ★

Questioned again after they had been married two years, this number had dropped to 15 per cent.

How important are good looks?

Highly important in a girlfriend, but not so essential in a wife. All men like looking at beautiful girls and will date a traffic stopper once or twice, but unless she has something else to offer, won't usually bother after that.

What do men want in a wife? 1,000 husbands, asked this question, came up with these answers:

Good companion	49 per cent
Good mother	16 per cent
Good lover	15 per cent
Good housekeeper	18 per cent
Good cook	5 per cent
Good hostess	3 per cent
Good conversationalist	2 per cent
Good businesswoman	2 per cent

"I fell in love with her looks," said a man married seven years. "But she's got no sense of humor and it makes it awfully hard to live with her."

"I fell in love with her eyes," said a man married 22 years, "and luckily I came to love the rest of her, too — but it's a risky way to start a marriage."

"She has the most beautiful teeth," says a husband whose wife walked out on him a few weeks ago, "and I'd like to knock them all out right now!"

Why do men regret marriage?

Twenty-two per cent in the five-to-ten-years-married category have the sneaking feeling that they may have missed something. Most of these, according to the statistics, have married young without much experience of other women.

★ ★ ★

"We've missed a lot of things," says a 26-year-old salesman. "But perhaps we'll make up for that when the kids get older. We've missed going abroad for holidays, cars, going out at night. But I don't really miss them — I mean I don't regret anything."

Looking back at the things done, the things undone, the love, the remorse, 80 per cent of men still agree that marriage has changed them for the better.

"Before I was married," says an executive in his thirties, "no one could push me around. Marriage has mellowed me a lot. If I'd had these kids at 20, I'd have slaughtered them."

DANCES WERE PERFORMED in honor of Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson when he attended the Stsamis Indian festival at Macaulay Point Wednesday. The Indian name Stsamis was also bestowed upon him and he was presented with a mask by Ellen White of Nanaimo. The festival runs until Saturday. (Irving Strickland photo.)

Italians Avoid Divorce

ROME (AP) — Italians have made sparing use of divorce in the five months since it became legally possible to get one. That has not stopped militant Roman Catholics from launching a crusade against the law.

The opponents are campaigning to force a national referendum on the law, and almost certainly will succeed in doing so.

With millions eligible for divorce, officials had forecast a stampeded to the courts.

It didn't happen that way.

In Milan, perhaps the most socially permissive city, fewer than 4,000 divorce petitions have been filed since parliament approved the law Dec. 1. Industrial Turin set up a special office to handle an expected flood of suits. Barely 2,000 were filed in four months.

In Rome, 3,957 suits have been filed and court sources say they are declining. Because of red tape, only about 25 divorces have been granted in Rome so far, and little more than 100 in Milan.

Many of the rich and famous were among the first to seek divorce — people like Maria Callas and Gina Lollobrigida. Most of the others were elderly persons who had been legally separated for more than the five years required by the law.

The reluctance of other Italians to sue is being traced to fear of publicity and the bureaucratic court system, the respect for family ties. In some cases the hesitancy of separated husbands to remarry — with their mistresses — seems a factor.

LIGHT INTO SOUND

Blind Hear Colors With Probe

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A University of Western Ontario physicist may bring the world of color to the blind — not through their eyes but rather through their often acute hearing ability.

Dr. Cho Yuk Leung, in collaboration with physics chairman Dr. J. W. McGowan and anatomist Dr. Martin Hollenberg, has developed a color probe which transforms light beams into sound waves allowing the sightless to "hear" colors.

The color probe's form is almost as simple as its name: a light-sensing head, not unlike a miniature space capsule, extending on a cord from a battery cylinder about the size of a flashlight.

From the unit's head, light beams are directed at colored surfaces and returning beams are transformed through photo sensors into tones of sound. The tones are carried to the ear through a small earphone.

Basic red, green and blue colors trigger distinct notes of the scale. Grades of colors are distinguished by combinations of tones, to the practised listener can pick out the shades of the scale.

"The beauty of this is that it might help the blind get more jobs," says Dr. Hollenberg. "We aren't so much interested in the esthetics — getting them interested in beautiful paintings — as in getting these people jobs."

The researchers believe the color probe might enable the blind to detect color-coded wires, advancing the possibility of soldering jobs in industry.

Dr. Leung says the larger prototype, including battery, has between $30 and $40 worth of materials in it, but he believes that with microcircuitry a working model costing less than $50 can be mass-produced and would be only the size of a signet ring.

Women Could Earn Union Respect By Showing Concern About Status

OTTAWA (CP) — Women must show more concern about their place in the working world before they can expect swift changes in men's thinking, a study of union workers in Quebec concludes.

The study, released Wednesday, was done for the royal commission on the status of women by Renee Geoffroy and Paule Sainte-Marie.

It is based on about 500 questionnaires and 30 interviews with active unionists. The average worker answering the questionnaire was a French Canadian manual laborer with children and a working wife.

The researchers found that these workers tend to feel that women, lacking interest in bettering their working status, are most to blame for the position they are in.

But the study also showed that the attitude of men unionists to women's employment is "still wrapped in a web of contradictions."

"Convinced that women of necessity work only 'for a time,' and that their wages can only be 'pin money,' they judge women workers on the basis of these assumptions," the study said. Women were also conditioned by this thinking.

Individually, men in trade unions clung to the age-old concept that a woman's place is in the home. But as union members, they had to admit that women workers have the same rights as they did and that the union movement should ensure the recognition of these rights.

Although gradually women's rights were being written into collective agreements, there did not appear to be any overall, coherent thinking among unionists about working women's status.

AS A SERVICE to the community, the Community Arts Council of Greater Victoria is presenting a television program Thursday evenings at 9 p.m. on Channel 10. The show, Arts Calendar, presents a list of forthcoming events in theatre, music, art and films and features special guests discussing aspects of coming events related to their creative fields. Pictured above taping one of the programs are, from left, special guest Katharine Dicerson, council members Anne Purdon and Erika Kurth and composer Christine Chester.

IODE to Visit Soldiers' Graves

Members of Municipal Chapter of Victoria IODE will attend morning service at the Church of Our Lord Sunday for their annual service of intercession.

The service has been scheduled to coincide with the intercession service of the National Chapter in session in St. John's Newfoundland. The Ladies' Auxiliary will serve a sandwich lunch following the service.

Members will hold their annual service of remembrance at 2 p.m. at the Cross of Sacrifice in Ross Bay cemetery. Bishop D. A. G. Rankilor will officiate at the ceremony and alderman Percy Baird will represent Mayor Courtney Haddock.

Members of the IODE have been caring for the soldiers' graves in Ross Bay cemetery or more than 50 years. The chapters will place floral tributes on the Cross with Navy League Chapter placing its tribute on the Naval Memorial.

FAIRFAX, Iowa (AP) — Walt Hickey has formed the Midwest Women's Racing Association so that women can hold stock car races of their own. The association has 15 members, with 12 women already building cars for the racing season. The cars must be "street stock" of 1949 to 1960.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Hire Lawyer

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 34-year-old divorcee with four teen-aged boys to support. It's four years since I've been divorced, and my ex-husband owes me $6,000 in back support. Because of this, I am deeply in debt, could soon lose my home and have my wages garnisheed. If this keeps up I will be forced to file bankruptcy.

My "ex" has remarried and has a wife plus two children to support. He has no interest in our four children, and the only times he visits them is when one of the boys calls him and begs him to come.

The girls at work say I must still love him or I'd have put him in jail long ago. My family says I am crazy. What is your advice? — Perplexed.

DEAR PERPLEXED: See a lawyer. And if you don't take this advice, see a doctor. (Psychiatrist type.)

DEAR ABBY: What is the proper thing to say to a guy in the following situation?

You are out on a date, and he is nice, but you wouldn't want to go out with him again. When you say good-night, he asks you for next weekend. I'm afraid if I say I have other plans, he will ask me for the next free weekend.

I don't want to hurt his feelings, but I don't want to go out with him again because he likes me in a way that I don't like him.

Please tell me what to say, Abby. I am sure other girls have this problem. I hope it's something I can say easily because I have . . . No Guts.

DEAR NO GUTS: All you need is gumption enough to say, "I am complimented that you want to take me out again, but please ask another girl — someone who could like you in more than a sisterly way. I think you're nice, but it's like a brother-sister deal. Okay?" (P.S. And if he says he doesn't mind having you for a "sister," tell him you don't want him for a "brother.")

DEAR ABBY: I can really sympathize with any woman who is married to a man who snores but insists he doesn't. (For some strange reason, snorers are usually married to non-snorers, and therefore don't realize how annoying it can be.)

My husband's snoring sounded like a chicken bone in a garbage disposal, and he swore he didn't make a sound. I rented a tape recorder and set it up under the bed while he was gone. That night when he really got turned up I held the microphone right under his nose and got about 10 beautiful minutes of snoring. Then I reversed the tape, turned up the volume and nearly blasted him out of bed. He took it good naturedly, but with a stubborn husband you can always threaten to give him a nightly concert until he agrees to do something like see a doctor.

By the way, this works beautifully with children who are whiners and fussers. I made my little boy sit down and listen to 30 minutes of his own fussing and it really helped him to stop it. We don't realize how we sound to other people until it's played back to us. This is also a help for nagging wives and screaming mothers. — Sylvia.

DEAR ABBY: I have a lovely home, beautifully carpeted throughout. Whenever I call a plumber to do inside work, a man shows up with muddy boots, smelling like a sewer. I think for the rates a plumber charges, he can show his customers a little more consideration.

I realize the plumber has a lot of dirty jobs to do, but is it necessary for him to come directly to a home for inside work after having been sweating for hours in a filthy sewer? — Irritated

DEAR IRRITATED: Almost all servicemen will remove their muddy boots at the door without being told. (And if you have to tell them to, they'll accommodate you.) But you can't expect a plumber who has come from a dirty "stoppage" job to shower, change his clothes, and get a shine before going to your home. All you can do is specify that yours is an inside job when you call a plumber.

Barber Syrt on Razor Cuts

Razor cuts are nothing new. Back in 1950, finishing my 4-year apprenticeship in The Netherlands, my main examination piece was the production of a full hairstyle by using only a razor, a comb and a brush! In the 40's as an instructor I have trained young barbers in hairstyling. The invasion of the electric clipper pushed the razor into disuse. An entire generation of barbers was never trained in hair cutting by razor. The modern longer hairstyles require the final contouring and refined shaping of the skilfully used razor!

You see: Old masters in barbering are "in" again!

BODY WAVE BACK

Hairstyles Soften for Summer

By GLENNIS ZILM

EDMONTON (CP) — Hair styles this summer and fall will be softer, more casual and more suited to today's clothes fashions, says Frank Cairo of Edmonton, winner of the World Supreme trophy in hair styling in New York in 1970 and a member of the 1970 Canadian team of hairdressers.

"It's a casual look, cut so the hair seems thinner and can move-sway-with the motion of the head as the woman moves," he said in an interview.

The haircutting trend is to have the crown area short, with any length at the sides or back, he said. But for the "grown-up woman — between 30 and 50 — anything goes."

"She will wear what suits her wardrobe and her personality."

The whole trend is toward co-ordination of hair fashions and clothing fashions, he said.

"It's a total look — a combination of clothes and hair."

Mr. Cairo began his apprenticeship in hairdressing in Italy at 14. He came to Canada in 1957 when he was 16 and now owns four salons.

He believes that creating a hair style for a person is a matter between both the customer and the hairdresser. When he plans a style for a customer, he analyses not only her looks, but also her "self-image" and personality.

"Personality counts more, maybe," he said. "Any style will suit any face — it can be adapted a little here or there.

"But the style must suit the person."

Back-combing is a thing of the past, he said.

"The look is soft now. The style must be in the set — often a curly, natural look."

The only back-combing — if any — will be to do a bit of shaping or to set a curl in place, he said.

There is a trend toward more curl. And to help hold the curl, the body wave is coming back. He said even the teen-agers have shown an interest in these.

But not in a permanent that brings in tight little curls, he added. "It's a soft, wash-and-wear wave."

COLORS WILL CHANGE

Coloring will be another change this summer, he said. When he was in New York this spring, the fashion was for a "sun-kissed look," which likely will replace streaking.

The sun-kissed look is achieved by giving a natural, shiny shade ranging from dark, natural browns to a golden blonde. Then a light bleaching is done carefully only on the ends, with no line of demarcation.

"The woman looks as if she has spent all summer on a golden beach."

The coloring needs to be professionally done, he said. But it can be done on any length of hair and, once done, it need not be redone often.

So even the coloring is for a more natural look. The harsh silver-blondes and pastels will look out of place among these natural, casual styles.

Hair ornaments are fashionable this year, with barrettes, small braided hair pieces, scarves and, in the evening, hair jewelry all being shown. But even the evening look still is basically simple.

No woman wants to buy an expensive dress, then have it overshadowed by an elaborate $7 hairdo, he said. "Again, this is the total-look idea, where clothes are complemented by the hair.

CUSTOMERS SHY

Mr. Cairo is a member of the Canadian hair-styling committee that is planning the provincial trials to select the hairdressers who will go to Europe with the 1972 Canadian team.

He noted that even for professional competition there is a trend toward styles that anyone can wear.

"In the past, competition was a totally different field. The style just couldn't be put on a head."

But there is a movement away from the ultra-eleborate look even in competition. And while the competition still tests the artistic ability and creativeness of the competitor, the looks are fashion looks that will be worn.

Canadian hair stylists are as good today as anywhere in the world, he said. In 1970, the Canadian team was seventh among 22 nations in world competition, beating out the United States, which was ninth.

"But Canadian customers are too shy. You do something and they say, looking horrified: "Well, it's different.'

"They want to wait two years until it catches on before they try it."

Amazing new automatic toilet bowl cleaner.

Here it is: THE gadget for cleaning – as well as disinfecting. And Mighty Flush does them both. At the same time. With nothing to mix or measure! You just hang Mighty Flush in the tank and forget about it. And you can forget that unpleasant toilet clean-up chore, too.

Mighty Flush has a unique two-compartment automatic dispenser. And that's why Mighty Flush succeeds. Inside are specially-developed, concentrated cleaning and germ-killing agents which are released in pre-measured amounts every time the toilet is flushed. And you'll actually see Mighty Flush go to work, because it turns the water a nice aqua blue. So if you really want to keep your toilet bowl clean and disinfected, all you have to do is give it a Mighty Flush. Today.

SHAPING UP IN LANGFORD

Battle of Septic Tanks

Septic tanks must not be permitted in a proposed 500-to 700-acre housing subdivision on the west side of Thetis Lake Park in Langford, the Capital Regional District board was told Wednesday.

"We realize that the announced intention of the developers is to connect up to a proposed sewer line, but if this line is delayed we would certainly not want to see even a temporary sewage plant put in where there is a danger of any effluent reaching Thetis Lake or its surroundings," said Outdoor Club of Victoria president Robert L. Spearing.

He was commenting on the subdivision proposal announced last month by Thetis Park Estates Ltd.

Spearing said the area appears to be made up of a rocky sub-strata with a thin layer of gravel on top. The contours seem to mainly follow a series of gullies angling off towards the park, he said.

Because of the narrowness of the section of park above the upper lake "there is too much risk of the housing units of the development being close enough to spoil the aesthetic nature of this section of the park.

"Also its existence, as an area of concentrated population, would encourage an invasion of this end of the park that would be practically uncontrollable."

He said a suitable buffer should be established.

"Also, to control access routes to a reasonable number of footpaths, and to pedestrian traffic, rather than horse and motorcycle traffic as well, a fence between the subdivision and the park be considered with some sort of controlling barriers at the gateways in the fence."

Sour Note Sounded

ALTON, Ill. (AP) — A sour note was sounded at the National Vinegar Co. plant. Sheriff's officers said the plant was shut down after vandals damaged vinegar bottling machines, gauges and other equipment. Plant manager Charles Henson said repairs will cost about $2,000.

'Dumb' School Charge Laid

Upset by parents' accusations, Saanich school board will investigate alleged differences in educational standards held by district elementary schools.

An irate delegation protested to the board Wednesday a rumored transfer of two long-time Brentwood elementary teachers and complained that Brentwood was known as a "dumb" school.

Spokesman K. R. Franklin, 989 Verdier Ave. asked how school superintendent Cory Holob assesses the needs of each school. Removal of the two senior teachers would, he inferred, place Brentwood children at an even greater disadvantage. "I don't care one iota about school board's over-all concept if we are made to suffer."

UNAWARE

Board chairman Jack Armstrong said that the board was unaware of the transfer of teachers in this case.

Superintendent Holob said that individual teachers were contacted as a matter of policy before proposals involving transfer came before school board. "I think teachers deserve this forewarning," said Holob. He apologized for the embarrassment caused the board by unexpected reaction.

Trustees John Pennington and Zachary Hamilton were upset by the attitude of Brentwood parents, several of whom told the board that their children were considered "unprepared" when they reached junior high.

The delegation promised to return for more answers at the June 14 board meeting.

THE MUSINGS OF BEN GINTER

How to succeed in business without friends in the government seems the best way to describe the musings of Ben Ginter.

Announcing Wednesday in Victoria that his products have finally been accepted by Pacific Brewers Warehousing Ltd., the Prince George industrialist — known as "Uncle Ben" to many beer drinkers — went a fair way to disproving his well-known theories about big government and big business.

Pacific Brewers Warehousing is the operation that handles distribution of beer for the big brewing companies who have been the subject of monopolist charges by Ginter.

He told a general meeting of the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce that beginning July 1, Ginter is in with Pacific Brewers.

But this did not come about because Ginter has got inside the "protection racket" big government provides for big business.

Ginter told his audience he has tried for a year and a half to get an appointment to see Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, under whose jurisdiction falls the only real liquor sales monopoly in the province, the B.C. Liquor Control Board.

"He won't answer his phone," said Ginter. "The only time I get an answer is when I say in a letter I will assume you approve if I don't hear from you."

In earlier times, when he and Peterson were riding together in a car, Peterson asked to get out before they met up with a group of other cabinet ministers, so they wouldn't see whom he was accompanying, Ginter recalled.

But it's not all bad. Despite the 15 per cent tax advantage he says foreign-owned companies have when they enter Canada, despite being ignored by government leaders, despite the heretofore cold shoulder given him by the big brewers and despite the "jealous competition" shown by so many other B.C. businessmen, Ginter is staying in B.C.

He gave no particular reasons, but it might have something to do with the fact that his B.C. businesses have somehow managed to keep him in the millionaire bracket, and who knoww how well he may do now that he's in with the big time operators.

Dangerous Products Crackdown Pressed

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial authorities have agreed to help the federal government ferret out hazardous products, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford announced Wednesday.

In an interview following the final closed session of the federal-provincial conference on consumer affairs, he said provincial delegates have indicated that fire officials, coroners and other experienced persons will be consulted about hazardous products and their views will be passed on to him.

Under the Hazardous Products Act administered by Mr. Basford's department, the government can regulate or prohibit hazardous products. Since it was passed two years ago, it has been used to increase toy safety and accentuate warnings on hazardous household chemicals.

Now the federal minister wants to establish a systematic way of collecting information on the relation of hazardous products to accidents as well and has asked for provincial co-operation.

He said in a statement rough estimates show that one to two million injuries annually are associated with consumer products other than vehicles. Possibly 100,000 to 150,000 of these injuries led to hospital treatment.

By collecting information on harm caused by hazardous products, the most serious product-associated hazards might be identified and the effectiveness of remedial actions studied.

The conference also agreed to priority treatment for a wide range of issues relating to product performance.

Questions of major consumer concern included minimum performance standards, fuller information about products, manufacturer acceptance of responsibility for their products, warranties and guarantees, repairs and servicing and consumer recourse to compensation for unsatisfactory product performance.

The conference also agreed that full consumer protection in the credit field requires close federal-provincial consultation and that consumers need more information about laws made to protect them.

The conference called on major retail stores to experiment with unit pricing—marking the price per unit of weight of a product. The federal department intends to do research on the practice to determine whether it would substantially aid comparison shopping.

Salaries Unaffected By High Unemployment

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — What has happened to wages and salaries since high unemployment struck the land?

The short answer, says Dr. John Young, head of the prices and incomes commission, is: "Not much—yet."

There are signs that new wage contracts being negotiated by the larger labor unions do not contain wage increases as large as a year or six months ago.

But there hasn't been any significant decline in hourly wage rates, weekly wages and salaries, or total labor income. Rather, they have increased.

When the government made inflation the No. 1 target for economic policy and began to slow inflation's rate of increase, it knew that higher unemployment would result.

The economic record for more than 100 years has shown the only way to fight inflation in an open-market free-enterprise economy is to force an economic slow-down. That stops or at least slows the upward surge of prices, but means reductions in production and, consequently, unemployment.

PRODUCTION DOWN

Production has slowed. The index of industrial production has not moved substantially in more than a year. Until there was a spurt this spring, manufacturer shipments had varied little for about two years.

Wholesale prices generally have been steady for more than a year and, while consumer prices are still rising, the rate of climb has been sharply cut to less than two per cent a year from about five per cent a year ago.

Unemployment has surged ahead, with a remarkable bump up last month to 659,000 or 7.8 per cent of the 8.4 million people in the labor force. But analysts say there was a declining trend in the six months from last September to this March.

Official statistics indicate the effect of all this on incomes appears to be minimal.

Total labor income is running at more than $4,000 million a month, compared with $3,800 million a month early last fall. While unemployment is high, there still are more people working this year than last—and at higher rates of pay.

EARNINGS UP

Average earnings for workers in manufacturing this spring ran to about $3.20 an hour, compared with $2.95 early last year.

Taking all wages and salaries reported by employers of 20 people or more, the average pay cheque was $130.82 a week in January this year, compared with $123.08 in January last year.

Chamber to Debate Oil Tankers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Resolutions ranging from a ban on highway hitchhiking to a moratorium on proposals for supertankers carrying Alaska oil down the British Columbia coast will be put before delegates to the 20th annual general meeting of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce starting June 6 in Kelowna.

The delegates, representing about 100 chambers and boards throughout B.C., also will hear speakers talking on the conference theme: "The Deadly Spiral —Poverty and Inflation."

The resolution on hitchhiking, submitted by the Revelstoke chamber, points out that "transients hitchhiking throughout our province constitute a traffic hazard and a nuisance."

It also claims the presence of hitchhikers is potentially dangerous to the tourist industry.

The resolution calls for the enactment and enforcement of "suitable legislation prohibiting the practice of hitchhiking along our major highways."

Both the Coquitlam and Salt Spring Island chambers will put forward resolutions on proposed oil tanker traffic along the coast.

NO GUARANTEES

The Coquitlam resolution says "there can be no guarantees against a disastrous oil spill . . . which will affect our coastal shores and waters."

It urges that "all governments involved hold a moratorium on the seaborne transport proposal until such time as adequate safeguards against sea spillage can be guaranteed or until a satisfactory alternative proposal can be developed . . ."

The Salt Spring Island resolution recommends that the B.C. Chamber of Commerce "use its good offices" to prevent such use of tankers and to "urge the federal government to work cooperatively with groups in the United States having similar concerns."

Nanaimo is also concerned about coastal waters, urging that Canada and the U.S. should jointly establish along the entire North American west coast a system of accurate, blind navigational aids coupled with a compulsory radio reporting system to a central office.

It also calls for "harbors of refuge where vessels damaged in a way likely to result in oil spills could enter and take action to eliminate the problem.

WANTS CHANGES

The chamber's labor committee calls for six legislative changes including restricting picketing to the place of business involved in a dispute and allowing office employees a choice on whether to join an industrial union certified at their company.

"Recent history provides examples where a group of employees on strike at one branch of a company have picketed not only that particular operation but also other branches of the company at different locations where there was no dispute."

It also wants a revision of the Mediation Commission Act to provide for government-supervised strike votes, appointment of a public enforcement officer to investigate alleged labor statute violations, provisions for "reasonable notice" before a strike or lockout and amendments to the act to allow striking workers a "fair opportunity" to vote on an employer's offer.

However, not all the resolutions planned for what the organizers are calling the "no-nonsense convention," deal with B.C.'s weighty problems.

A resolution submitted by Windermere calls on Attorney-General Leslie Peterson to authorize RCMP stationed in national parks to wear their scarlet formal dress uniforms during the tourist season.

NEW HOSPITAL DISPUTE COULD AFFECT 10,000

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—The union representing about 180 employees of the Trail Regional Hospital served 72-hour strike notice Wednesday in a contract dispute which could eventually involve almost all 10,000 members of the British Columbia Hospital Employees' Union.

The dispute is complicated and goes back to a memorandum of agreement between the union and the B.C. Hospital Association in February, 1970 which was supposed to have solved it.

The BCHA and the union's disagreement over the interpretation of the memorandum of agreement has left 66 out of 70 B.C. hospitals without a signed contract and the Trail hospital with strike notice which expires at 11:15 a.m. Saturday.

The disagreement revolves around whether 12 Kootenay hospitals — which had special paid 30-minute meal breaks during afternoon and night shifts in previous contracts — still work under these conditions under the new proposed contract which was supposed to be effective between Jan. 1, 1970, and Dec. 31, 1971.

There are 567 employees working for the 12 hospitals involved in Grand Forks, Rossland, Castlegar, Nelson, Trail, Nakusp, Creston, Cranbrook, Kimberley, Golden, Invermere and Fernie.

Their old contracts said their meal times were inclusive except on day shift.

On Feb. 12, 1970, the BCHA and the union notified the B.C. Mediation Commission they had reached agreement and submitted the memorandum of agreement which said nothing specific about the Kootenay meal time situation but changed the weekly hours of work from 40 to 38¾ during the first year and to 37½ hours per week from Jan. 1, 1971 to the end of the contract.

The association argues that the new clause in the memorandum of agreement covered all the employees, including the Kootenay workers, while the union argues the memorandum cannot take away rights previously obtained.

Preserve Wilderness Call

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A man responsible for building hundreds of miles of roads and dams says it's time British Columbia preserved wilderness areas.

Hartley Hatfield of Penticton, a former president of the Interior Contracting Company, is in Victoria today trying to interest the government in preserving the old Hudson's Bay Brigade trail between Hope and Tulameen.

The well-known contractor thinks the majority of people are unaware of what is happening to their land.

"People who fly over the province get the impression when they see the many mountains and valleys that there are still a lot of wilderness areas left," he said.

But if they examined the land at ground level they would find it occupied by cattle, mining roads and hundreds of logging roads criss-crossing, running around lakes and along rivers. "It's really appalling," he added.

Hatfield said there was not a true wilderness area today between the Okanagan and the coast.

"I don't consider Manning Park a wilderness area," he said. "It has roads and services."

He defined as wilderness an area where there are no roads, no pollution, no cattle, no mining, no logging — where animals roam freely over a land in the same state as it was hundreds of years ago.

"Mining and logging is all right," he said. "But we have to consider our environment. I believe that animals have as much right to live on this earth as man."

Hatfield who is 66, is still a tough outdoorsman and still hikes over some of the most rugged trails in the province. He is a vice-president of the B.C. provincial council of Boy Scouts.

The trail he is trying to preserve is about 50 miles long and traverses spectacular scenery. It is the habitat of many wild animals which have become extinct in other areas of the province.

The trail was last used by the HBC brigade in 1860. The average brigade consisted of about 300 horses and 40 men. It actually carried the whole business of the company as it was the only trail connecting the coast to the interior and the only land route between the Arctic and the Columbia River.

HISTORIC VALUE

Hatfield says it should be preserved because of its historic value — the only trail with its natural environment intact and undisturbed.

"By walking the trail, you see the conditions which the pioneers travelled through," he said.

The trail also has a high recreational value as it was fast becoming popular with hikers and sportsmen who want to get away from roads, he said.

This year two scout teams, one from Victoria and the other from the interior, will walk the length of the trail. One group will start from Tulameen and the other from Hope.

The Victoria scouts—a group of 12, including Jack Scrivener, Scout executive — will leave from Hope.

The man who is going to lead them will be Hatfield.

'Independent' Parents Charge Discrimination

An unusual hearing which in itself is a precedent in Canadian education was to take place in B.C. Supreme Court in Vancouver today.

A group of parents and students called the B.C. Association of Parents for Independent School Rights is charging Premier Bennett, Education Minister Donald Brothers and all B.C. school boards with discrimination against independent schools.

David Bader, spokesman for the group, and one of the four parents whose name appears on the writ, said Wednesday a lawyer representing the government will attempt to show the charge has no substance.

The parents say the B.C. government discriminates against parents who send their children to non-public schools because those schools get no financial assistance.

They also charge independent school teachers are discriminated against because they don't receive the same status as colleagues in public schools.

Bader said students receive unequal treatment because they can't avoid writing government exams in senior grades.

"No matter how brilliant they are they have to write government exams in order to prove it, while students in public schools don't have to."

Children whose names appear on the writ include Bader's daughter, who attends Notre Dame high school, and his son, who attends Corpus Christi school.

"After all, they're the ones who are being maligned," Bader said.

He said all provinces in Canada except B.C. subsidize separate schools to a greater or lesser extent.

The Federation of Independent School Associations, which represents most non-public schools in B.C., last week dissociated itself from the action of Bader's group.

FISE president Dr. J. F. Waller said court action is not a suitable way to seek public support for independent schools.

Changes Proposed In Phys Ed

VANCOUVER (CP)—A radical change in physical education instruction in British Columbia elementary and secondary schools was urged Wednesday in a report released by the Education Research Institute of B.C.

The report calls for greater emphasis on recreational activities such as hiking, dancing, country walks, tennis, badminton, swimming, golf, archery, sailing and skiing.

Its four authors said children are bored by present instruction and that the fitness level of Canadians is low compared with other countries.

They said present physical education relies too heavily on competitive sports such as football, track, rugby and basketball.

These involve only a small percentage of students, turn off the majority and do not prepare students for physical activity in adult life.

The report, prepared over the last three years, contains 237 recommendations.

The authors, Gary Pennington, assistant arts professor at the University of B.C., Jack Stevens, a physical education instructor at a North Vancouver junior secondary school, Barbara Kallus, an elementary teacher in North Vancouver, and Peter Moody, an assistant education professor at UBC, plan to send copies to every school district superintendent in the province, provincial cabinet ministers and federal Health Minister John Munro.

$160,000 School For Sooke

A two-storey open area $160,000 school is to be built at Colwood Lake subdivision this summer, the Sooke school board announced Wednesday.

One feature of the new building is that the second floor will be completed before the first. The first floor will serve as a covered play area until it is required as a classroom area.

Completion of the first floor will cost an additional $40,000. Construction of a separate activity room will cost another $40,000, bringing the total cost of the school to around $240,000.

The contractor, K. C. Johnson Construction Co. Ltd., is expected to have the building ready by September.

Boys, Girls to Meet

The Norfolk House School will take its first step toward co-education in the new school year.

A program is planned in which pupils in senior grades will participate with students from St. Margaret's University School in drama, language, debating, badminton and similar subjects.

Norfolk House School's new building will be officially opened Friday at 1:30 p.m. The building contains an art room, junior activities room, audio-visual aids room and large indoor area for such activities as drama and singing.

Friday will also be the school sports day with junior events taking place at 10 a.m., lunch served between 12:30 and 1:30 p.m. and senior sports slated to begin at 2 p.m.

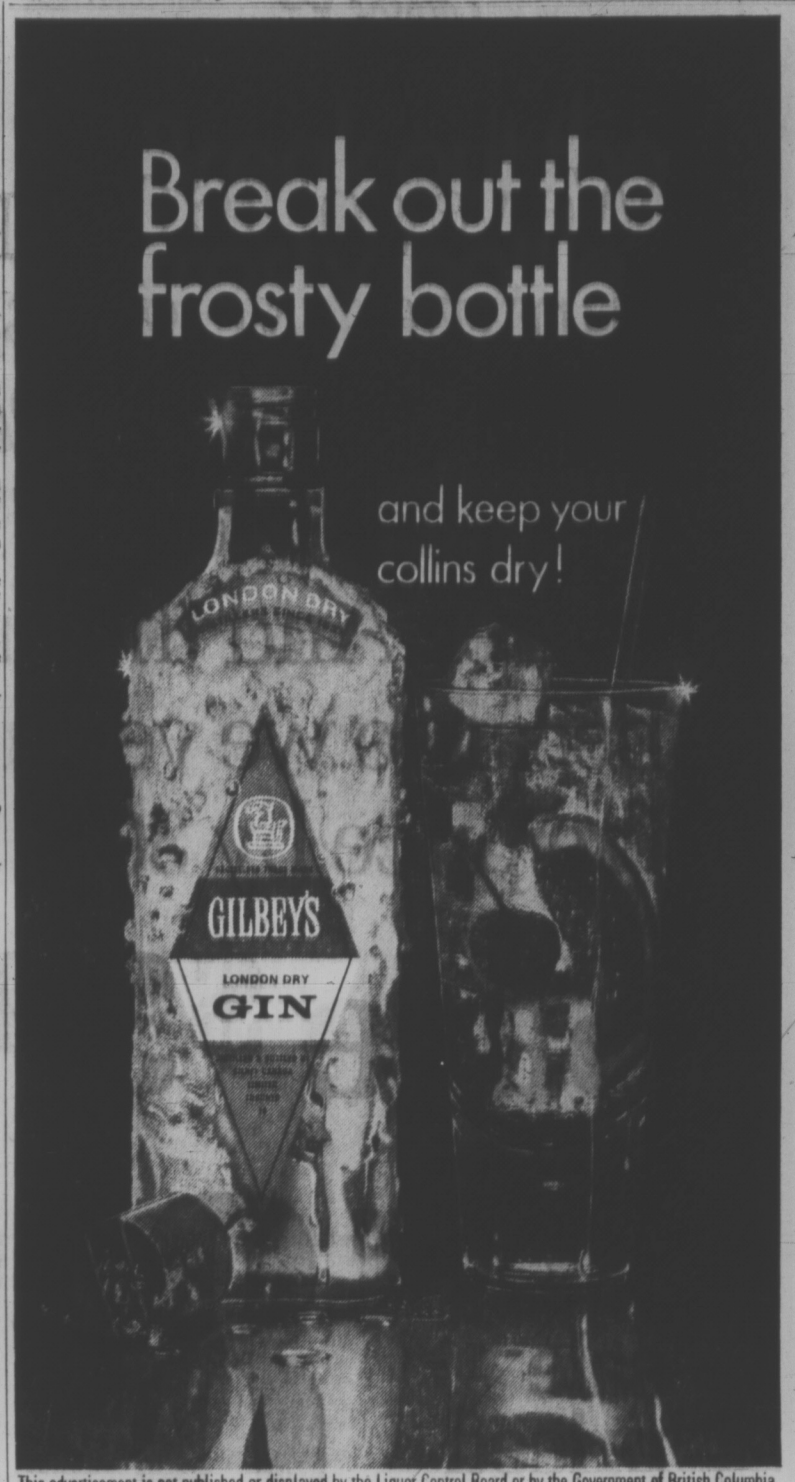

Home-baking and sandwiches will be sold by the school's auxiliary. Later, tea will be served and books sold in the gymnasium.

STUDENT RECITAL ON SATURDAY

A year-end student recital, sponsored by the Victoria branch of the Registered Music Teachers' Association, will take place Saturday at 8 p.m. in St. Matthias' Hall, corner of Richmond and Richardson streets.

All the students appearing on the program have been selected by audition and represent 21 city studios.

There will be junior and senior piano, violin, viola and mandolin numbers.

HOME GARDEN

Separate Shrub Classes Urged

By HILDA BEASTALL

Early summer flower shows contain classes for cut shrub material, hoping to have on display a few of the lovely subjects which grow so luxuriantly in our gardens. Those who grow them seem reluctant to cut their branches, perhaps from the belief that harm will result from this removal.

Hilda

Or perhaps they have tried once, only to discover both leaves and foliage wilt so completely as to be practically unrecognizable.

Another drawback from an exhibitors's point of view is the practice of catalog committees listing one class for "Flowering Shrubs and Trees."

One catalogue calls for three branches of three different kinds of shrubs and trees for each entry. This is a lot of material to cut at one time from a 60-foot garden if the plants are still in their youth.

Having only one class for tree and shrubs branches also creates an almost impossible situation for judges, who must reach a reasonable decision between graceful stems bearing tiny blossoms of Buddleia alternifolia and a branch of huge richly fragrant magnolia blooms.

Each has beauty, charm, and elegance, yet the impact on the viewer is individual, making them difficult to judge one against the other. Why not have separate classes for shrubs?

Today no gardener need be without the names of what grows in his garden. Plenty of information sources are open.

To get back to spoiling a shrub by cutting branches. Each cut must be considered as a form of pruning; all June blooming shrubs will require little or much pruning after flowering, so that cutting the same branches with the flowers in perfect condition merely antedates pruning by a couple of weeks.

Wilting of cut branches depends on two conditions, dryness at the shrub roots in preceding weeks, and lack of conditioning after cutting the branches.

Water at the roots two weeks and again at one week before using the branches. This is a normal watering for our dry periods, but so many gardeners sprinkle the surface only, that shrub roots may be in dust dry, or hard baked, soil although damp on the surface.

Condition the branches as soon as cut by crushing or splitting the lowest two inches; or the bark may be peeled off or scraped. Put into deep tepid water in a cool place for several hours; overnight preferably, or at least out of strong light.

You may have found re-cutting some types under water makes for success. Wilting of the more difficult cut shrub branches can only be prevented by holding the two-inch split and scraped ends in boiling water for 30 seconds (with foliage and blooms protected) prior to the 12-hour immersion in tepid or warm water.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

In this deal, a combination of both luck and skillful play enabled our South declarer to fulfil his 11-trick contract. The hand serves as another example of how the bidding by the defenders-to-be often illuminates the way to winning declarer's play. Both sides vulnerable. East deals.

♡ K 10 5
◇ K 10

◇ A Q J 7 3

SOUTH
♠ K Q J 10 8 5 3
♡ A Q J
♣ 7 4 2

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ◇	4 ♠	5 ◇	5 ♠
Dbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ◇.

Dummy's king of diamonds was played on the opening lead, East covered with the ace, and South ruffed. The king of trumps was then led, which East won with his ace, and returned the diamond queen, which South ruffed. The trump queen now picked up East's remaining trump.

Next came the king, queen, and ace of hearts, after which South led his deuce of clubs. When West followed suit with the five, the board's nine was inserted. East took this with his ace, for the defenders' last trick. Thus South fulfilled his doubled contract.

It is apparent that if declarer had put up dummy's queen of clubs (instead of the nine), he would have gone down. In this case, East, upon winning with his ace, would have returned a club. In time, West would have made another club trick.

How come declarer elected to put up dummy's nine of clubs on the initial club lead? Actually, it was his only hope. Let us see why.

First, East had opened the bidding, and he, rather than West, certainly rated to have the club ace. But what made East's possession of the club ace almost a certainty was East's penalty double of the five spade contract.

From South's position, East surely would not have felt that he could defeat the five spade contract unless he had all three of the missing aces (East was known to have no kings). And if East had some combination of the A-J or A-10 of clubs, there was nothing South could do about preventing the defenders from winning two club tricks.

Therefore South's only hope of avoiding the loss of two club tricks rested in East's having been dealt either the singleton ace of clubs or the A-x (or, in theory, West's possession of the doubleton J-10 of clubs). So South indulged in the wishful thinking that his hope was a realtiy — and he played the hand on the assumption that it was.

Fun with Figures

By EARL HUNTER

We have 4679 for the game today. Using all four digits each time, one of each and no other digits, you form expressions for consecutive numbers from one up.

Any arithmetical signs may be used, but no summation (that's not the simple plus) or factorial symbols. Don't forget decimals, powers and roots (no extra digits).

For example, 69 + 7 — 4 is a solution for 72.

The limit without a break in continuity seems to be 138. I shall be glad to check solutions and will send free hints to help in future games if requested.

Cholera Kills 27

JAKARTA, Indonesia (Reuter) — Twenty-seven persons died of cholera in West Kalimantan in the six weeks up to May 15, Antara news agency reported.

Rattlin' Cannonball

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — A Riverside man became anxious when he discovered that the solid iron civil war cannonball he owned rattled when shaken.

Police broke it open with explosives to discover that the cannonball was a round iron mortar bomb filled with black gunpowder.

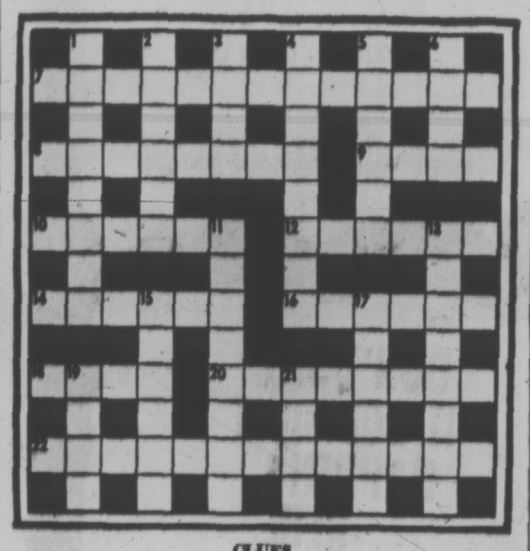

The shell did not explode when it was opened at the city dump.

Before the Judge

A 17-year-old youth was given a suspended sentence and placed on a one-year probation Wednesday by Judge William Ostler for phoning Elizabeth Fisher junior secondary school March 2 and saying there was a bomb in the building.

Robert B. Rosin, 771 Hockley, had earlier pleaded guilty to giving the false message to the school secretary.

Ostler said, while imposing sentence, he didn't believe the accused's statement that he had been threatened by another person to phone the message. Rosin said he had been threatened.

The judge said the offence was "mischievous and wicked" and could cause "great terror" in the minds of anyone in the building at the time.

* * *

Michael J. Pickford, 17, of 376 Foul Bay, and Michael E. Cousins, 17, of 1742 Pembroke, were each given suspended sentences with one-year probation for breaking, entering and theft.

The offence involved two bottles of home-made wine the two took from a shed of an Ida Street home April 3.

* * *

John E. Slym, 26, of 2587 Graham, was given a suspended sentence and placed on a one-year probation for fraud.

* * *

Eleanor J. Lockyer, 41, of 510 Sturdee, was fined $250 when she pleaded guilty to shoplifting several small items from The Bay May 25.

She was observed, a security officer said, taking shampoo, some pony tail holders and hair conditioner from the drug department of the store.

* * *

Albert Constant, 73, of 3541 Shelbourne, was fined $250 when he pleaded guilty to shoplifting two packages of razor blades and a hose nozzle from The Bay Wednesday.

Ostler set $25 monthly payments beginning June 1 as the accused said he was a pensioner living on old-age and disability pensions.

* * *

Harvey Bruce Dobbyn, 41, of 2310 Belmonth, was fined $100, placed on two years' probation and banned partially from driving for six months in traffic court Tuesday by Judge E. F. N. Robinson.

Dobbyn earlier pleaded guilty to impaired driving April 18 in the city and a second impaired offence and two counts of failing to remain at the scene of an accident April 19, also in the city.

He was fined $50 for each impaired offence with concurrent probationary periods on one impaired charge and both failing to remain offences.

Border War Takes Toll

India, Pakistan Battle

NEW DELHI (AP)—The Indian government said today an entire 11-man checkpost on the border with East Pakistan had been wiped out in an attack by the Pakistan Army.

"Our 11 men could not hold against their 100 men," Home Affairs Minister K. C. Pant informed Parliament in the first official disclosure of the incident.

"I regret to inform the house that as a result of this attack, nine border security force personnel were killed and two are missing."

Pant said that 13 civilians also were killed and 11 injured in the attacks this week at Kilapara in eastern Assam state.

WILL USE ARMY

The leader of the right-wing Hindu nationalist Jana Sangh party, A. B. Vajpayee, called the border incident "an undeclared war" and demanded that the Indian army be moved along the 1,349-mile border with East Pakistan, replacing the paramilitary border security force.

Pant replied "the government will use the army whenever necessary."

During a similar debate in the upper house of Parliament, R.N. Mirdha, minister

WALK OUT? NEVER! SAYS SCHREYER

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer has described as "absolutely unfounded" a report that he and other prairie premiers plan to walk out of the federal-provincial conference next month in Victoria if they don't get their way.

Commenting on a report from Quebec that the three would walk out if Quebec insisted on dealing with social policies before reaching a decision on amending the constitution, Schreyer said he "never made any statement to that effect."

"The whole episode leads me to think there is some mischief afoot, although I can't imagine what the motive would be. This is absolutely unfounded as far as Manitoba is concerned."

Triangle Fight Looms in NDP

By PETER McNELLY

The political family of socialists and social democrats who form British Columbia's New Democratic Party face a triangular policy battle this weekend when they gather in Vancouver for their 1971 convention.

At stake will be the interests of organized labor, those of the supporters of provincial leader Dave Barrett and the aspirations of the militant Waffle group.

More Than Sibling Rivalries

Perhaps more than any other party in Canada, the NDP prides itself on its tolerance of internal dissent. And while B.C.'s NDP is unlikely to find its internal differences irreconcilable on the convention floor, the disputes among its members are more than sibling rivalries.

After its crushing electoral defeat in August, 1969, the NDP consolidated its strength under a new leader — Barrett. Now entering his second year as official party leader, Barrett can be said to have brought the mark of his own style upon the party's policies.

He has moved the party away from an outright identification with the B.C. Federation of Labor, and he has carefully softened the more doctrinarire socialist image which has clung to the NDP from the days of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

Cause of Conflict Anticipated

But it is precisely these two of Barrett's positions which will generate conflict at the policy level during the convention.

Among the 500 to 600 convention delegates in attendance at the University of British Columbia's Totem Park Convention Centre May 28-30 will be the usual strong labor contingent and about 100 Waffle delegates.

The Waffle is expected to nominate a challenger to Barrett's leadership post, and party analysts say the B.C. Fed will continue to push for a more outspoken pro-labor tone in the NDP.

But these moves should not obscure the fact that the NDP is always a party of policy rather than one of personality.

In an interview with the Times, Barrett said he expects the convention to state "concrete proposals" on the 11 policy departments chosen for discussion.

1972 Election Predicted

There are: labor, agriculture, natural resources, environment and pollution, health, urban affairs, education, taxation, finance and secondary industry, cultural affairs and human rights, and welfare and youth.

Barrett is predicting a provincial election in September, 1972. He said his own view is that unemployment should be the major area of concern during the convention.

He charges the Socreds with complete failure to create more jobs in B.C. and dismisses Premier Bennett's promise of 25,000 new jobs this year as an impossible hope under Social Credit policies.

Barrett noted that the number of employed persons in B.C. dropped by 14,000 in April. This means Bennett will have to create 39,000 jobs to keep his promise.

Aside from unemployment, Barrett said another tour of the province revealed to him a serious problem in the fruit industry of the Okanagan.

LOAN PROPOSED

He is proposing a $250,000 interest-free loan to stimulate the industry. Barrett said he is also interested in the possibility of provincial aid to independent schools.

The secretary of B.C.'s Waffle group, Sharon Yandle of Vancouver, says the decision to challenge Barrett's leadership results from "real dissatisfactions" with his policies.

These disagreements fall into three areas, she said. First, the Waffle does not like Barrett's refusal to oppose Bill 33 enough to ask workers not to obey the law.

She said the Waffle believes Bill 33 is a bad law and does not deserve to be obeyed.

The group also opposes the

JACK ... not a worry

107 YEARS OLD, GAINING ON DAD

CHEMAINUS, (CP) August Jack is 107 years old today, but the celebration is being delayed until Saturday to give all 60 members of his family a chance to attend.

"He is still as active as he was a year ago," his son, Johnnie, 57, said Wednesday night.

"He split some wood, did a little housework and now is out for his evening walk.

"He doesn't have as many grey hairs as I have and I don't think he has ever had a worry in his life. Maybe that's the secret."

Mr. Jack was born on the Lummi reserve near Bellingham, Wash., Dec. 28, 1864, but he was not baptized until May 27, 1865, when his birth was registered.

He says his father lived to be 125 and another member of the family reached 135.

Pearson Honored

LONDON (CP) — The Queen has bestowed one of her highest personal awards on former prime minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada, making him a member of the Order of Merit.

Sanctuary Studied

HALIFAX (CP) — Federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said today the government would "be glad" to attempt establishing a seal sanctuary in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Houses Abandoned

FORNAZZO, Sicily (AP) — A new stream of lava from erupting Mount Etna reached the edge of this mountainside crossroads village today and 20 of the most menaced houses were abandoned.

Skipper Jailed

MONTREAL (CP) — The captain of the Liberian vessel Kos was ordered jailed Wednesday until the ship's Greek owners pay a $3,000 fine for polluting Canadian inland waters. Captain Demitrius Efthimiou had earlier been found guilty of dumping oil into Montreal harbor.

Mid-East Strife Blamed on U.S.

CAIRO (Reuter) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat blamed American support of Israel for spoiling Middle East peace efforts and Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny accused the U.S. of having a direct interest in the continuation of Israeli aggression in speeches Wednesday night.

The two leaders were speaking at a dinner given in Podgorny's honor which lasted into the early hours of this morning. They continue their private talks today.

Sadat said the U.S. backing for Israel was pushing the Middle East toward an explosion of inestimable consequences.

He said, however, Egypt had not rejected recent U.S. peace efforts.

"But we want everybody to know," he said, "that we shall not compromise, either as regards our territories or our rights in exchange for an empty mirage."

Replying to Sadat, Podgorny, who arrived here Tuesday on what was described as an unofficial visit, said the Soviet Union always had been at the side of the Egyptian people in their struggle against imperialism and zionism.

BLAMES U.S.

Podgorny said Israeli aggression poisons the atmosphere not only in the Middle East but also far beyond it. Through the fault of Israeli ruling circles and their U.S. patrons the consequences of aggression had not yet been eliminated and the situation remained rather tense, he said.

Sadat started his speech by saying that imperialists and their henchmen watching Podgorny's visit had once more failed to understand the nature of Soviet-Egyptian relations.

Consumer Items Feel Steel Price Boost

TORONTO (CP) — Price increases for many consumer items — such as cars and major appliances—may result from steel price increases announced Wednesday by Canada's largest steel producer.

Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. has advised customers the average price for hot-rolled and cold-rolled sheet and strip will be increased by 4.8 per cent effective July 1. The price increases cover a range of steel products used in the manufacture of consumer items.

The average price for hot-rolled bar products — which includes steel for industrial uses — will be increased by 3.1 per cent effective June 15.

A spokesman for Dominion Foundries and Steel Co. Ltd., Hamilton, said the company expects to announce price increases next week.

Algoma Steel Corp., Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., said its prices were under study.

The three firms account for about 80 per cent of Canadian steel production.

Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. issued a statement after the Stelco announcement saying the impact of the price increase would probably be felt during the 1972 model year.

"Any increase in the price of steel is bound to have an effect on our costs, primarily as a result of the steel used in components provided by our Canadian automotive suppliers," the Ford statement said.

A. A. Peters, manager of the major appliance division of Westinghouse Canada Ltd., Hamilton, said the increase will have a "direct impact" on costs.

Canada-Russia Era Forecast

LENINGRAD (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today Canada is increasingly turning its attention to the Soviet Union and foresaw a new era of co-operation between the two northern neighbors.

"We are becoming aware of our partnership," Trudeau told the Leningrad City Soviet in a luncheon address.

Governmental exchange visits between Canada and Russia might one day lead to "a program of trans-Arctic co-operation of yet unforeseen nature," he said.

"That may be a dream, but surely there is an element of reality in it."

Speaking on the last day of his 11-day Soviet tour, Trudeau said Canada looks as always to her European origins," but she is increasingly turning her attention towards the Soviet Union, now that the obstacle of polar icefields is being overcome and she is discovering her closeness to you."

"Your country is likely experiencing the same changes in outlook as you become aware of the closeness of Canada," he added.

"All barriers are giving way before the progress of science and technology . . ."

LANDS SIEGE HEROISM

Trudeau paid tribute to the "incredible heroism" of the people of Leningrad during the city's epic 900-day siege in the Second World War.

Earlier, he had placed a wreath of red and pink carnations at the base of a memorial to the estimated one million victims of the siege, at a cemetery where about half those who died lie buried.

A Red Army band movingly played funeral music by Chopin as Trudeau, under leaden skies, slowly walked down a 500-foot pathway leading to the monument, trailed by scores of Canadian and Soviet officials.

Leaving the cemetery, Trudeau went on a fast-moving sightseeing tour of Leningrad.

Reward Set In Air Hoax

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) Rewards totalling $56,400 were offered today for capture of the bandits who used a bomb scare bluff to con an Australian airline out of $560,000.

Police kept up a nationwide hunt for the bandits. Serial numbers of the ransom notes were circulated along with an artist's drawing of the man who picked up the cash. Interpol worked with Australian officials on the case.

RAW SEWAGE will no longer pollute the beaches of West Bay following action today by deputy minister of health J. A. Taylor. Storm drains like this one at the foot of Barnard, watched by objector Jim Palmer, have been used until now as bypasses during the installation of trunk sewers at Macaulay Point. Dr. Taylor said today the sewage will be diverted into another area where it will be screened and chlorinated.

NEXT QUESTION: WHO'S IN CHARGE?

WINNIPEG (CP) — Why should the husband rather than the wife be defined as the "head of the household" on the 1971 census form, the Manitoba Human Rights Commission wants to know.

The commission says because of the "abhorrent" definition by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, it is the man who must answer certain questions about the family income.

"The form implies that women are not competent to supply this information. Apparently DBS feels that the woman's place is in the home, subservient to her husband, but that she can't be trusted to describe her surroundings accurately — that's the man's work."

The Country Doctor

LIKE ANY NEW ORGANIZATION seeking publicity and a place in the political sun, Mr. Paul Hellyer's Action Canada movement does not spare the adjectives in describing the ills of the country which it proposes to cure, nor does it shrink from exaggeration in proposing the improvements which it hopes to bring about. These aspects are understandable — as is the somewhat mixed bag of supporters with whom Mr. Hellyer has launched his campaign.

Most of the defects in our national life against which Mr. Hellyer complains are deplored by many other Canadians — they are recognized as problems which demand solutions as soon as possible. But most Canadians hold the belief that the country's affairs may best be administered within the framework of existing political parties and that new maverick groups are not the best mechanism through which to effect reforms.

Having said all that, it must still be added that Mr. Hellyer's group and others like it can render a valuable service to the Canadian community by focusing attention on conditions and trends that should be rectified. Any government in power, even for a short time, can become complacent about conditions, or bogged down in difficulties, or temporarily stalled by obstacles, and an outside voice of criticism may serve to direct public attention and spark renewed efforts by the administration.

Mr. Hellyer describes his group as a non-politically-partisan, centre-of-the-road movement, and claims that "a lot of people are ready for an alternative (to the three major parties), which we hope to offer with a movement built up from the grass roots."

Some of the movement's aims cut right into today's major national problems: immediate and fair tax cuts to aid full employment, immediate and mandatory wage and price guidelines to halt inflation, a housing program (Mr. Hellyer's specialty), federally financed urban transportation systems, decentralization of authority, streamlining of the bureaucracy, and so on.

There will be wide approval, for instance, of the protest against bureaucracy, which in a complicated, technological age people increasingly feel is impinging on their lives; of the policy of regaining control and ownership of Canadian industrial enterprises, which Mr. Hellyer favors; of the demand to cut taxes, hold prices stable and increase employment. In these areas Mr. Hellyer can touch some sympathetic nerves. The government's total answer to Mr. Hellyer, of course, would be to cure the ills that he points out — which is largely what it has been trying to do all along.

How Mr. Hellyer's identified goals are to be achieved is not clear, nor can we know whether his panaceas would be more effective than Mr. Trudeau's or anyone else's. The real test would have to be implementation by Mr. Hellyer, of course, and that is something we may not have a chance to see.

Meanwhile, on the Fish Farm

A REPORT FROM THE Oceanic Institute in Hawaii describes successes in controlled spawning, fertilization and rearing of a species of edible fish. This is but one of numerous experimental projects in various parts of the world, from the University of Victoria to Taiwan and elsewhere, revealing progress in scientific production of protein-rich food sources from the sea or fresh water. Each indicates the possibilities open to man to feed the hungry people of the world — provided population explosions do not outpace increased food production.

Progressive research has achieved encouraging breakthroughs in overcoming hazards which arise in man's interference with the life and death pattern of fish. Fish farming, it is becoming increasingly apparent, is feasible. And if fish farming is conducted in enclosed water — as it is in some parts of the world — it is possible both to stimulate spawning at desired times, speed the growth of fry to maturity and eliminate a number of natural causes which reduce the normal size of schools of fish through the inroads of predators.

But while science is priding itself, justifiably, on its accomplishments, reports come in regularly from saltwater commercial fisheries of practices which jeopardize entire species because competitive fishermen of different nations have yet to abide by an adequate international conservation convention.

We are learning, some countries more slowly than others, that the wealth of the sea is no more inexhaustible than that of the land. Unhappily, this realization is leading some fishermen to get all they can while the getting is good. As long as that inclination survives there is danger of extinction for numerous species.

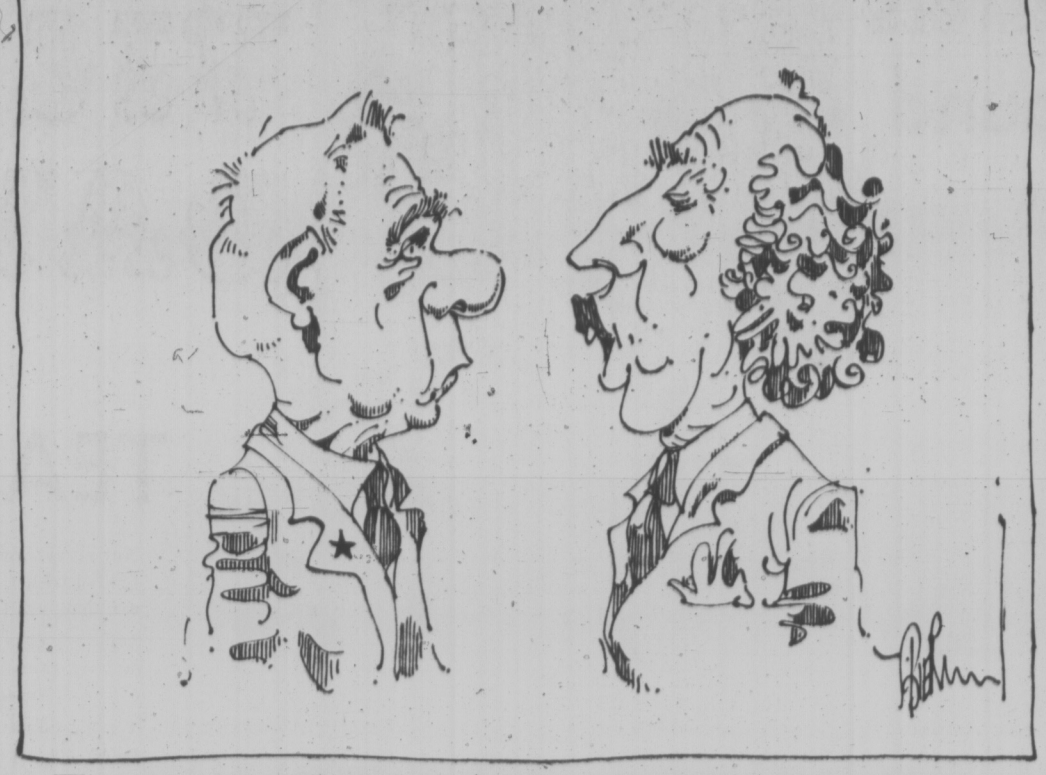

It is possible that fish farming, with the "farmers" keeping the stock for their own commercial use, may exclude those guilty of uneconomical exploitation. At present the seas outside territorial and fisheries jurisdiction are "open range." Surely the course of prudence, for everyone's benefit, is to use that range sensibly. The end of unbridled exploitation is foreseeable. Without international regulation the farm may be the only answer — unless, or until, overpopulation among humans makes even that a futile effort to maintain subsistence.

Beclouding the Objective Still More

THE CORRUPTION IN SOUTH Vietnam is regarded by critics of the war as ample reason to terminate American participation in the conflict as soon as possible. When South Vietnamese officials openly admit the existence of corruption the argument of the critics becomes overwhelming.

Nguyen Cao Ky, the vice-president of South Vietnam, recently spoke to the School of Social Welfare in Saigon and testified, in effect, on the side of the critics: "South Vietnam," he said, "is like a sinking boat, with a deceptively good coat of paint outside, and a helmsman who is unfaithful, disloyal and dishonest. A whirl of wind and the boat will sink to the bottom . . . Corruption is rampaging. It is so widespread that corrupt officials have a price list for every transaction, big or small, requiring their services. Jungle law rules in all government echelons. Corruption has become public, open, and as it were, an incurable disease."

What more could the many critics of the war ask for? The demand for an early withdrawal date that would ensure the safety of U.S. troops has been given even greater weight by Mr. Ky's remarks.

". . . I gained a lot of admiration for Communism . . . unfortunately I just can't stand it . . ."

Letters

Canadian Patriot

During the Commons debate of April 28th, Mr. G. H. Aitken, member for Parry Sound-Muskoka questioned Prime Minister Trudeau about the official recognition of one-time medical missionary to China, Norman Bethune.

Prime Minister Trudeau replied that the matter was under study by the Historic Sites and Monuments Board, adding: "As an old China hand myself I must say it is somewhat surprising to see this great Canadian recognised more in China than in Canada."

The answer is simple. China Reconstructs of June 1967 contains an article by Chairman Mao Tse-tung (In Memory of Norman Bethune) — a reprint dated December 21, 1939. Mao starts: "Comrade Norman Bethune, a member of the Canadian Communist Party, was fifty when he was sent (to China) by the Communist Party of Canada and the U.S.A." He concludes: "Every Communist must learn the true communist spirit from Comrade Bethune."

With all respect for Norman Bethune's medical skills, I charge that he hardly qualifies for a monument as a "great" patriot! Or will we soon be directing a monument to Lenin and Stalin on Parliament Hill? — Patricia Young, Vancouver, B.C.

Socialism and Religion

Well the Pope can rest easy. The Socialist Party of Canada looks upon the Christian religion and most other religions as well, as a dogma that indicts man as a sinner etc., condemns him and beseeches him to be something different than his so-called sinning nature will permit. Socialists on the other hand use their Marxian materialist conception of history to endeavor to understand the nature of man and his needs. Rather than condemn man for anti-social behavior we investigate the circumstances of his environment that give rise to this anti-social behaviour. We consider it rather axiomatic that if socially harmonious human behaviour is desirable, and we think it is, then the present anti-social for sale-motivated society of world capitalism must be replaced with a democratically-owned and motivated society aimed at satisfying the material needs of man. Then and only then will the aesthetic and, if you like, spiritual nature of man get a real chance to flourish. In the meantime we regard religion as outright cruel as it riddles man with feelings of guilt and inadequacy by beseeching him to live like an angel in a hell environment. — Larry Tickner, 589 Nora.

In a recent Papal declaration (May 14/71) Pope Paul VI called on Christians to involve themselves actively in meeting the needs of the day and cautioned that the fact that some persons embrace ideological positions incompatible with Christianity, notably Marxists, should not necessarily discourage Christians from co-operating. But Christians should at the same time be on their guard not to go beyond this co-operation into becoming beguiled by philosophies that may be not only dangerous but also inadequate to deal with complexities of life.

FROM CALGARY — By JAMES H. GRAY

A Sluggish Quest for Alberta Oil

NEVER has the Canadian oil industry had it so good! It is not only selling all the oil it can produce, it is selling it at the best well head price in 15 years. Purchase contracts await every new gas discovery, at prices rising steadily each year. Yet the industry is in the doldrums and millions of acres of highly prospective wildcat country go undrilled.

Gray

The trouble, as Premier Harry Strom sees it, is the absence of a big new discovery that would bring interest back to Alberta. A big discovery like Swan Hills in 1957 or Rainbow in 1965 is always good for a five-year boom. Alberta has not had such a find since Rainbow.

Premier Strom, however, has chosen an explanation that lets his government off the hook. A strong case can be made that the recession is the direct result of wrong-headed government policies. These policies developed from the advice from the international companies which the Alberta Government eventually translated into government policy.

Everybody In

When the federal government owned the mineral rights to the lands of Western Canada, anybody could, and just about everybody did, get into the oil business. It was done by filing on a few sections of government leases at 25 cents per acre. The system had one drawback about which oilmen frequently griped long after the rights went to the provinces, along with the system. Legitimate wildcatters could never put large enough spreads together to utilize modern exploration techniques. They were always surrounded by small bore speculators getting a free ride on their exploration expenditures.

After several false starts following the Leduc discovery in 1947, the Manning Government eventually devised a system that was everything the oil barons could have asked for. It put the boots to the small fry in favor of the system granting exclusive rights to huge blocks of acreage.

In Abeyance

The most popular size was a reservation 12 miles square — 92,000 acres. These reservations were granted on renewable 10 year terms. By spending comparatively small sums on seismographic mapping and drilling the odd exploratory test, the major companies could hold the reservations in abeyance indefinitely.

When the existence of the Alberta system got noised abroad, there was a rush of the international companies with gobs of U.S. tax money to buy up all the reservations available. Today uncounted millions of acres of Alberta oil and gas rights are filed but by no means forgotten in the vaults of the big companies. One company reports owning 27,000,000 acres; another has 44,000,000; another has 22,000,000; another has 10,000,000.

One company which reported holding 64,000,000 gross acres last year reported that it had drilled a grand total of 54 exploratory wells. That is less than one well per million acres. At such a tardy rate of testing the Alberta basin, it could be generations before Premier Strom gets his spectacular discovery.

Clipping Fringe

A second factor contributing to the slow-down was the rule-change forced through some years ago by the government which put a lot of fringe well drillers out of business.

For many years Alberta's oil production was pro-rated to market demand. In establishing what each well could produce, the first factor considered was the recovery of the cost of drilling the well. Each well had an "economic allowance" which would repay the cost of the well over a five-year period. This allowance provided the smaller companies with a tremendous incentive to drill around the edges of new fields or in marginal areas. If they struck oil at all, even a small flow, they would get their money back.

Many hundreds of such wells were drilled. In the days of severe curtailment of markets, the oil produced under the economic allowance formula bulked so large in the total picture that there was no room left for the oil from the big field with better wells. Thus wells capable of making 25,000 barrels a day were often shut back to 250 barrels a day to make room for the oil from 1,000 wells which could only produce 25 barrels a day.

As the big companies owned the high-producing fields they fought the economic allowance bitterly for a decade. The Manning Government yielded in the end and adopted a formula favoring the rich fields and penalizing the poor wells.

Without the economic allowance there is no incentive to drill marginal wells. This not only has meant hundreds of fewer wells drilled every year. It has meant fewer discoveries and field extensions and a lot less money for the provincial treasury. And it all results from policy decisions taken years ago in the heyday of Manning Socred euphoria in Alberta.

FROM WASHINGTON — By JAMES RESTON

Old Barriers Are Being Broken Down

IN THE last few days, the French have finally accepted the idea of Britain joining Europe; the Chinese have turned a more genial face to the outside world; the United States and the Soviet Union have agreed on a new formula for discussing the $200-billion-a-year arms race; the moderates in Israel and the Arab states have been making some progress toward peace, and even President Nixon and Lyndon Johnson have been meeting together in Texas and agreeing that, maybe after all, the course of history is more important than anything else.

Reston

Well, there is a lot of cynicism here about all this, but something interesting and signficant seems to be happening in the world. The course of history in the largest sense is much more hopeful than the newspaper headlines. Despite all the arguments between the political parties, the races and the nations, the elemental facts of life seem to be challenging and influencing the actions of all nations, at least in the advanced capitals of the world.

They all defend the ideological prejudices of the past, but modern technology, modern transportation and communication are clearly changing their policies at home and abroad. Wherever you look now, the big nations and the big shots are now doing precisely what they insisted they would not do just a few short years ago.

President Nixon, one of the original ideological anti-Communist warriors, is now concentrating on an accommodation with Moscow and Peking and following Keynesian economic policies he used to denounce. President Pompidou in Paris is bringing Britain into the European Common Market on terms President de Gaulle denounced. Chancellor Willy Brandt in West Germany is seeking an accommodation with Moscow and the Communist nations of Eastern Europe. President Sadat in Cairo is risking his political life for an accommodation with Israel. And the elders of the Democratic party in the United States are rallying to support President Nixon against the nationalistic military policies of their own majority leader in the Senate.

Beneficent Groundswell

So underneath all the contentions of local and national politics, which divide men, it would seem there are elemental forces working in the world today that are affecting all peoples and compelling compromise and revision. China is coming out of isolation for practical reasons. She does not wish to stand aside while the post-Vietnam world is settled by the other major powers. Similarly, Europe is uniting for practical purposes. It cannot compete with the new industrial, military and political worlds of Russia and the United States unless it unites and integrates its policies, politics and economies. The American South, similarly, cannot keep pace with the North if it has a separate educational, legal and commercial base. Israel and the Arab states cannot share common lands and waterways without compromise — so whatever politicians have said in the past, they are forced to talk and compromise and adjust to the irresistible tides that are forcing nations to fight or co-operate.

All this clearly is very tentative. The rhetoric of the past still dominates politics everywhere, but very definitely, if very slowly, the fear of war and of monetary and economic anarchy is breaking down the old local, regional and even national barriers, and bringing the concept of interdependence into the politics of the world.

The reconciliation of Britain and France is only the latest illustration of the point. In the first days after the last World War, even General de Gaulle understood the unifying forces operating in the world.

Different Course

Later on, of course, he changed, and his doctrines of nationalism and prestige led him to veto Britain in the Common Market. But the forces of life are more enduring than the lives and prestige of even great men, and here is Pompidou taking a wholly different course.

It will be a long time before the principle of interdependence is dominant in world or even in American politics. It has not even conquered localism in the United States today, but, increasingly, and particularly with the thoughtful young men and women of the rising generation in this country, it is a powerful and growing influence.

We are now beginning to see, not only a new pragmatism among politicians at home and abroad — a willingness to deal with the objective facts of war, industry, money and pollution, and to see the interdependence of communities and nations in these fields — but also a new and wider patriotism among the young, an interest and concern for the common yearnings and sufferings of the human family.

The news of recent days is therefore not merely political but philosophical and historical, the compromises on arms, the emergence of China, the diplomatic talks in the Middle East and the movement of Britain toward Europe — these are only glimpses and symbols of the coming transition to a more orderly and unified world.

Looking Back

From the Times of May 27, 1911:

Vancouver — The Vancouver Trades and Labor Council, which is composed of delegates from 52 labor unions, last night decided to tie up the town. Their slogan, according to the statement of one union leader, is to "beat the bosses or bust." The plan is to follow the system tried in France and other European countries to declare a general holiday, which has been selected to be June 3, and from that time to have a cessation of work throughout the city.

Housing Plan 'Secret'

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Ocean Cement Co. general manager L. J. Glassford said today the company is not in a position to go into details of its proposed 810-acre housing development in Colwood "until we clear a number of details with the Capital Regional District."

He made the comment today after declining to give the press copies of a presentation handed to directors of the regional board Wednesday.

Until Ocean Cement settles these details, "we are not going into any further details in our own planning."

AGREEMENT

The regional board agreed Wednesday to appoint a special committee to study the proposal and the company's request for designation of the site as a development area under the Municipal Act so it can apply to the district to enter into a land use contract.

The company's presentation, in a report entitled Ocean View, said the objective is to start work during 1972 and complete development in about 10 years.

The existing sand and gravel pit will eventually be phased out and developed residentially.

The pit represents about 100 of the 810 acres the company owns. The entire property lies roughly between Albert Head Lagoon and Painter Road and from Wishart Road to the sea.

The report suggests that the development area extend inland from its own property so that proposals for urban development "can be placed in a particular context."

NEW ROADS

Plans show Metchosin Road realigned inland and a waterfront road built to meet Metchosin Road in the south.

About 2,000 units of accommodation are planned — 400 single houses, 1,000 terrace, patio and other forms of cluster dwellings for low to medium income people and 600 apartment suites "principally in horizontal structures" for low and medium incomes.

Two hundred acres would be set aside for recreational purposes, including a 125-acre golf course. There would be 25 acres for shops and schools.

The report envisages three stages of development, the first including 200 dwelling units, realignment of Metchosin Road, preparation of land and the golf course, the second providing 1,000 dwelling units and the third 800 units.

The report said the total capital investment in land and improvements "may well amount to $45 million" and could represent a tax return of close to $750,000 a year.

LOSING THEIR MARBLES Wednesday night in front of the Empress Hotel were Greater Victoria mayors. Here Mayor Art Young of Esquimalt grimaces with determination, watched by an audience of real pros, as he goes down in sorry defeat with five other men against winner Mayor Frances Elford of Oak Bay. Besides being a woman, Mrs. Elford had never fingered a marble before in her life. Other contestants were Ald. Ove Witt of Victoria, Ald. Leslie Passmore of Saanich, Mayor Archie Galbraith of Central Saanich and Mayor Stanley Dear of Sidney.

Communities dying in front of TV sets—Campbell

Get Off Your 'Fat Bottoms!'

A re-examination of the "moral way in which people look at their community" was called for by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Wednesday.

"The very large number of fat-bottomed housewives and broad-bellied husbands who find it impossible to find time to spend in community activities is growing.

"There are hundreds of jobs going vacant at the community level because people won't pull themselves away from their commitments.

"Unless people are willing to contribute a few hours of their time a week their communities will die in front of their TV sets," he told a meeting of the Men's Canadian Club of Victoria at the Empress.

Speaking on Urban Life in The 70s, Campbell charged cities lack funds for programs vital to peoples' needs because of "colossal mismanagement of capital at the federal level."

As an example of mismanagement of funds he pointed to a recent federal scheme to spend $2,200,000 under the regional disparity program to install 650 underground parking facilities in Quebec City.

Another example, he said, is the use of capital for "social welfare to industries." He read a list of Canadian industries that have received federal subsidies of up to $5 million.

"My first prediction is that with that kind of priorities our cities will starve for capital in terms of those things we require as people."

Campbell criticized the "negatively oriented" attitude to development of municipal councils.

Municipal governments should be passing bylaws that encourage "positive development" in their communities.

By-laws that stifle positive development lead to "canyon-like highrise developments" like those in James Bay, he said.

Campbell said people who live in high density areas should pay part of the cost of maintaining "green belt" areas such as Central Saanich.

Strike by City Police 'Can't Be Ruled Out'

Contract negotiations between the Victoria police commission and the city's force union have apparently broken down before getting properly started.

Following a closed session Wednesday, union spokesman Kenneth Horsman said there are no more meetings planned and the possibility of a strike "can't be ruled out."

Commission chairman Mayor Courtney Haddock, who told the union Wednesday the city cannot grant more than a 7½ per cent, increase, said today the meeting was "completely informal" and not a negotiation session.

But union officer Kenneth Horsman said the police have been filing material with the commission to back up their case since last October.

"If they haven't begun in eight months, when should they begin?" Horsman said today.

Meanwhile, labor minister James Chabot said today the government has not changed its attitude towards threatened strikes by policemen and the government would "look very closely" at the possibility of preventing one here if the situation reached that point.

MEDIATION AVAILABLE

Chabot also said in an interview that the government is prepared to make available the services of a mediator to help settle the conflict.

Under the Mediation Commission Act, the government can ban any strike which it rules is against the public interest. Earlier police salary disputes in the Victoria area have been handled under a no-strike provincial policy.

The police union's main aim is to gain pay parity with forces on the Lower Mainland where first class constables are now earning $887 a month.

If Victoria police were to achieve this pay, they would be getting an increase of about 20 per cent over their 1970 contract, which pays first-class constables $728 a month.

At a membership meeting June 1, Horsman said, the union will discuss all possible methods of making their demands felt.

BEGGING

These will include strike, "begging" on the streets, and work slowdowns, Horsman said, all of which have been used recently in Canada in cities with forces who had a "very similar problem" to Victoria's.

Horsman said he can't say what the membership will decide, and any action will be taken "by their direction," but "strike can't be ruled out."

Haddock refused to say talks had broken off, adding the commission "enjoys good rapport with our officers."

"Negotiations haven't even started," Haddock said, but "I would certainly recommend 7½ per cent" when they do.

Referring to the police demands for parity with Vancouver, Haddock said "our city is in no position to compete with a large industrial city."

"People should not be underpaid, we can't afford to overpay, so it should be fair pay." The city's budget, already established, has allowed for a 7½ per cent increase in the police and firemen's pay in 1971.

Haddock added that "I would not personally agree to a one-year contract," which police are seeking.

Asked what his reaction was to the possibility of strikes, begging and slowdowns; Haddock said "I don't think we have the type of personnel" who would carry them out. "I am sure they realize we will go as far as we can go. I would be very unhappy to see any injection of bitterness" in the negotiations.

Negotiations between police unions in the other three core municipalities have not reached the stage where pay increases have been offered.

$41,000 Taken In Break-In; Largest Ever

Victoria police now estimate more than $41,000 of merchandise was taken from Woodward's Mayfair department store over the weekend, making the break-in the largest in Greater Victoria history.

The loss is listed at $41,180 and includes $25,640 worth of new watches, rings, lighters and other items taken from the watch department.

Two hundred and fifty used watches in for repair were stolen and are valued at $8,000.

Cameras, binoculars and film taken are valued at $5,080, with another $2,460 added for perfume.

In 1955, Rose's Jewellers, 1317 Douglas, was broken into and an estimated $30,000 worth of property stolen in the largest previous local break-in.

Uvic Inquiry Panel Named

A three-man review panel to look into the non-renewal of contracts of three University of Victoria faculty members has been appointed.

The panel is under chairman Colin McLaurin, former chief justice of the trial division of the Supreme Court of Alberta and former chancellor of the University of Alberta at Calgary.

Other members are University of British Columbia dean of science Dr. Vladimir Okulitch and vancouver lawyer A. B. Carrothers.

DELAY EXPECTED

However, a delay in proceedings of the panel is expected because of the appeal of the three professors to the visitor of the university, Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson.

Nicholson has had no comment on the appeal to date and any communication with the three appellants is stalled by the absence of the professors' lawyer, J. J. Gow, who is on holidays until next week.

The panel was nominated by Chief Justice J. O. Wilson of the B.C. Supreme Court after the full professors of Uvic, in meetings earlier this month, suggested the move.

The appeal to the visitor was made on May 19 and seeks a fair hearing for the three professors. One of the appeal's stipulations is that any proceedings involving the dispute "be inhibited and stayed."

AWAIT ACTION

This means that before the panel can start its deliberations, and before the professors can present their side of the case, the visitor must take some kind of action.

According to the Universities Act of 1963 the visitor has authority to do all those acts which pertain to visitors, and a dictionary definition calls the visitor "a person of high rank who serves as the highest authority and last court of appeal at a university."

Faculty Association president Dr. Charles Doyle said he though the appeal to the visitor should supercede any proceedings by the review panel. "I'm not an expert on it, but I should think that would be the case," he said.

'MUST SET TERMS'

McLaurin, the panel chairman, said Wednesday the panel has yet to determine the terms of reference for the investigation. "I have a big bundle of stuff to read through but there's not much point until we set the terms of reference," he said.

Uvic information officer Floyd Fairclough said the panel will probably be meeting shortly to set out the terms.

Another aim of the panel is to investigate the manner in which the Canadian Association of University Teachers handled its part of the contract dispute.

The CAUT censured Uvic president Bruce J. Partridge earlier this month for "delaying and obstructing" a resolution of the three cases. The three professors whose contracts have not been renewed are English professor Dr. William Goede, chemistry professor Dr. Tikam Jain and philosophy instructor Toby Graff.

ACUTE CARE BALLOT MAY GET FALL DATE

A referendum on acute care hospital construction in the Capital region may be ready to put to ratepayers this fall.

A preliminary step was taken by the Capital Region's hospital board Wednesday when it approved a recommendation that all hospitals in the district begin preparing a summary of their construction needs.

Asked today when there might be a vote, North Saanich Mayor Jim Cumming, who chairs the regional hospital board meetings, said "the fall or the earliest possible time."

Depending on what programs have been prepared in time, the referendum could present expansion plans for Royal Jubilee Hospital, the addition of a 75-bed acute care wing for the hospital not yet under construction in Central Saanich, expansion of the rehabilitation facilities at Gorge Road hospital and renovations at least but possibly new construction as well at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Not until the various hospitals' plans are in can a total be determined but it will likely be over $20 million.

TO CHURCH THEY CLOP

Horses will go to church Sunday morning at St. Stephen's Anglican Church on Mount Newton Cross Road.

Rev. Ivan Futter says he decided to include horses in his congregation after several members of the church said they were unable to attend services because they had to exercise their animals.

Futter decided on a compromise.

Sunday at 11:15 a.m. he will conduct a service in the church's parking lot for both horses and riders.

Futter estimates that about 40 local horsemen will attend.

THE GREAT DO-IT-YOURself census is under way, as witness a visit from a young mother employed for the occasion by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Her two little girls had come along for company. While they made an unofficial head count of our livestock — one pampered dog, one tough black cat — the census lady dealt us a red and white envelope from her supply.

She then loaded her frisky young statistics into her car and whisked off to make the next of 200 calls on her list.

Our form, it turns out, is the bobtailed sort that goes to two out of three homes. I didn't find any of its questions unduly nosey, although the flat statement that the head of the household is the husband rather than the wife may not go down too well with Women's Lib.

The long form, a population-sampler in depth that is being left with one household in three, requires a good deal more in the way of answers.

Areas that its queries touch on include religion, income for 1970, hours of work if employed, education, vocational training, and in the case of men over 35, military service.

Calls received from a couple of irked Victorians suggest to me that not every Canadian welcomes the chance to impart personal information.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics counters by pointing out that all census data remains strictly confidential. No other government department may tap those questionnaires, and census employees are sworn to secrecy.

When the all-Canada roundup is over and the impersonal computers have digested the results, much more will be known about Canadians as this touchy year of 1971 finds us.

How we live, for instance. Also, what we lack. And, with reasonable exactitude, just how many of us there now are.

★

We take two Victoria newspapers at our place — the Times, naturally, and the other daily just so we can keep track of what those little morning-side rascals are up to.

As a by-product, we end each week with a considerable pile of used newsprint.

That once raised a problem with which I expect you too may be familiar. What to do with the accumulation?

There was a time when we could count on turning the tottering basement stacks over to paper drives for worthy causes at fairly regular intervals. But such collections appear to have fallen victim to a dwindled market.

We had begun to consider dropping one newspaper — guess which — when local importer Jack Cox came up with a solution called a paper-log maker.

It consists of a flat metal dingus that looks somewhat like an old-fashioned hairpin on a giant scale. You spread a batch of old papers on rug or linoleum so that each set of edges retreats an inch or so from the previous one. Then, inserting the hairpin, you twirl the papers into a neat, tight roll.

Finish off by securing this roll with a length of wire-cored garden tape around its middle, and you have a paper-log which will burn for a long time with a cheerful but well-behaved flame.

Those logs make a highly-acceptable substitute for fireplace wood. We keep a bunch of them pre-rolled for cool evenings.

Incidentally, Cox reminds me, an old magazine makes a good core for a simulated log, thereby solving another disposal problem.

Ask the Times

Q. Could you please give me the addresses of newspapers in Dover and Stornaway?—C.L.

A. Dover Express and East Kent News, 185-6 Snargate, Dover, Kent, England; and Stornaway Gazette and West Coast Advertiser, 10 Francis St., Stornaway, Scotland.

Q. Could you please publish the personal addresses of Carol Burnett, Art Linkletter and Elizabeth Taylor?—A Friend.

A. Liz's is c-o John Springer Association, 667 Madison Ave., New York 10021, N.Y.; Art's 8321 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles 90048, Calif.; and Carol's c-o Goodman, 667 Madison Ave., New York 10021, N.Y.

The Times has been "caught" by a 13-year-old reader.

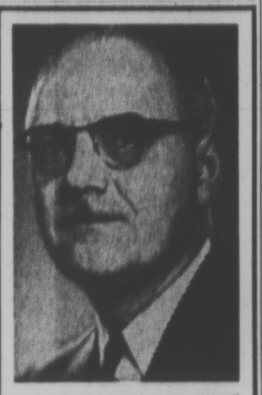

In their hurry to meet deadlines, reporters sometimes make mistakes. Rick Prokopyshen spotted an error in an "Ask the Times" column, stating that the calendar repeats itself every 15 years.

The Times' answer didn't look right to Rick, so he did a little research. His suspicions were justified; the correct answer is every 28 years.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

Houston

A part in 25 test wells in western Canada, Montana and North Dakota will be taken this summer by Houston Oils Ltd., of Calgary. The first is under way in southeastern Saskatchewan.

Other interests include 5 per cent in a test well to be drilled in the Abu Dhabi sector of the Arabian Gulf, operator being Amerada Hess. A 10 per cent interest is held in a 10 million acre concession in Indonesia where seismic work is set for August.

The company also participates in development of a second uranium-vanadium mine in San Miguel County, Colo., where production is expected in September.

Western

Work has started on Canada's first split-level shopping centre to contain three national department stores, the $22 million Londonderry mall in Edmonton of Western Realty Projects Ltd., Vancouver.

Retail areas will cover 700,000 square feet and major tenants will be Eaton's, Woolco, Hudson's Bay Co., Safeway and Famous Players, which will have two theatres. There will be 85 shops in addition.

Opening is set for August of next year.

420 Exhibitors Show For B.C. Trade Fair

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's fifth international trade fair opens next week with some 420 individual exhibitors from 18 counries combining in a unique information linkup.

Interested businessmen or purchasing agents have only to mention the product or industry or particular country they're interested in and a hostess will punch out a question on a computer terminal.

In a few seconds the inquirer will receive a printout listing the exhibitor's address, his local representative, five products or groups of products his firm makes, the pavilion he's in and his booth number.

The computer can also provide a list of similar products exhibited by the different companies and countries at the fair. It will give out on request a list of companies and exhibitors from each country as well.

Univac, a division of Sperry Rand Canada Ltd., provided computer access and the hardware involved. Terminals have been installed in the five trade fair pavilions, located on the Pacific National Exhibition grounds here.

The trade fair is the largest regularly-scheduled trade exposition on the continent. Almost 200 different products will be displayed, ranging from automobiles to woollen goods.

STARTED IN 1958

The first fair was held in 1958, when B.C. celebrated the founding of the Vancouver Island colony. Successive fairs followed in 1961, 1964 and 1967, Canada's centennial, and now 1971, with B.C. 100 years a member of Confederation. The three-year interval was stretched to four to make this year's fair a centennial event.

B.C.'s eye to the Pacific is represented with government displays from Japan, the Philippines, South Korea and Taiwan. Britain, France, West Germany, Denmark, The Netherlands, Ireland and Austria are also entered.

One exhibit comes from Alaska and another from Bulgaria, the only Communist country represented. India and Pakistan have also sent official exhibits.

Canada is well-represented by the departmens of labor, defence and regional economic expansion, while the B.C. government is participating through its department of industrial development, official sponsor of the fair. The Alberta government also has an exhibit.

The major Canadian corporate exhibits include CP Air, which has its headquarters here, Air Canada, B.C. Hydro, Alcan, Electrohome and the Bank of Montreal.

The fair, officially labelled ImpoExpo 71, opens June 2 when thousands of helium-filled centennial balloons will be released following an opening address by Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

Before it ends June 12, 10 cars from six countries will have been given away, visitors will have seen a "salute to B.C. and the world" — a 75-minute musical-comedy presentation with a cast of 50 — and a 100-mile B.C. centennial Indian relay race will have ended at the site.

Transocean

Record profit, revenues and oil production marked the year ended March 31, Reports Transocean Oil Inc., of Houston.

Daily average oil and gas production rose from 4,786 barrels a day in 1970 to 6,284 barrels a day, said the company, which is 51 per cent owned by Swift and Co., of Chicago.

Profit amounted to $6.1 million (50 cents a share) vs. $2.44 million (39 cents), based on oil and gas revenues 28 per cent higher at $11.35 million, up from $8.88 million.

In the last quarter profit was $1.87 million (15 cents) vs. $842,000 (13 cents),

Alta. Gas Trunk

Decision of the Alberta public utilities board this week will reduce Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd.'s previously reported earnings by ½ of 1 per cent, to $2.35 a share for 1970.

The company said the board, in a retroactive decision, reduced the permitted level of return from 8¾ per cent to 8¼ per cent for the period July 1, 1970 - June 30, 1971.

This dropped transportation charges by $845,000 or 25 cents a share, with the resulting adjustment in earnings to $7.8 million to Dec. 31. For the three months ended March 31, the adjustment in rates is $450,000 (13 cents) leaving earnings at 60 cents a share.

Manhattan

Manhattan Continental Development Corp. shareholders have approved the sale of substantially all of the company's Canadian oil properties for $2.85 million cash. The sale will result in an extraordinary profit of approximately eight cents a share.

Robert C. Katz Manhattan president, said, "The monies received from this sale will place the company in a favorable position for acquisitions with demonstrated earnings."

Los Angeles-based Manhattan is traded on the Vancouver Stock Exchange and over-the-counter in the U.S.

Can. West. Gas

Canadian Western Natural Gas Co. Ltd., of Calgary, had net income of $1.9 million or $1.01 a share for the three months ended March 31, compared with $1.7 million or 90 cents a share in the corresponding period last year.

New rates authorized on an interim basis for two of the three months and an increase of 6,000 in Southern Alberta customers due to cold weather accounted for first-quarter revenue of $10.44 million up $1.44 million.

The increase in customers boosted sales to 27.5 million cubic feet.

IOS Chairman Directed To Testify

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A federal judge has ordered the man who ousted Bernard Cornfeld from IOS Ltd., the mutual fund company, to reply to questions and provide documents called for in a Securities and Exchange Commission subpoena.

The ruling Wednesday by District Court Judge Reynier J. Wortendyke could cut through a curtain of secrecy surrounding Swiss financial transactions.

IOS has its headquarters in Geneva, and its chairman, Robert L. Vesco, had sought to disssolve SEC subpoenas on grounds he would be subject to criminal prosecution in Switzerland if he replied to questions.

Vesco also is chief executive officer of International Controls Corp., a Fairfield, N.J., concern with diversified manufacturing interests.

Vesco was a major figure in providing financing for IOS after the mutual fund firm founded by Cornfeld suffered financial setbacks.

IOS was barred in 1967 from doing business in the United States under an SEC consent decree. One purpose of the current SEC investigation of IOS and ICC deals with questions about ICC's relationship with IOS in light of the 1967 ruling.

SHAPING UP IN LANGFORD

Battle of Septic Tanks

Septic tanks must not be permitted in a proposed 500-to 700-acre housing subdivision on the west side of Thetis Lake Park in Langford, the Capital Regional District board was told Wednesday.

"We realize that the announced intention of the developers is to connect up to a proposed sewer line, but if this line is delayed we would certainly not want to see even a temporary sewage plant put in where there is a danger of any effluent reaching Thetis Lake or its surroundings," said Outdoor Club of Victoria president Robert L. Spearing.

He was commenting on the subdivision proposal announced last month by Thetis Park Estates Ltd.

Spearing said the area appears to be made up of a rocky sub-strata with a thin layer of gravel on top. The contours seem to mainly follow a series of gullies angling off towards the park, he said.

Because of the narrowness of the section of park above the upper lake "there is too much risk of the housing units of the development being close enough to spoil the aesthetic nature of this section of the park.

"Also its existence, as an area of concentrated population, would encourage an invasion of this end of the park that would be practically uncontrollable."

He said a suitable buffer should be established.

"Also, to control access routes to a reasonable number of footpaths, and to pedestrian traffic, rather than horse and motorcycle traffic as well, a fence between the subdivision and the park be considered with some sort of controlling barriers at the gateways in the fence."

Sour Note Sounded

ALTON, Ill. (AP) — A sour note was sounded at the National Vinegar Co. plant. Sheriff's officers said the plant was shut down after vandals damaged vinegar bottling machines, gauges and other equipment. Plant manager Charles Henson said repairs will cost about $2,000.

SUBDIVISION FOR STUDY

A special committee of the Capital Regional District board, along with district officials, will study an application by Ocean Cement Ltd. for a huge residential subdivision covering its Colwood sand and gravel pit and surrounding property.

This was decided by the board Wednesday after a letter from the company was read in which it sought designation of the area as a development area under the Municipal Act "and thereby enable the company to apply to the Capital Regional District to enter into a land use contract."

The subdivision would cover 810 acres at 3501 Metchosin Road and provide 2,500 units of accommodation, in houses and apartments, to be built in phases over 20 years.

It would be the biggest single project on southern Vancouver Island. The Broadmead subdivision in Saanich, now under way, will cover 713 acres while plans have been announced by Thetis Park Estates Ltd. for a 500- to 700-acre subdivision on the west side of Thetis Lake Park in Langford.

The district's committee will be headed by Central Saanich Mayor Archibald Galbraith, chairman of the regional planning committee. Members are Victoria Ald. Clyde Savage, Colwood director Dick Emery and Langford director Earl Pallister.

Galbraith said his concept of the committee, which will report to the planning committee, is to study where development should be in the area "and in respect to the entire region."

THE MUSINGS OF BEN GINTER

How to succeed in business without friends in the government seems the best way to describe the musings of Ben Ginter.

Announcing Wednesday in Victoria that his products have finally been accepted by Pacific Brewers Warehousing Ltd., the Prince George industrialist — known as "Uncle Ben" to many beer drinkers — went a fair way to disproving his well-known theories about big government and big business.

Pacific Brewers Warehousing is the operation that handles distribution of beer for the big brewing companies who have been the subject of monopolist charges by Ginter.

He told a general meeting of the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce that beginning July 1, Ginter is in with Pacific Brewers.

But this did not come about because Ginter has got inside the "protection racket" big government provides for big business.

Ginter told his audience he has tried for a year and a half to get an appointment to see Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, under whose jurisdiction falls the only real liquor sales monopoly in the province, the B.C. Liquor Control Board.

"He won't answer his phone," said Ginter. "The only time I get an answer is when I say in a letter I will assume you approve if I don't hear from you."

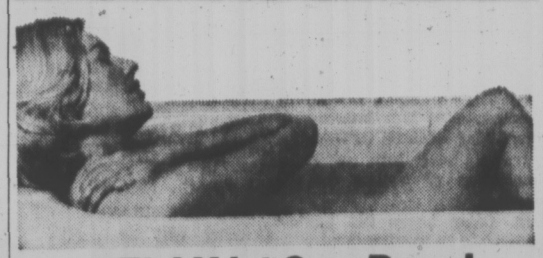

In earlier times, when he and Peterson were riding together in a car, Peterson asked to get out before they met up with a group of other cabinet ministers, so they wouldn't see whom he was accompanying, Ginter recalled.

But it's not all bad. Despite the 15 per cent tax advantage he says foreign-owned companies have when they enter Canada, despite being ignored by government leaders, despite the heretofore cold shoulder given him by the big brewers and despite the "jealous competition" shown by so many other B.C. businessmen, Ginter is staying in B.C.

He gave no particular reasons, but it might have something to do with the fact that his B.C. businesses have somehow managed to keep him in the millionaire bracket, and who knoww how well he may do now that he's in with the big time operators.

OUTDOOR SCENE

By Barry M. Thornton

The violet green, yet seemingly sterile waters of the lake merged imperseptibly with the emerald green drop of the shore line. Old stumps with their weird snags reached out in grotesque fashion under the boat as it drifted parallel to the shore with the late afternoon breeze.

The black ant fly twitched ever so slightly on the surface creating a small ring of ripples which spread in ever widening circles. Holding the rod and fly line in my right hand and forfinger I grasped the line with my left hand and proceeded to retrieve the fly with an under and over hand motion, teasing the fly along the surface.

The fly moved no more than a few inches when a torpedo shadow detached itself from the green depths and shot upwards. An open mouth—a roil—then the flash of silver as the leader tension checked the trout's dive. In a panic it broke water, gyrating on the surface as it tried to throw the small number ten hook. Then down it dove streaming the loose line through my fingers as it sought safety among the snags.

This was just one of many strikes during a recent black ant hatch on one of the multitude of small lakes in the vast Sayward forest north and west of Campbell River.

The black ant hatch is a natural phenomenum of the west coast, occuring during May and early June. At this time, high temperatures hatch the eggs of the carpenter ants. These flying ants migrate with the wind currents and many light on or near water in the various Island lakes and streams. During this hatch trout appear to loose all caution and will strike at any fly which resembles the flying ant. Anglers also are known to loose all reason at this time for they know this is their main opportunity to limit on lunker trout with a dry fly.

★ ★ ★

The Sayward forest watershed shows a vast number of lakes foremost of which are Buttle Lake, Upper Campbell and Campbell Lakes. These large lakes, easily accessible from the Campbell Lakes — Gold River highway, contain some of the largest cutthroat trout on the Island, many of which will weigh up to nine pounds.

Logging in this immense area has provided controlled access to many smaller lakes for the car-top trout angler. These smaller lakes do not provide the giant cutthroat of the big lakes but they do have many big trout and often prolific numbers of smaller fish.

This past weekend, on McIvor Lake, I talked with George Taylor, one of two conservation officers for the whole north Island. George had just spent seven hours travelling the periphery of Campbell Lake which is accessable through McIvor Lake, checking anglers. Of the one hundred plus fishermen he met a few had limits and most had fish. The largest cutthroat he saw weighed four and one-half pounds. Most success was had on a gang troll and worm while a few good catches were taken spinning with lures. Surprisingly, only two fly fishermen were seen on the whole lake. It is interesting to note that of the 50 boats checked, not one single violation was recorded.

Indispensible for the angler who wishes to explore the lakes in this area is the map of Campbell River and Buttle Lake drawn by Doris Stastny and John Boby and available at most sporting goods stores and almost any location in Campbell River. The map, retailing at $1.50, shows all lakes, streams, access roads, campsites and beaches in the area.

Following is a list of many lakes in the area accessable for car-top boat launching. Size of the lakes is included (small, medium, large or very large) along with elevation above sea level and approximate distance in miles from Campbell River. Elevation is included because the lower lakes are fishable at an earlier date than those in higher areas. Most of the lakes contain both rainbow and cutthroat trout. Upper Quinsam contains only rainbows. Those which hold only cutthroat are denoted by C:

Glen Meadows Forges Into Golf League Lead

Clutch golfing by Marty Richards Wednesday night at Glen Meadows was a key factor as his home club defeated Gorge Vale and jumped into top spot in the Inter-Club Golf League.

Glen Meadows now has 12½ points after two matches, one-half point more the total of the Uplands teams which was defeated Wednesday at Cedar Hill.

After whitewashing defending-champion Royal Colwood 9-0 last week, Uplands lost by a 6-3 margin.

Colwood went down to its second straight loss Wednesday as Victoria beat the champs 6½-2½. The result left Victoria in third place in league standings in the chase for the Willie Park Driver.

RICHARDS UNDER PAR

Richards managed to par the back nine at Glen Meadows after going three under par on the front nine, in leading his team to the victory.

He beat Mike Kolb by the same 4 and 3 mark that partner Bill Penny registered in defeating Vince Clarkson, and the meadows pair combined for a 4-and-3 fourball win over the Gorge Vale duo.

While Dave Mick and Al MacLeod tightened the match with a sweep over Rick Kent and Murray Brown, Glen Meadows took the game when Hall Jacobsen and Brian Sluggett took a 3 and 2 fourball win over Bob Beachemin and Jim Taylor.

LAST-HOLE VICTORY

Jacobsen finished 1 up on Taylor by winning the last hole, while Beauchemin topped Sluggett, 2 and 1.

Colwood's first points this season came as Sid Murdoch and Jim McMurran downed Gordon Verley and Bill Thompson of Victoria in the fourball, 2 and 1. Thompson managed to half his match with McMurran, but Murdoch bested Verley, 4 and 3.

Robin Burrell lost to Doug Hunt, 6 and 4; Bob Hunt defeated Greg Candlish, 4 and 3; Uplands took four-ball, 3 and 2.
Don Billsborough lost to Brian Gandy, 2 and 1; Dave McColl lost to Greg Barnes, 5 and 4; Cedar Hill took four-ball, 2 and 1.

Gorge Vale 4 at Glen Meadows 5
Vince Clarkson lost to Bill Penny, 4 and 3; Mike Kolb lost to Marty Richards, 4 and 3; Glen Meadows took four-ball, 4 and 2.
Dave Mick defeated Rick Kent, 4 and 3; Al MacLeod defeated Murray Brown, 2 and 1; Gorge Vale took four-ball, 3 and 2.
Jim Taylor lost to Hal Jacobsen, 1 up; Bob Beauchemin defeated Brian Sluggett, 2 and 1; Glen Meadows took four-ball, 3 and 2.

Victoria 6½ at Colwood 2½
Vaughn Trapp defeated Laurie Kerr, 5 and 4; George Bigelow defeated Ken Floyd, 2 and 1; Victoria took four-ball, 4 and 2.
Carl Schwantje defeated Ron Howard, 6 and 5; Mike Parker defeated Bruce Pelmore, 4 and 3; Victoria took four-ball, 7 and 6.
Gordon Verley lost to Sid Murdoch, 4 and 3; Bill Thompson halved with Jim McMurran; Colwood took four-ball, 2 and 1.

Four Teams Sharing Lead

Four teams are tied for the lead in the Victoria Senior Women's Softball League today, following a 5-1 Westendale Constructionettes victory over Moose Lodge Loyals at Beacon Hill Park Wednesday night.

Tillicum, Esquimalt Jr. Combos and Cablevision have now been joined by the Constructionettes, each with two victories and no losses. Five-hit pitching by Myrna Harris paced the Westendale win.

Rhodesia Launches Mixed Competition

SALISBURY (UPI) — Black and white South African athletes will compete against each other at an international meeting here June 19, the Rhodesia Amateur Athletics Union said Wednesday.

RAAU president Eric Shore said: "It will be a historical occasion."

Shore said formal invitations had gone out to 10 white and 10 non-white South Africans and informal acceptance had already been received.

Athletic sources here said it would be the first time in the history of apartheid that black and white South Africans have been allowed to compete against each other.

The sources said this was because Malawi was also sending a team to Salisbury, which made it an "international" meeting which the South African government has said it approves as qualification for mixed competition.

The South Africans have not been invited as a national team, because of the country's expulsion from the International Amateur Athletic Federation. Instead, Rhodesia — which is still an IAAF IAUF member — has invited the athletes as individuals.

Frampton's Blast Wins for Century

A last-inning, two-out home run Wednesday by Don Frampton at Heywood Avenue Park produced a 2-1 victory for Century Inn over Labatts in the Stuffy McGinnis Softball League.

With a single and a double to go along with his homer, Frampton was the only player to have a big night at the plate.

Century Inn shortstop Bob Custance saved the game in the sixth inning with a bases-loaded catch of a line drive off the bat of Harris. He then doubled Barry Granger off third base to end the inning.

Reid Sets Pace In Pro Tourney

VANCOUVER (CP) — Defending champion Doug Reid of Burnaby fired a two-under-par 69 Wednesday to take a one-Munn, and Bob Cox and Al Kennedy, both of Richmond's Quilchena course.

ONE MORE ROUND

The field of 55 professionals from throughout the province will play the final round of the $3,000 tournament today.

Gordie Fairbairn of Pitt Meadows and Ron Willey of Marine Drive were two shots off the pace with par 71 rounds.

Tom Moryson, also of Pitt Meadows, Dave Ewart of Alberni, and Tom Whittle of North Vancouver were another stroke back at 72.

Six players were bunched at 73, including Victoria pro John Morgan, and veterans Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Harold Pretty of Prince George. Leonard and Pretty share the lead in the senior division, for pros aged 50 and over.

Other Island pros competing were Bob Hammer of Victoria, who fired a 76, Mike Rivers of Nanaimo (79), Earl Davies of Victoria (80), Dick Silverberg of Sidney (80) and Greg Palmer of Nanaimo, (82).

John Carlow, Hewitt Lead

Eric Hewitt of Glen Meadows was the handicap winner and John Carlow of Gorge Vale won low-gross laurels at Wednesday's Vancouver Island Seniors' Golf Association 18-hole medal competition at Glen Meadows.

Winners of low-gross prizes in other divisions were Dick Spruce, George Kulai, Ted Martin and Ken Kennedy.

Handicap winners included Bill Sanford, Merv Coulter, Norm Taylor and Ted Parsons. stroke lead in the 36-hole British Columbia Professional Golfers Association championship at Point Grey.

Reid, an unattached pro, toured the back nine in three-under 32 for his advantage over three players — host pro Dick

Junior Golf Test Slated Saturday

Young swingers who have made up a whopping entry list of 88 contestants are primed to chase the Victoria City junior title Saturday at Victoria Golf Club.

The 36-hole tournament is a "must" for golfers hoping to earn berths on the four-man B.C. interprovincial junior team.

The defending champion, and hoping to make it two straight, is Gorge Vale's Robbie Ferguson.

Salaries Unaffected By High Unemployment

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — What has happened to wages and salaries since high unemployment struck the land?

The short answer, says Dr. John Young, head of the prices and incomes commission, is: "Not much—yet."

There are signs that new wage contracts being negotiated by the larger labor unions do not contain wage increases as large as a year or six months ago.

But there hasn't been any significant decline in hourly wage rates, weekly wages and salaries, or total labor income. Rather, they have increased.

When the government made inflation the No. 1 target for economic policy and began to slow inflation's rate of increase, it knew that higher unemployment would result.

The economic record for more than 100 years has shown the only way to fight inflation in an open-market free-enterprise economy is to force an economic slow-down. That stops or at least slows the upward surge of prices, but means reductions in production and, consequently, unemployment.

PRODUCTION DOWN

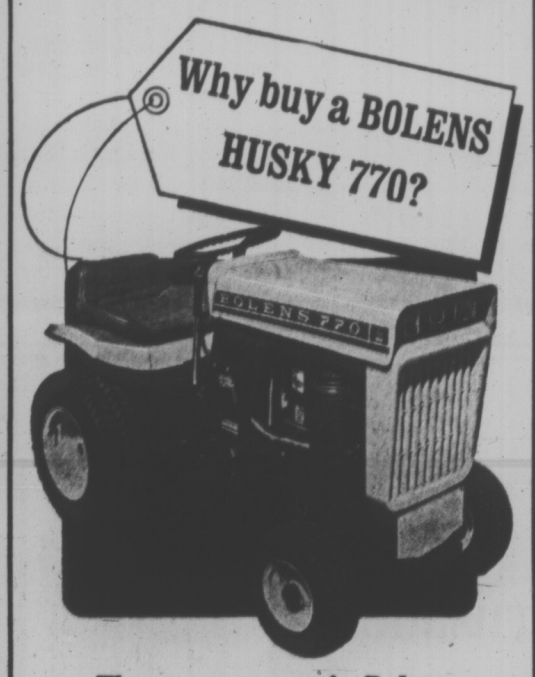

Production has slowed. The index of industrial production has not moved substantially in more than a year. Until there was a spurt this spring, manufacturer shipments had varied little for about two years.

Wholesale prices generally have been steady for more than a year and, while consumer prices are still rising, the rate of climb has been sharply cut to less than two per cent a year from about five per cent a year ago.

Unemployment has surged ahead, with a remarkable bump up last month to 659,000 or 7.8 per cent of the 8.4 million people in the labor force. But analysts say there was a declining trend in the six months from last September to this March.

Official statistics indicate the effect of all this on incomes appears to be minimal.

Total labor income is running at more than $4,000 million a month, compared with $3,800 million a month early last fall. While unemployment is high, there still are more people working this year than last—and at higher rates of pay.

GUARDS CHARGED

Kingston Riot Aftermath

TORONTO (CP) — Eleven guards at Millhaven Penitentiary were charged today with a total of 22 counts of assault on prisoners transferred to Millhaven after a riot at Kingston Penitentiary last month, Attorney - General Allan Lawrence told the legislature.

The guards will appear in court at Napanee, Ont., next Thursday.

Clayton Powell, a Crown counsel in the attorney-general's office, said in an interview the charges involve incidents against eight prisoners transferred April 19, 20 and 21.

PREJUDICIAL

Mr. Lawrence said he had "a great deal of information" on file in his office but he would not make it public because it might be prejudicial to the trials.

He also denied published accounts that Crown Attorney John Sampson of Kingston said some prisoners had been told they would be charged with offences committed during the riot.

WALK OUT? NEVER! SAYS SCHREYER

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer has described as "absolutely unfounded" a report that he and other prairie premiers plan to walk out of the federal-provincial conference next month in Victoria if they don't get their way.

Commenting on a report from Quebec that the three would walk out if Quebec insisted on dealing with social policies before reaching a decision on amending the constitution, Schreyer said he "never made any statement to that effect."

"The whole episode leads me to think there is some mischief afoot, although I can't imagine what the motive would be. This is absolutely unfounded as far as Manitoba is concerned."

Triangle Fight Looms in NDP

By PETER McNELLY

The political family of socialists and social democrats who form British Columbia's New Democratic Party face a triangular policy battle this weekend when they gather in Vancouver for their 1971 convention.

At stake will be the interests of organized labor, those of the supporters of provincial leader Dave Barrett and the aspirations of the militant Waffle group.

More Than Sibling Rivalries

Perhaps more than any other party in Canada, the NDP prides itself on its tolerance of internal dissent. And while B.C.'s NDP is unlikely to find its internal differences irreconcilable on the convention floor, the disputes among its members are more than sibling rivalries.

After its crushing electoral defeat in August, 1969, the NDP consolidated its strength under a new leader — Barrett. Now entering his second year as official party leader, Barrett can be said to have brought the mark of his own style upon the party's policies.

He has moved the party away from an outright identification with the B.C. Federation of Labor, and he has carefully softened the more doctrinaire socialist image which has clung to the NDP from the days of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

Cause of Conflict Anticipated

But it is precisely these two of Barrett's positions which will generate conflict at the policy level during the convention.

Among the 500 to 600 convention delegates in attendance at the University of British Columbia's Totem Park Convention Centre May 28-30 will be the usual strong labor contingent and about 100 Waffle delegates.

The Waffle is expected to nominate a challenger to Barrett's leadership post, and party analysts say the B.C. Fed will continue to push for a more outspoken pro-labor tone in the NDP.

But these moves should not obscure the fact that the NDP is always a party of policy rather than one of personality.

In an interview with the Times, Barrett said he expects the convention to state "concrete proposals" on the 11 policy departments chosen for discussion.

1972 Election Predicted

There are: labor, agriculture, natural resources, environment and pollution, health, urban affairs, education, taxation, finance and secondary industry, cultural affairs and human rights, and welfare and youth.

Barrett is predicting a provincial election in September, 1972. He said his own view is that unemployment should be the major area of concern during the convention.

He charges the Socreds with complete failure to create more jobs in B.C. and dismisses Premier Bennett's promise of 25,000 new jobs this year as an impossible hope under Social Credit policies.

Barrett noted that the number of employed persons in B.C. dropped by 14,000 in April. This means Bennett will have to create 39,000 jobs to keep his promise.

Aside from unemployment, Barrett said another tour of the province revealed to him a serious problem in the fruit industry of the Okanagan.

LOAN PROPOSED

He is proposing a $250,000 interest-free loan to stimulate the industry. Barrett said he is also interested in the possibility of provincial aid to independent schools.

The secretary of B.C.'s Waffle group, Sharon Yandle of Vancouver, says the decision to challenge Barrett's leadership results from "real dissatisfactions" with his policies.

These "disagreements" fall into three areas, she said. First, the Waffle does not like Barrett's refusal to oppose Bill 33 enough to ask workers not to obey the law.

She said the Waffle believes Bill 33 is a bad law and does not deserve to be obeyed.

The group also opposes the

JACK
. . . not a worry

107 YEARS OLD, GAINING ON DAD

CHEMAINUS, (CP) August Jack is 107 years old today, but the celebration is being delayed until Saturday to give all 60 members of his family a chance to attend.

"He is still as active as he was a year ago," his son, Johnnie, 57, said Wednesday night.

"He split some wood, did a little housework and, now is out for his evening walk.

"He doesn't have as many grey hairs as I have and I don't think he has ever had a worry in his life. Maybe that's the secret."

Mr. Jack was born on the Lummi reserve near Bellingham, Wash., Dec. 28, 1864, but he was not baptized until May 27, 1865, when his birth was registered.

He says his father lived to be 125 and another member of the family reached 135.

Mid-East Strife Blamed on U.S.

CAIRO (Reuter) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat blamed American support of Israel for spoiling Middle East peace efforts and Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny accused the U.S. of having a direct interest in the continuation of Israeli aggression in speeches Wednesday night.

The two leaders were speaking at a dinner given in Podgorny's honor which lasted into the early hours of this morning. They continue their private talks today.

Sadat said the U.S. backing for Israel was pushing the Middle East toward an explosion of inestimable consequences.

He said, however, Egypt had not rejected recent U.S. peace efforts.

"But we want everybody to know," he said, "that we shall not compromise, either as regards our territories or our rights in exchange for an empty mirage."

Replying to Sadat, Podgorny, who arrived here Tuesday on what was described as an unofficial visit, said the Soviet Union always had been at the side of the Egyptian people in their struggle against imperialism and zionism.

BLAMES U.S.

Podgorny said Israeli aggression poisons the atmosphere not only in the Middle East but also far beyond it. Through the fault of Israeli ruling circles and their U.S. patrons the consequences of aggression had not yet been eliminated and the situation remained rather tense, he said.

Sadat started his speech by saying that imperialists and their henchmen watching Podgorny's visit had once more failed to understand the nature of Soviet-Egyptian relations.

India, Pakistan In Border Clash

NEW DELHI (AP)— The Indian government said today an entire 11-man checkpost on the border with East Pakistan had been wiped out in an attack by the Pakistan Army.

"Our 11 men could not hold against their 100 men," Home Affairs Minister K. C. Pant informed Parliament in the first official disclosure of the incident.

"I regret to inform the house that as a result of this attack, nine border security force personnel were killed and two are missing."

Pant said that 13 civilians also were killed and 11 injured in the attacks this week at Kilapara in eastern Assam state.

WILL USE ARMY

The leader of the right-wing Hindu nationalist Jana Sangh party, A. B. Vajpayee, called the border incident "an undeclared war" and demanded that the Indian army be moved along the 1,349-mile border with East Pakistan, replacing the paramilitary border security force.

During a similar debate in the upper house of Parliament, R.N. Mirdha, minister

Canada-Russia Era Forecast

LENINGRAD (CP) Prime Minister Trudeau said today Canada is increasingly turning its attention to the Soviet Union and foresaw a new era of co-operation between the two northern neighbors.

"We are becoming aware of our partnership," Trudeau told the Leningrad City Soviet in a luncheon address.

Governmental exchange visits between Canada and Russia might one day lead to "a program of trans-Arctic co-operation of yet unforeseen nature," he said.

"That may be a dream, but surely there is an element of reality in it."

Speaking on the last day of his 11-day Soviet tour, Trudeau said Canada looks as always to her European origins," but she is increasingly turning her attention towards the Soviet Union, now that the obstacle of polar icefields is being overcome and she is discovering her closeness to you."

"Your country is likely experiencing the same changes in outlook as you become aware of the closeness of Canada," he added.

"All barriers are giving way before the progress of science and technology . . ."

LAUDS SIEGE HEROISM

Trudeau paid tribute to the "incredible heroism" of the people of Leningrad during the city's epic 900-day siege in the Second World War.

Earlier, he had placed a wreath of red and pink carnations at the base of a memorial to the estimated one million victims of the siege, at a cemetery where about half those who died lie buried.

A Red Army band movingly played funeral music by Chopin as Trudeau, under leaden skies, slowly walked down a 500-foot pathway leading to the monument, trailed by scores of Canadian and Soviet officials.

Leaving the cemetery, Trudeau went on a fast-moving sightseeing tour of Leningrad.

Violence Ebbs

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — A sharp drop in street violence in black districts resulted Wednesday in the lifting of a dusk-to-dawn curfew in Chattanooga and a slackening of the military grip the National Guard has held on the city.

Reward Set In Air Hoax

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) Rewards totalling $56,400 were offered today for capture of the bandits who used a bomb scare bluff to con an Australian airline out of $560,000.

Police kept up a nationwide hunt for the bandits. Serial numbers of the ransom notes were circulated along with an artist's drawing of the man who picked up the cash. Interpol worked with Australian officials on the case.

Sanctuary Studied

HALIFAX (CP) — Federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said today the government would "be glad" to attempt establishing a seal sanctuary in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

RAW SEWAGE will no longer pollute the beaches of West Bay following action today by deputy minister of health J. A. Taylor. Storm drains like this one at the foot of Barnard, watched by objector Jim Palmer, have been used until now as bypasses during the installation of trunk sewers at Macaulay Point. Dr. Taylor said today the sewage will be diverted into another area where it will be screened and chlorinated.

NEXT QUESTION: WHO'S IN CHARGE?

WINNIPEG (CP) — Why should the husband rather than the wife be defined as the "head of the household" on the 1971 census form, the Manitoba Human Rights Commission wants to know.

The commission says because of the "abhorrent" definition by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, it is the man who must answer certain questions about the family income.

"The form implies that women are not competent to supply this information. Apparently DBS feels that the woman's place is in the home, subservient to her husband, but that she can't be trusted to describe her surroundings accurately — that's the man's work."

Salaries Unaffected By High Unemployment

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — What has happened to wages and salaries since high unemployment struck the land?

The short answer, says Dr. John Young, head of the prices and incomes commission, is: "Not much yet."

There are signs that new wage contracts being negotiated by the larger labor unions do not contain wage increases as large as a year or six months ago.

But there hasn't been any significant decline in hourly wage rates, weekly wages and salaries, or total labor income. Rather, they have increased.

When the government made inflation the No. 1 target for economic policy and began to slow inflation's rate of increase, it knew that higher unemployment would result.

The economic record for more than 100 years has shown the only way to fight inflation in an open-market free-enterprise economy is to force an economic slow-down. That stops or at least slows the upward surge of prices, but means reductions in production and, consequently, unemployment.

PRODUCTION DOWN

Production has slowed. The index of industrial production has not moved substantially in more than a year. Until there was a spurt this spring, manufacturer shipments had varied little for about two years.

Wholesale prices generally have been steady for more than a year and, while consumer prices are still rising, the rate of climb has been sharply cut to less than two per cent a year from about five per cent a year ago.

Unemployment has surged ahead, with a remarkable bump up last month to 659,000 or 7.8 per cent of the 8.4 million people in the labor force. But analysts say there was a declining trend in the six months from last September to this March.

Official statistics indicate the effect of all this on incomes appears to be minimal.

Total labor income is running at more than $4,000 million a month, compared with $3,800 million a month early last fall. While unemployment is high, there still are more people working this year than last—and at higher rates of pay.
